THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Lesson for June 30, 1957

What Is Greatness

"THE habitual vision of greatness" has been called the secret of the ancient Greeks, one of the world's most wonderful people. Many would say that the ancient Hebrews were even more wonderful; and they too had their "habitual vision of greatness." In our Old Testament are stories of great men, for whom even today little children are named. These great men and women too are of different kinds, you might say only one of a kind. Joseph was the kind of great man Americans love to honor. He was an immigrant, for one thing, a poor boy, with nothing but the clothes he wore, when he first crossed the border of Egypt. He was a man who rose through all the layers of society, against very great odds. He was the "big executive" type, and immensely rich besides. Now it is not true that such men are always liked and honored. Sometimes they are no more loved than General Bullmoose. But when such men do give their fellow-citizens a gift of pride, it is because of that something Extra which we call greatness.

Dr. Foreman

The High Soul

Every truly great man or woman has some qualities or gifts which are unique in him, and are partly developed by his own special circumstances. The greatness of an Abraham Lincoln, for instance, is part of Lincoln. But there are some things that Lincoln had to learn from Kelly, Douglas, and others. But there are some things that could be found in all these men. Lincoln's greatness was in the high soul that he had. Lincoln's greatness was in the high soul that he had. Lincoln's greatness was in the high soul that he had

Along The Potomac

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde - 6th District, Maryland

I voted for the civil rights measure on final passage because I believe in safeguarding the rights of every qualified citizen to vote. But, like many who voted as I did, I question the wisdom of the House in rejecting the trial by jury amendment for which I worked and voted.

It is worthy of note that the proponents of the anti-jury trial provision had no argument except one pitched on an appeal to the emotions. No one in the House successfully defended the anti-jury provision using the tools of logic and reason. Despite the apparent validity of some cases and precedents cited, no sound evidence was produced that justified denial of trial by jury to a person charged with a criminal act. Supporters of rejection took many ways of saying, disguised as best they could, that juries in 10 or 11 states could not be trusted.

I feel that we may some day regret depriving our citizens of a Contitutional right through enactment of a statute.

I know the residents of my Congressional District are gratified with the tax exemption provided in the House Excise Tax Bill for admissions, dues, and fees paid toward membership in our neighborhood swimming clubs. The foresight and initiative of the residents of our communities to provide their own recreational facilities is finally being recognized.

Last week I testified before the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee on the need of a pay increase for postal workers. I had the opportunity of presenting to the Committee factual information on problems faced by postal employees in the 6th Congressional District of Maryland.

The House has approved a $2 million appropriation for continuing the work on the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection project.

Lending Services To Small Businesses Explained

An explanation by the Small Business administration as to size of business concerns eligible for various lending and procurement services was recently issued in a pamphlet, "Definition of Small Business."

DODGE outperforms "other two" low-priced trucks!

They're off! All three low-priced trucks are lined up at the bottom of a test grade equal to the steepest hill in San Francisco. The flag drops, and this grueling test of climbing power is officially underway. Dodge takes an early lead.

Halfway up. The extra V-8 power under the hood of the Dodge sends it quickly ahead. It's already two lengths out front. And there's a 1000-lb. test load on each one of these comparably equipped trucks. What's more, Dodge is still gaining!

Dodge flashes past the finish five lengths ahead of competition. Truck "C" and truck "F" just couldn't match that 204-hp. Power Giant. And this is just one of a rugged series of tests that prove Dodge is best of the low-priced three.

"FORTY-FOUR YEARS OF THE LIFE OF A HUNTER," by Meshack Browning, Maryland's famous pioneer hunter, is now available.

Although it was first published 98 years ago and is now in its 12th edition, it is more widely read than ever before.

His truthful accounts of desperate encounters with the savage beasts of the forest, his superhuman efforts to maintain his family in the wilderness, far from human aid or associations, and his undaunted courage in facing the hardships of pioneer life cannot fail to captivate the reader.

It really deserves a place in every Marylander's library.

Americanism . . . .

Remarks of President Eisenhower, compiled by the White House, appeared as a special Fourth of July message for "Family Weekly." They are most appropriate, and worthy of copying here.

"In our Fourth of July speeches, we say America seeks no dominion over others, that she believes in the dignity of man. We say these things and we believe them, for they are true.

"But an American can scarcely consider that he is doing his full duty to his country unless he SHOWS this belief in Americanism, and realizes that he is showing himself to others as one of the products of this system. As an American, you are set apart from all other individuals.

"First, you must know what Americanism really is. You have got to know that here we have a government of, by, and for free men, and one based solidly on religious concepts.

"You also must know something of the history of your country, how we came to be what we are. You have got to believe with all your soul that it is a system that will allow people to reach the greatest degree of earthly happiness of which we are capable, that we can seek to express ourselves, to realize all that is within us.

"In our own land, it is largely through the family that our national character is formed. Americans love fair play, bravery, and hard work; they believe in human brotherhood because American fathers and mothers—by precept and example—teach these virtues to their childrn. So long as these ennobling qualities are passed from generation to

FFA Gathers Scrap Iron: Welfare Fund Is Created

The Cove chapter of the Future Farmers of America of Northern High school recently had an opportunity to practice part of their creed, and as a result now has a welfare fund approaching $700.

A portion of their creed reads: "I believe . . . in less need for charity and more of it when needed; in being happy myself and playing square with those whose happiness depends upon me."

Marvin G. Callis, chapter adviser, said his group received quite a shock last October when it was learned that Elmer Lee, a third-year member of the group was hospitalized with an active case of bone cancer. When they heard the news Elmer already was receiving the best of medical care in a Baltimore hospital.

Callis said the boys decided, after careful discussion, to conduct a cooperative scrap metal drive. A committee was formed with Eugene Miller, Grantsville, and William Goehringer, Accident, as co-chairmen, who informed farmers of the community of the drive and its purpose. Scrap or junk metal was contributed, hauled and sorted by the FFA boys.

The metal was transported to the school by donors and donated trucks. The scrap was then loaded on timber trucks loaned by former FFA members and hauled to Monongahela, Pa., and sold to an iron and steel company. When it was all totaled up it was discovered that the boys had collected 40,945 pounds of scrap metal which brought a total of $685.95 to the chapter as a welfare fund.

Callis said his one hundred fifty members now believe that "charity begins at home."

Featured speaker was J. Millard Tawes, comptroller of the treasury. Mr. Tawes spent several hours touring the lake and talking with lake property owners prior to the meeting and told the members that it might be a good idea to re-examine the needs of the association and work out a satisfactory program in conference with county officials.

Following Mr. Tawes' talk those interested in activities such as fish, roads, hunting, and water activities, met with various chairmen for discussion.

Refreshments were served following the meeting. A general meeting is scheduled for September at which time election of officers will be held. Present officers include Mr. Bennett as president and R. B. Marshall as secretary.

Hazelwood Is Low Bidder On Mt. Lake-Deer Park Highway

The George F. Hazelwood Company, of Cumberland, was low bidder on the project of rebuilding the highway from Deer Park to Mt. Lake Park, it was learned following the opening of bids Tuesday in the office of the State Roads Commission.

The price for 3.37 miles of roadway was $645,422.95, according to G. Bates Chaires, district roads engineer, of Cumberland.

The price includes one three span bridge of reinforced concrete, and the extension of one bridge.

The new road is to be 21 feet wide, and will connect with the improved portion of state route 135 which was finished this spring, which runs from the Deer Park crossroads to and beyond the former Lake's filling station.

There were three bidders, with the next low bidder being the Cumberland Contracting company which was some $20,000 higher than the bid of the Hazelwood company. S. T. Brotemarkle Construction company, also of Cumberland, was the third bidder.

Mr. Chaires said that a good many of the rights of way had already been secured and that if the bid was awarded, that work would begin in the very near future. He saw no reason why the contract would not be awarded.

The contract calls for completion of the job in 200 working days.

The project includes the grading, drainage, widening, relocating and surfacing with bituminous concrete.

Mr. Chaires said it would be a modern highway in every respect. He said it would not be long before there was a modern highway from Oakland to Cumberland.

He said the Arden Boat club, where the shows are being presented, was being readied for the opening night. Actors began rehearsals on Monday and will continue until the opening night. He said both old and new members of the cast were looking forward to the summer season.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

An Issue At Last?

In recent weeks there have been more widely scattered meetings of politicians of both parties with the general idea of developing either an attractive issue for the 1958 campaign or a dynamic presidential candidate for 1960. It cannot be said that either party has made anything like satisfactory progress along either line. However, a real separation of the two parties on a matter of high principle does seem about to emerge from Congress which can accurately be called a national issue and upon which the country seems really divided.

—o—

This is embodied in the so-called Hell's Canyon project. The latest Senate vote on this plan to push the Government still further along the path of socialism and public-power ownership showed 13 out of the 19 Democratic senators favoring this monstrous and costly proposal. In other words, all the Democrats except a few consistent and conservative friends of private enterprise such as Senators Byrd and Robertson, of Virginia, and the courageous Lausche, of Ohio. On the other hand, the Republicans in the Senate denounced the bill as a wild-eyed Government ownership and state socialism plan whose ultimate cost to the taxpayers would be close to $4,000,000,000.

—o—

The more demagogic of the Hell's Canyon project advocates in the Senate, such as Morse, of Oregon, and Humphrey, of Minnesota, seem certain that the Hell's Canyon bill will pass the House by the same slender Democratic margin given it by the Senate. If that should happen and it probably will, the president, it is believed, will promptly veto the bill, and certainly there are not enough votes to override a veto.

—o—

This, then, would be made clear, with the Democrats almost solidly on record as against private enterprise and in favor of a clear approach to national socialism and the Republicans on record, as to the President and in Congress, as strongly opposed to any further governmental encroachment upon private enterprise not only in the field of electric power but in the field of all the other basic industries to which the pending legislation could equally well apply. It is well to note that in addition to practically all the Democratic leaders (always excepting Senators Byrd and Lausche) the Hell's Canyon Government ownership bill is supported by all the extreme socialistically inclined groups in the country.

—o—

These include, of course, the Americans for Democratic Action and the CIO-AFL labor combination which politically is becoming more and more dominated by Mr. Walter Reuther, whose early association with the Communist party has been many times charged and not ever fully denied. Last week the extraordinary letter from Russia which Walter Reuther and his brother, Vic, once wrote to their other brother urging him to keep up the fight to "Sovietize America" was again widely published as part of the congressional records.

—o—

It is the Walter Reuther, whom Mr. Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. one of his other friends, predicts in another ten years may be the most powerful political figure in the country. Had the good Adlai been elected in either 1952 or 1956, Mr. Reuther would not have had to wait ten years to justify the Schlesinger prediction. Now, if in 1960 he can renominate and elect a Democratic President, which is his big objective, he will still be out in front of his press agent. Naturally, Mr. Reuther is in favor of the Hell's Canyon project and long ago lined up all the pro-labor senators in its favor. Certainly, if the Eisenhower veto is sustained (as it is sure to be), there will be no longer any question about the issue next year. The people will really have a choice uncomplicated by compromise or confusion. It is the thing for which so many political tub thumpers have been calling for over the years.

—o—

The record will have been made in Congress, with one party almost solidly lined up in favor of Government ownership and operation along true socialistic lines, and the other party just as solidly asserting itself in private enterprise and economy.

—o—

Some of the Democratic strategists are not happy over the prospects, but there seems little they can do about it. For on them the big-mouthed party demagogues think the issue beautifully tailored to their particular talents and already leading the pack. For another, there just isn't anything else in sight. It is, they argue, the old "tax, tax, tax, spend, spend, spend, elect, elect, elect" idea of the Roosevelt regime and what could be better than that from their standpoint?

—o—

Eugene T. Gunning was named editor of Sunday Times at Cumberland, succeeding J. William Hunt. T. Donald Shires was named editor of Evening Times

Miller--Childs Wedding Solemnized

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin R. Miller announce the marriage of their daughter, Donna Louise, to Roy Clifton Childs, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Childs, Oakland. The wedding took place at 2 p. m. Sunday, May 19th, in the Mt. Pleasant EUB church near Lyndon. The Rev. O. H. Deever officiated before an altar decorated with palms, one large basket of pink and white gladioius, and candelabra holding burning tapers.

Miss Berdeen Bauck, pianist, and Mrs. Hal McCaw, soloist, furnished the nuptial music. Mrs. McCaw sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle. The slender bodice of lace was fashioned with a scalloped neckline embroidered in sequins and seed pearls. The very full skirt was designed with alternating bands of lace and freely pleated tulle over white satin. Her fingertip-length veil of bridal illusion fell from a coronet of sequins and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of light pink carnations and roses. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Becky Miller, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a pale pink ballerina dress fashioned after the bride's dress. Billy Miller, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Maid of honor was Norma Bauck. She wore a pale yellow formal and carried a bouquet of dark blue daisies and carnations. Carolyn Burkdoll and Marcia Elkin were candle lighters and bridesmaids. They wore light blue formals and wore corsages of light pink carnations and roses.

Best man was Johnnie Wade, Jr., of Topeka. Groomsmen and ushers were Ronald Miller, Frank Bice, Richard Bice, and Leo Williams. Ardis McCreight had charge of the guest book. Mrs. Larry Breichesien and Mrs. Edgar Tilton had charge of the wedding gifts.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. A white linen tablecloth covered the reception table. The large three-tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated with pink roses by Mrs. Everett Fine, centered the bride's table. Assisting were Carolyn Collins, Dorothy Patzner, and Mrs. Roy Yost, all of Topeka; Mrs. John Barnhisel, Wellsville, Kansas; Mrs. Everett Fine, Mrs. Frank Athon, Mrs. A. A. Criqui, and Mrs. L. K. Williams.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Miller wore a navy lace dress with white and navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and roses.

Mrs. Childs, the groom's mother, chose a navy faille suit with matching accessories and a pink corsage of carnations and roses.

Mrs. Childs is a graduate of Lyndon High school, Lyndon, Kansas. She completed her freshman year at Westmar college, LeMars, Iowa, and is now employed at the Sante Fe Railroad general offices.

Mr. Childs attended high school at Oakland. He is currently stationed with 815th Installation Squadron at Forbes Air Force base.

Following a wedding trip to Maryland, the couple are at home at 1262 Clay, Topeka.

It Runs Through My Mind

BY POLLY J. HANST

A Step Further

The farm women in Garrett county are working hard to establish a market for their produce. I have sat in on some of their meetings and know how hard they have worked, and how anxious they are to make a success of it.

I visited the shop Saturday at the Bowman boat barn and tried to put myself in the place of the consumer. Two things I believe a consumer would ask, is the product better than the commercial product and did it come out of a clean kitchen?

If there could be some way of scoring women's products so that the consumer would know she is safe. If the producer could be given a stamp of approval it not only would raise standards but promote sales.

I happen to know that the women who are promoting the market are some of Garrett county's top homemakers. But do the vacationers know it?

What's a Girl to Do?

Should a girl kiss a boy on her first date? That question comes out in every youth discussion. But never did I get an answer to equal the one that came out at the last meeting.

Said the girl: "If you permit a boy to kiss you on the first date you lose him in the end."

Said the boy: "If you don't you lose him in the beginning!"

"Is little wonder we're a frustrated society!

Leave Home and Live

Still with youth discussion. It takes all kinds to make a lively discussion and every discussion manager all but prays for a few clowns along with those who can produce straight forward thinking.

This day they were on safety, holiday accidents, etc.

"Get out of the house," said the smartie, "if you want to live, for statistics say the home is the most dangerous place in the world."

But as for me when it comes to Fourth of July, my theory is to let the fellow who is going some place have the road. Those of us who have no place to go, barbecue in our own back yards.

Wishful Thinking

I wish we had a lodge on Deep Creek Lake similar to the one at Blackwater. That's exactly what we need. A million dollar job, tastefully decorated, comfortably furnished, set down close to the water's edge with a network of hiking trails running through the forest.

We've got a greater variety of activities to offer than does Blackwater. Not that we're trying to compete with that lovely state park, for as yet we do not have the state backing that she has. West Virginia not only built the lodge, twenty cabins and roadways but she advertises the park extensively.

Some folks would say the state has no right to build lodges and compete with individual enterprise. Yet, who is going to sink a million dollars in a lodge, knowing that it would take years to make it pay off? With the state, it's different. While the lodge is paying slowly for itself there are thousands of dollars being spent elsewhere in the state by those who are vacationing at the lodge.

But the people of West Virginia are not sitting back and saying, "Let the state do it." The tourist trade is West Virginia's second resource. In every meeting I attend in that state the youth are directed in their thinking along those lines.

It goes something like this: "Americans take to the road in summer. We've got the scenic beauty to attract them. But tourists want more than beauty. They demand good food, comfortable beds and fastidious sanitation."

Then these leaders go on to pointing the way for this youthful thinking by adding, "It's not a 'get rich quick' scheme, but a fine way to supplement income."

We may have to wait for the state to build a lodge, but we could start right now building the right attitudes in our youth for what may be Garrett county's number one resource in their adult years.

To Our Guests

We are a friendly people. If you are not greeted in a friendly manner in our churches it may be that those close to you are strangers also.

ENGLANDER'S PHARMACY Monthly News

A Message from
Clinton W. Englander,
"Your Pharmacist"

You have to live in your body the rest of your life. You can't turn it in for a new model every year or two as you would an automobile.

If you neglect your body, just like any good machine, it may develop trouble. Nature warns you before it becomes serious. You suffer occasional pains, sleepless nights, wake up tired, and more often acquire colds.

How much is a healthy body worth to you? Of course, it is priceless. Therefore, it will pay you to make a small investment to insure your continuous good health.

Follow this proved plan. Visit your physician twice a year for a body check-up. He knows what trouble spots to look for. Perhaps you need one of the new medicines that will help you ease excessive nervous tension. If he thinks your resistance to infection needs strengthening, he may prescribe a high potency vitamin. Your present diet might not be the best for your particular body. He has the knowledge to properly guide you.

It is your body and you might as well enjoy it. In our pharmacy are the medicines, vitamins and health-aids that your body may need to serve you best.

THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1957

Governor Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland has requested all pedestrians and motorists to observe the Fourth of July by going forth on the "FOURTH" with a determination to walk and drive in a courteous - cautious - careful manner, and to obey all traffic laws in an effort to make this holiday an enjoyable one. Safety is a commodity which we cannot afford to be without. The continuous rise of fatalities, due to automobile accidents, throughout Maryland makes it imperative that we put forth every effort to curtail this tragic mounting death toll.

REMEMBER! The primary causes of death on our highway are - excessive speed - under influence of alcohol - and negligence. Will you be guilty of these crimes against humanity? The answer rests with you.

Americanism . . .

generation, our nation will remain strong and secure and great.

Faced with this fact, it is imperative that our Government never rest in its task of serving the American home. In every way possible, we must keep our families spiritually rich, strong and free.

"To this end, many groups—health, educational, welfare, religious, and Governmental—must work together to supplement the efforts of the family itself. This work to strengthen the American home is not sheer humanitarianism on the part of these groups; it is an investment in the national well-being.

"America seeks peace. But unless peace is taught in the home by the mother, during that age where everything that is learned and absorbed stays with us so strongly, there is going to be no peace. This is the foundation on which the men and women of our nation can build an abiding happiness for themselves and their children.

"Without God, of course, there could be no American form of government, nor any American way of life. Recognition of the Supreme Being is the first and most basic expression of Americanism. Thus the Founding Fathers saw it, and thus, with God's help, it will continue to be.

"The path America travels this Independence Day is narrow, long and beset with many dangers. Each day we must ask that Almighty God will set and keep His protecting hand over us so that we may pass on to those who come after us the heritage of a free people, secure in their God-given rights and in full control of a Government dedicated to the preservation of those rights."

THE AMERICAN WAY

Better Management of Labor

BY MAURICE R. FRANKS

Editor's Note: Maurice R. Franks is president of the National Labor-Management Foundation and Editor of its official publication, Partners.

In my last article, I traced the rise of the racketeer in the union labor movement and attributed the cause of this to our neglect in not having insisted that our legislators design laws requiring responsibility on the part of our unions and the men who lead them.

We have stood idly by while union leaders have herded their memberships like so many cattle—have permitted them to use union funds and their power to move politicians into corners where they want them—where laws are shaped to fit the needs of union-leader perfidy.

What today, because of the exposures of the Senate Committee, is so obvious in the case of labor's racketeers is no less true of labor's scheming radicals. The pity is that these latter aren't today under equal public scrutiny, and that we now find them scampering about in the somewhat grotesque role of prosecutors of their racketeering brothers.

And where does all this leave us—apart from the end of our own neglect? It leaves us face to face with the need for remedial legislation—and it's up to us, the general public, after the present circus has lowered its tents, to see that such legislation is enacted.

Indeed, the time has come for the Taft-Hartley law to be ruggedly amended—but this time so as not to give the leaders of labor greater power and prestige. This time, the law must be amended so as to give them far less—and the union members far more. And the Railway Labor Act and every state labor law must likewise be so strengthened.

Compulsory unionism—meaning compulsory union dues—must go. And in the very name of union security!

Industry-wide bargaining, that other weapon of manpower monopoly must also be dumped for the good of all concerned.

In the place of each must come the wholesome effects of union competition of union with union on the basis of services offered and services rendered. The merit system must be restored by law to unionism, if the whole labor movement is not to founder beneath a crushing load of demerits.

Further the unions must be brought under the direct control of the anti-trust laws. For a manpower monopoly is the most pernicious of any type yet developed.

Finally, an utterly new basis for the issuance of union charters must be devised and shaped into law. Union constitutions must be made to meet a basic standard of democracy and be held to an acceptable standard of internal service and public responsibility. Union officials must be bound by their constitutions and by the democratic processes defined therein—and to the extent that any defections on their part shall be proven, the rescinding of the union's charter must be undertaken, together with public prosecution of the individual found so guilty by the union's own tribunal.

Full disciplinary measures must lie within reach of each union's membership and the higher echelons of organized labor must be held directly accountable to the public for imposing effective disciplines when necessary. And such discipline should be made measurable.

No union—or Judas-led drove of helpless sheep—should be enabled to sidestep its responsibilities to the ethical practices code of a federation by simply resigning from that Federation—any more than union's expulsion should be the end of its plight. In either case the union in point should go or be brought to court and a full public investigation of charges and counter-charges be made, with every official under oath and subject to public prosecution if malfeasance in office is established.

We simply can't afford to have suspicious-looking unions running around loose. When their charters are in any way involved, the whole case should be brought to a head to determine whether or not the organization under suspicion is in legal truth still a union or not.

Only by requiring as much responsibility of a union as we require of any other type of corporate enterprise or service organization can we ever hope to have better management of labor.

Federal Aid to Education?

The self-seeking pressure groups are now renewing their pleadings that billions must be immediately spent by the Federal Government to build and equip schools all over the country. Otherwise, it is asserted we will consign American youth to a barren wasteland of intellectual starvation.

To create the impression that there is no room for legitimate concern regarding classroom shortages in some isolated areas would be erroneous. However, I refuse to believe that the picture is all black and as frightening as it has been painted by those professional alarmists and socialist-inclined pressure groups who have already had far too much influence on the Washington scene in recent years. The proposition that every little local eruption becomes a pressing national crisis, I find difficult to accept. I reject the idea that most eruption cannot be met at the local level by local initiative. I would be derelict in my duty and just as much a failure to the trust of my constituents, if I allowed myself to be stampeded by the high-powered and well-financed propaganda of these people who are actually, though not directly, sponsoring legislation calling for Federal aid to education.

In an effort to determine the extent of alleged classroom shortages, I addressed a query to the Governors of the 48 states. Of 27 replies, 12 expressed unequivocal opposition to Federal aid for school construction; 2 were opposed with qualification; 6 favored without qualification; 5 favored with qualification. Two Governors responded with no comment. All reservations were based on the probability of Government interference with the public school system; indeed, there can be no Federal participation without Federal control—the historical evidence on this point is indisputable. This survey, and other research, have proved beyond a doubt that there is no classroom shortage today to cause national concern.

Interestingly enough, the newspaper columnist, Stewart Alsop, a favorite of these professional alarmists, made this observation in the Washington Post-Times Herald, May 15, after a survey of school conditions in Anne Arundel and Baltimore counties: "And surely there is something to be said for the notion that the citizens of Maryland, or any other state, should be financially responsible for the education of their children. These, at least, were the impressions this reporter brought back from an admittedly superficial 1st hand look at the school problem. And there was one more impression—that the teachers and officials I met, all admirable people, were a little too much interested in the buildings the children were taught in, and not enough in what they were taught."

Time To Side Dress Corn With Nitrogen

Since most of Maryland's corn crop has been planted any additional fertilizer for this crop will have to be applied as a side dressing. To get high yields of corn, it is necessary to fertilize liberally with nitrogen and at the right time. Cutting down to fertilizer is not the way to get a good corn crop, says John Carter, county agent.

Nitrogen for side dressing is commonly used, in the form of anhydrous ammonia, nitrogen solutions, ammonium nitrate, urea, sulfate of ammonia or any of several others. The cost per pound of nitrogen as applied to the soil should be the basis of choice. The cost of labor and equipment will affect the cost of application. If only small amounts of fertilizer were used at planting time, it may be advisable to side dress the corn with a complete fertilizer, such as 10-10-10, instead of straight nitrogen material.

Application is usually made with the fertilizer attachment for the tractor-cultivator, which places the fertilizer in a band about 6 inches on one or both sides of the row. Other machinery may be used. The depth for solid nitrogen fertilizers does not matter much. Anhydrous ammonia and nitrogen solutions, however, require tanks and applicators. A 4-year average of yields on demonstration plots showed an increase of 7 bushels per acre for 10 pounds of nitrogen, a return of about $2 for $1 invested in fertilizer. Some corn growers have doubled this increase in yield.

Corn should be side dressed when corn is 12 to 24 inches tall. If young corn plants appear yellow-green, nitrogen deficiency is indicated. In some heavy soils where only a little manure has been applied, side dressing pays well. On light sandy soils, it usually helps. Side dressing with nitrogen also helps greatly on corn not preceded by a legume crop. If all of a cover crop or a sod is turned over, nitrogen is needed to prevent deficiencies, in general, 25 to 50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre is required.

The county agent's office can supply you with a copy of University of Maryland Agronomy Mimeo No. 67 "Nitrogen Side Dressing of Field Corn," Fact sheet 65, Anhydrous Ammonia and Nitrogen Solutions," and Fact Sheet No. 98, "Plant Food Removal by Field Crops." These will give further helpful details on corn growing.

Maryland Society of Akron Plans Annual Picnic

Additional social security amounts paid to individuals in Garrett county in the first six months of 1957 amounted to $58,213.20, according to an announcement from the administration office in Cumberland.

This figure did not include the current monthly payments awarded prior to January, 1957, but are additional payments based on new claims filed.

The new claims included those who obtained coverage as self employed farmers and younger women. Women may now elect to claim benefits at age 62.

Total monthly payments to all claimants in this county in December, 1956, were $57,209. The monthly total as of July, 1957, is $56,911.

Garrett county beneficiaries are now receiving over one half million dollars in social security payments.

Oakland Country Club News

By JOHN FOX

Our Nassau match with Uniontown is over, and some of the older club members tell me it's the first time in the history of the club that too many Oakland players wanted to play. About seven of our players did not get to compete since Uniontown didn't have enough team members with them. Nevertheless, they did bring enough players to beat us 28½ to 19. Bud Kelley and Bill Conn were our only players to win all three of their points, while Jim and Bob Kreyenbuhl had our best total scores, each having a 77. After the match, dinner was served to 87 players and guests.

Bob Seefeld has completed setting up the handicap cards, and each player is requested to fill in his own scores during the season. Bob is also responsible for the new rain shelter on the barn plus the glass doors beneath. These doors will eventually house two electric carts to be used by Bob Seefeld and Ralph Pritts. Our caddies must feel the same way that horses did when cars became popular.

The new distance markers on the course indicate 200 yards from the tee and 150 yards from the green. Jim Kelley and some others at the paper mill made these for the club.

Did you know that you may not improve the lie of your ball by moving, breaking, or bending growing vegetation. In match play you automatically lose the hole. In stroke play, the penalty is two strokes. You can, however, move loose natural impediments like tree branches, fallen leaves, or loose stones although if you move the ball in so doing it costs you a stroke. Moving loose impediments is not permissible in hazards.

Hazards are bunkers (sand traps), bodies of water, any water course, or ditch.

There are strong mutterings on Wednesdays (which is ladies' day). The girls say that greenskeeper Jim Kreyenbuhl is a misogonist. Also on Wednesday the ladies hold a Blind Partner tournament. Ellen Seefeld and Louise Oss won first prize while Hilda and Linda Pritts came in second. Ida Davidson and Fink Ruckert won the 9 hole contest.

Gnegy-Friend Ceremony Solemnized

Miss Catherine Friend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Friend, of Loch Lynn Heights, became the bride of John E. Gnegy, son of C. C. Gnegy, of Mt. Lake Park, and Mrs. Zelda Gnegy, of Chevy Chase, in an open church wedding, Saturday morning, June 15 at 11 a. m., in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland. Rev. Charles W. Carlson, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Nelson Swartzentruber, nephew of the bride, served as acolyte. The altar was decorated with vases of white carnations and baby's breath.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Donald Smeell presented a program of nuptial music and also accompanied Miss Sandra Pangh who sang, "I Love You Truly," and played the traditional wedding marches.

The bride, given in marriage by Donna Miller, Mt. Lake Park, matron of honor, Janet Adkins and Ieta with a front panel of Chantilly lace in the full sweeping skirt. The tiled bodice of lace and net featured a neckline sparkled with sequins and pearls with short sleeves and matching gauntlets. Her veil of nylon net fell from a Juliet cap crown. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and lily of the valley with ribbon streamers.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Donna Miller, Mt. Lake Park, matron of honor, Janet Adkins and Peggy Springirth, bridesmaids both of Washington, D. C., Linda Gnegy and Nancy Pangh, nieces of the bride were flower girls and Frank Friend, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer. Samuel Friend, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Lee Miller, Mt. Lake Park, and Lawrence Springirth, Washington.

Mrs. Miller wore a ballerina length dress of aqua chiffon and carried a nosegay of yellow and white carnations. The bridesmaids, whose gowns were the same style, in pale pink chiffon, carried nosegays of pink and white carnations. The flower girls wore dresses of pale pink organdy with puffed sleeves, full gathered skirts and carried baskets of rose petals.

The mother of the bride was attired in a mauve dress with white accessories. The mother of the groom wore baby blue with navy accessories. Both ware orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. The bride's table was centered with a square wedding cake, topped with a minature bride and groom and two vases of pink roses. Mrs. Junior Pangh and Mrs. Edward Gnegy served the cake, while Mrs. W. A. Swartzentruber presided at the punch bowl.

The couple left for a honeymoon trip to Miami, Fla. For traveling the bride chose a mint green princess style dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of white rosebuds.

The couple will reside in New York.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Verna and family, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. David Lyon, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ricketts and family, Chevy Chase; Mrs. Howard Friend and daughter, Betty Broaddus and Alma Carter, Washington.

Newspapers recalled it had been 20 years July 2 since Amelia Earhart, noted flyer, vanished without trace in Pacific.

Listen, Americans

By GEORGE S. RENSON

The United States Department of Commerce last week published the results of a study showing that American corporation profits, before taxes, amounted to a slightly larger figure in the last fiscal year than in the year previous. This means that more wealth has been created, more jobs created, a stimulus given to the living standard of every citizen.

And yet because of misunderstandings and deliberate warping of the facts, the Leftwing forces in America always capitalize on announcements of rising corporation profits. A recent editoral in the Cleveland Plain Dealer teaches an important lesson on profits. It was entitled: "The Million Dollar Lathe."

Thompson Products (said the editorial) for the 18th year has continued its commendable custom of furnishing its employees with a simple, concise report of its financial operations showing how much money the company took in and what happened to it. The income for 1956 totaled $306,508,120. Expenses, not including wages, salaries or dividends, were $175,535,061, leaving $130,973,059 to be divided among employees and stockholders. Of this, $117,960,454 went for payrolls, $4,183,904 was paid out in dividends and $8,828,701 was plowed back into the business.

Why was it necessary to plow that much back into the business? The tale of the million-dollar turret lathe, included in the report, explains that. It seems that in 1942 the company bought a lathe for $12,000. Under Federal tax laws, it was permitted to depreciate the cost of the lathe over a 14-year period.

Last year when the lathe became obsolete, the company had $12,000 to buy a new one, plus $100 which was the resale value of the old one. But the replacement cost in 1956 was $35,000 for a lathe that would perform the same functions as the old model or $67,000 for a new one with attachments to meet today's more exacting needs. The company had only $13,000 to do a $67,000 job. The difference of $54,000 had to come out of profits, and in order to get the amount in 1956, the company had to earn a profit of more than $112,500 before taxes, because $54,000 was all there was left after the government took its corporate profit tax of 52 percent.

To earn that amount of profit, the company had to sell more than a million and a quarter dollars worth of products to customers. It took more than $1,250,000 of sales to buy just one machine! Thus, while $112,500 sounds like a lot of profit, in this case the stockholders got none of it. The government took more than half, and the rest went to replace a machine so three Thompson people —one per shift—could continue working.

This is something to think about when agitators scream about high croporate profits. No profits, no new machines, no jobs.

Frazee - Younkin—Miss Eleanora Ruth Younkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Younkin, Grantsville, became the bride of I. Dale Frazee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn D. Frazee, Friendsville, on Sunday, June 9

The double ring ceremony was solemnized in the Grantsville Lutheran church with Rev. C. Edward Noel, pastor, officiating.

The altar, lighted with candles, was decorated with carnations and ferns and baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons.

Mrs. Harold Miller, organist, played a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Pat Werner, Salisbury, who sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd," "Lord, Who at Cana's Wedding Feast," and "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a ballerina-length gown of net and Chantilly lace fashioned with a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves pointed over the hands. Her fingertip veil of French illusion tulle fell from a tiara of rhinestones and seed pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with Mamie Eisenhower carnations with satin ribbon streamers tied in love knots.

Miss Joyce Ann McKenzie, of Grantsville, was maid of honor, wearing a ballerina length gown of blue chiffon with matching tiara of flowers and net. Miss Kathleen Younkin and Miss JoAnne Younkin, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids, wearing pastel colored gowns of lace and net with tiaras of flowers and net. They carried bonquets of carnations.

Listen Americans!

BY GEORGE S. BENSON

President of Harding College

When all the lesser debates and arguments are pushed aside, the very heart of the issue between Socialism and Capitalism lies in the question: Who shall own property; who shall own and operate the instruments of production and distribution? Shall it be private individuals or government? Karl Marx was a Socialist. The Communism which he espoused was merely a form of Socialism. Marx wrote in the Communist Manifesto: "The theory of Communists may be summed up in a single sentence: Abolition of private property."

Webster's Collegiate Dictionary defines Socialism: "A political and economic theory . . . based on . . . government ownership . . . of the essential means for the production and distribution of goods . . . " Herbert A. Philbrick, who worked for nine years as a secret FBI agent in the Communist underground and who now is a columnist with the New York Herald Tribune, says that at the last meeting of the Red bosses in the Kremlin instructions went out to the powerful Communist underground apparatus in the United States to "exploit every opportunity" for "cooperative activity between the party and pro-democratic forces" in order to "advance the cause of Socialism."

The chief method for "advancing the cause of Socialism" in the United States is to work for government or "public" ownership of the means of production and distribution.

In 30 years we have seen government ownership of electric power facilities jump from virtually zero to nearly 20 per cent of the entire industry. Sen. Karl E. Mundt, who spoke at our recent Freedom Forum, says the forces of Socialism in America are very powerful and they will make a supreme effort in the next few years to gain dominant control of the electric power industry.

"I don't think for a minute," said Senator Mundt, "that you will ever have a complete monopoly of power by politicians in this country (government ownership) and have at the same time a privately operated appliance industry. If we socialize power, we will wrap the package up and say, 'Let's go socialistic all the way'."

Two weeks after Senator Mundt made these remarks, I noticed in the newspapers that the forces working for government ownership are back again in Congress trying to rescind the Interior Department's authorization for a privately owned hydroelectric poject at Hell's Canyon on Idaho's Snake River. Private companies already have spent millions on the initial phase of a three-dam project, and yet the government-ownership advocates want to scuttle this work and spend $500 million in Federal funds from taxpayers all over the nation. Only citizen interest and action can halt further successes by those who want Government ownership, which means ultimately a lower standard of living for us all, and a continuing loss of freedom for us all.

Senate Cloakroom

By J. GLENN BEALL

United States Senator from Maryland

Two years ago - - - on June 30, 1955 - - - the Second Hoover Commission reported to the Congress that it had found enough possible savings in Government operations "to enable the balancing of the budget and reduction of taxes."

This finding was included in the commission's 20th and final report, which was submitted after an intensive 21-month study of everything from Federal paperwork to water resources and power.

It was a challenging climax to an endeavor which previously had produced a series of recommendations on 497 specific points.

First Commission's Work

As one of the persons instrumental in the creation of the Second Hoover Commission as well as its predecessor, I would like to observe this anniversary period by discussing the work that has been accomplished.

The First Hoover Commission, known officially as the First Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch, worked from 1947 through 1949 on plans for the reorganization of departments and agencies.

Approximately 75 per cent of the proposals made by this group are now in effect.

Administration Approval

The recommendations of the Second Hoover Commission were directed to removing roadblocks to effective orgnization and reduction of expenditures.

According to information I have received from the White House, the status of these suggestions is as follows:

(1) The Administration has accepted 71 per cent of the proposals in whole or in substantial part;

(2) Of these recommendations, 37 per cent have already been implemented, and action is currently being taken on an additional 39 per cent.

Annual Savings

It is impossible to give an accurate estimate of the savings which will result from acceptance of the Second Hoover Commission's ideas, but it is generally agreed that they should amount to several billion dollars per year.

Such saving are obviously the most healthy for our economy, since they stem from increased efficiency rather than from budget cuts—made on an across-the-board basis.

Congressional Action

This fact has been recognized by various Government agencies, where numerous Hoover Commission recommendations have been put into practice by executive order, and also by the Congress, where suggestions requiring Senate and House action have received a quite favorable reception.

In fact, the 84th Congress approved approximately one-third of the Second Hoover Commission's legislative recommendations, and the present 85th Congress is giving careful consideration to many more.

Having given extensive study of each of the commission's reports, I have generally been among the sponsors and supporters of the plans they contain.

I sincerely believe that continued implementation of these proposals will help us obtain a needed tax reduction next year.

NOTES FROM MY APPOINTMENT BOOK - - - In addition to my work on Capitol Hill, I had the honor of addressing a convention of the Tri-State Associaiton, Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World, and of participating in two memorable dedication ceremonies - - one for the new dormitory of the Nar Israel Rabbinical College, in Baltimore and the other for the recently completed Goddard Power Plant, at the Naval Power Factory in Indian Head.

LOOKING FOR GOD

Some say you find God just as well in a garden, in the woods, or on a golf course as in a church—that God is everywhere. But be honest about it.

Are you not more apt to think of weeds, or mosquitoes, or a poor shot than you are of God? And after all, you have made this outing to seek pleasure.

But when you go to church, it is with the specific intention of worshipping. Here you engage in prayer, praise and thanksgiving. Here you mingle with people who are seeking God and have come to feel His presence. In the quiet beauty of a church you find few outside distractions, and you know that this place is dedicated to the service of God.

For peace and happiness which comes from really feeling God's presence, worship in the house of the Lord this Sunday—make it a regular practice.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Woman in Command

Lesson for July 7, 1957

THIRTY-THREE centuries is a long time. Records made 3300 years ago have been broken long since. It would be a rash person to say that a modern Christian woman should stay inside the limits set for women 1300 years before Christ. No person of that far-away time can be a precise model for Christians today.

Dr. Foreman

Nevertheless we can learn something from the ancients.

One question which—oddly enough—has been bothering the race for probably longer than 3300 years, is this: What is woman's place? It is just as absurd a question as the other one which—also oddly enough—is never asked: What is man's place? The odd thing is that we assume that man's place is anywhere, while woman's place is some way limited. We assume that man can go where he pleases, while women have to ask men's permission. This notion is a hangover from ancient times when it really was a man's world far more than now. Nevertheless even in those distant days an able woman could make her own place in the world. Miriam, sister of the famed Moses, is a case in point. She was a woman of a strong mind, a natural leader. There is no "story" of Miriam. There is a story of Joseph, a story of Moses. But the picture of Miriam, like the majority of Bible characters, is drawn with a very few strokes. All we have is glimpses; yet from these we can learn something of an interesting woman.

Smart Girl

Miriam was older than her brother Moses,—not just a year or two older, but old enough, by the time he was born, to manage that business about getting his mother for a nurse. Undoubtedly her mother had coached her for the interview with the princess (see Exodus 2); but all the same, the girl must have had sense. She was smart enough to step up to her Royal Highness just at the right moment. A little too soon, and she would have been shooed off as a little slave-girl coming where she had no right to be. A little too late and the Princess would have chucked the baby back into his sea-going bassinette, or else bundled him off to the palace with one of her own maids. But just at the right instant little Miriam bobs up with the right question.

All the Women Went After Her

On the morning after the night when the Israelites crossed the Red Sea, we meet Miriam again. This time she leads the song of triumph and praise, celebrating the fall of Egypt's might and the liberation of her people. Singing and playing and dancing, she led the women in the celebration of the Lord's victory. Here are two hints about the place of women as leaders. We already had one hint in the story of Moses in the bulrushes: Smart women grow from smart girls; leaders do not come from among stupid people. In the story of Miriam and her victory-song, we have first the hint that a woman can be a most effective leader of women. "All the women went after her," we are told. It is not true that women follow men only; a strong sensible woman has little trouble in securing feminine support. The other hint is that Miriam, in her primitive way if you like, was leader of her people in two respects: she was interpreting for them the great event of the Exodus (just a lucky wind," no doubt some were saying) as an act of God, and she was leading in creative art. It is rather suggested that the "Song of Moses" was at first the Song of Miriam. In short, Miriam took the lead where she could and as she could.

Too Far

And yet this leader could show up in a bad light, as the story in Numbers 12 shows. It appears she had fallen into the blunder made by some dictators since: she tried to run the private affairs of other people. In a way, she could have argued that Moses' marriage was her affair, since she was in the family; and what woman does not feel a natural interest in all marriages, especially those of her own close kin? But the moral is short and clear; When a leader becomes a dictator, even God is no longer patient.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving memory of our dear husband and dad, Floyd Lee, departed who passed away one year ago, July 1, 1956.

Dear Dad you are not forgotten.
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
God knew how much we miss you
He count the tears we shed
And whispers "He only sleeps"
Your loved one is not dead
God gave us strength to bear it
Courage to fight the blow
But what it was to lose you.
No one will ever know.
Always so true, unselfish and kind
Few in the world his equal you'll find.
A beautiful life that came to an end
He died as he lived, everyone's friend.
Sadly missed by his wife.

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde - 6th District, Maryland

I was happy to meet so many of my constituents at the public hearing held by the board of engineers for Rivers and Harbors in Rockville last week. The hearings were part of an Army Engineer Corps survey of the Potomac River ordered by Congress.

I testified in favor of a series of small dams which would better serve the purposes of water conservation, flood control, pollution abatement, and recreation than would high level hydro-electric dams.

It ought to be apparent that a high level dam would soon be obsolete as a source of electric power. With the rapid development of atomic power as a means of production of electric power, high level dams will become expensive white elephants. I can see no justification for the construction of dams for the production of public hydro-electric power in the Potomac Valley.

The only people in favor of the dam are those from Eastern and other sections of Maryland who hope to get cheap electric power. The taxpayer would have to make up the difference between cheap rates and normal fair rates charged by a properly regulated private public utility company. It is also interesting to note that the people who favor these high level dams live in a part of Maryland that would not be damaged by the dams.

Small businessmen will be interested in the House passing and sending to the Senate a bill to make the Small Business Administration a permanent agency of the Government. The bill increases the authorization for loans and reduces the interest rate.

I have introduced a bill which revises the Lobbying Act of 1946. My bill is a companion to one in the Senate and is the result of the work of the Special Senate Committee to investigate lobbying.

DODGE TRUCKS most powerful of low-priced 3

Dodge matches reserve power against truck "C" and truck "F" in this test for safer passing ability. All three are comparably equipped and loaded with 1000 lbs. A skilled test driver is behind each wheel. Here's the flag, they're off!

Dodge takes an early lead and at 30 m.p.h. is widening the gap. Truck "C" and truck "F" are straining to deliver their peak performance. But that Dodge 201-hp. V-8 keeps gaining easily. Its added power means less wear, fewer repairs, too.

In just one quarter mile Dodge is five lengths ahead of truck "C", seven lengths out front of truck "F". And this is but one of a complete series of actual road tests that prove Dodge the outstanding value of the low-priced three.

"FORTY-FOUR YEARS OF THE LIFE OF A HUNTER" by Meshack Browning, Maryland's famous pioneer hunter, is now available.
Although it was first published 98 years ago and is now in its 12th edition, it is more widely read than ever before.
His truthful accounts of desperate encounters with the savage beasts of the forest, his superhuman efforts to maintain his family in the wilderness, far from human aid or associations, and his undaunted courage in facing the hardships of pioneer life cannot fail to captivate the reader.
It really deserves a place in every Marylander's library.

VOLUME 81. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., JULY 11, 1957. PER COPY, 8c NUMBER 19.

SIGNING ON DOTTED LINE—Civil defense officials watch Mayor Russell L. Smith of Oakland as he signs a proclamation proclaiming the fifth anniversary of "Operation Skywatch," Sunday, July 14, as Ground Observer Corps day. At the same time he called upon citizens and organized groups in the area to manifest their devotion as Americans by paying homage to the patriotic civilian volunteer members of the ground observer corps and to enjoin all citizens capable of doing so to volunteer their services as members of the corps to their local civil defense organizations. Mr. Smith pointed out that the ground observer corps is called upon to watch the skies and provide assistance in warning people of any impending aerial assault by an enemy and that there was a continuing need for vigilance. Others in the picture are, left to right, Rev. John J. Atwell, Oakland's director of civil defense and county coordinator of the ground observer corps; T. Sgt. J. P. Hodge, from the Pittsburgh air defense filter center; and Fred Tichnell, director of civil defense for Garrett county.

Improvements Discussed By School Board

New Teachers Appointed And Purchase Of Supplies Approved

Discussion of improvements to school property, appointment of additional teachers, and approval of purchase of supplies and equipment for various schools, were among the items disposed of at the regular meeting of the Board of Education on Tuesday.

Five teacher appointments were approved which leaves only two vacancies in the county at the present time.

Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent, said the board approved appointment of Burhl D. Sisler, Southern High; Mary F. Martz, Mrs. Lucille H. Sines, Northern High; Mrs. Dorothy Filsinger, Bittinger Elementary; Arline Thacker, Grantsville Elementary.

Resignations were accepted from Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Hogue, and Mrs. Lillian Wall. Mrs. Mary S. McKenzie was granted a year's leave of absence due to illness.

The two vacancies are those due to resignation of Mr. and Mrs. Hogue at Southern. Mr. Hawkins said he expected to fill these vacancies within the near future.

Improvements Planned

Projected improvements discussed by the board included a hard surfaced playground for Kitzmiller, Grantsville, Friendsville, Accident and Red House; covered walkways between shops and main building at both Northern and Southern; and construction, as soon as funds are available, of instrumental music room for Southern.

Mr. Hawkins said funds would be available for the playground surfaces and walkways this year and felt perhaps by another year funds would be available for the music room. He explained that many students take instrumental music, and that the present room is inadequate and also very annoying because of the constant playing of instruments in the poorly soundproofed band room.

Purchase of supplies and equipment was approved. This included a new piano for Southern and Northern, a dozen victrolas for

Wins Fellowship

Edward Carroll Sisler, of Raleigh, N. C., a graduate student at North Carolina State college, has been selected to receive the E. G. Moss Fellowship in tobacco research at the college for the 1957-58 academic year.

Selection of Sisler for the award was announced by the director of agriculture. The fellowship is sponsored by the North Carolina State Grange in memory of the late E. G. Moss, longtime superintendent of the Oxford Tobacco Research Station and pioneer in tobacco research in North Carolina.

Sisler is a candidate for a Ph.D. degree in plant physiology in State college.

Born in Friendsville in 1930, Sisler attended the University of Maryland where he was awarded the bachelor's degree in 1954, and the Master of Science degree in 1955, majoring in botany. He entered the graduate school at North Carolina state in September, 1955 and has been doing research in tobacco physiology. His project deals with a study of the respiratory systems in tobacco.

Mr. Sisler is a member of Phi Kappa Phi national scholarship society and was recently elected as associate member of Sigma Xi, national research honorary society by the State college chapter.

Auditor Suggestions Received Monday By Commissioners

Recommendations of the auditors in regard to the records of the Roads Department of the County Commissioners were received Monday in the Roads office.

A report of the financial records of the Commissioners, treasurer and roads department for the two years ending December 31, 1956, were received by the Commissioners several weeks ago, along with recommendations suggested to them for improving the system of keeping accounts in their office, but the suggestions for the Roads office were not received until this week.

As in the previous report the auditors declared they had "not meant to be critical" but had intended their comments "to be constructive."

W. W. DeWitt, county roads engineer, said that the recommendations mostly concerned making all bookkeeping records in line with the double entry system, and that most of the recommendations had been made in line with suggestions made by the assistant engineer and clerk in the Roads Department office to the auditors at the time the audit was being conducted several months ago.

Mr. DeWitt said they had already contacted the auditors in Baltimore, asking that they come to the county at their earliest convenience and set up the system in line with their recommendations.

H. D. Swartzentruber, president of the County Commissioners, said that the complete audit and recommendations were on file in the office of the County Commissioners and in the Roads department, and could be inspected by any interested taxpayer during regular office hours.

Unusual Mishap Takes Life of Artie E. Dodge

A prominent 65-year-old dairy farmer accidentally killed himself Monday morning at his home near Red House.

Artie Earl Dodge was shot in the head when a .22 caliber rifle he was attempting to pull from a small dark closet discharged.

Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, deputy medical examiner for the county, who was called to investigate, issued a verdict of accidental death. Stephen R. Pagenhardt, state's attorney, Sheriff James E. Frantz, and Trooper Robert D. Henline of the state police, also investigated the mishap.

Mr. Dodge's wife, Mrs. Hazel Mosser Dodge, said her husband had found some dead chickens in the yard and had gone to the closet to get the rifle. She said he planned to wait on the porch and see if he could shoot the animal that was killing his poultry.

Mrs. Dodge was upstairs when she heard the muffled report of the gun. She ran downstairs and found her husband lying in the closet. Authorities said the gun was tangled up in some string or fishing line and when Mr. Dodge pulled on the rifle it discharged.

Dr. A. E. Mance was called immediately but Mr. Dodge was dead when he arrived.

Deceased was born at Terra Alta, W. Va., a son of the late Daniel W. and Huldah Harned Dodge, and had resided in this county for the past 53 years.

He was a member of St. John's Lutheran church and the Knights of Pythias lodge at Oakland.

Surviving, in addition to his widow, are two daughters, Mrs. Kathleen Keiper, of Lewiston, N. Y.; Mrs. Leona Jones, Whittier, Calif.; a son, E. Robert Dodge, Oakland, a brother, W. R. Dodge, Kingwood, W. Va.; two sisters, Mrs. Dessie Wolfe Skinner, Melbourne, Fla.; and Mrs. Cora Shaffer, Red House, and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services are being conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock from St. John's Lutheran church with Rev. William A. Renn, pastor, officiating. Interment will be the church cemetery.

Homemakers Plan Next Year's Program

Program for 1958 is in full swing in the Homemakers clubs of the county. The Project committees have met and considered requests by homemakers, past programs, and have made suggestions for 1958. This week letters went out to each homemaker for her to check for her program desires and needs, and to make suggestions for the program. After checking the program sheet, it will be returned to Miss Ethel Grove, home demonstration agent, for totaling. Results will be sent the county project chairmen, then the program book committee will plan for and assemble the books for 1958.

On July 16th, the Hoyes club will meet at 1:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Catherine McCrobie. Mrs. Emerson Bishoff and Mrs. John Bishoff will present material on "Hair Styles and Care."

Mrs. Hobart Bishoff will give the information on "What Makes a Really Good Painting."

Cement Strike Is Hampering Projects

The nationwide cement strike is already hampering some construction jobs in Maryland and builders will soon find themselves scraping the bottom of the cement sack.

Cement has become scarce in Oakland. This week the construction crews on the new elementary school project gathered up most of the excess. Last night the Beachy Lumber, A. D. Naylor and company and Southern States were almost completely out of cement. Helbig's Mill still had a small quantity and there were still a few sacks at the Oakland Lumber company.

Need Records Bill, State Senator Says

A legal specification that records in Maryland should be accessible to the public struck a personal response in a legislator last Wednesday, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore.

"We need this bill, especially for my county," said Senator Clifford Friend, at a meeting of the Legislative Council's Judiciary committee in Baltimore.

"I have been denied access in the past to certain public records," he is quoted as saying.

He said he had to go to the adjoining county of Allegany for a judge's order in order to see certain records.

The bill declaring official records open to the public was referred to the Legislative Council after being bounced around at the General Assembly earlier this year.

Senator Goldstein, Calvert County Democrat, the sponsor, said, "the public right to know is all I'm interested in. If you want to put in protections, I'm agreeable."

Some opposition has been expressed to making public such records as adoptions and welfare. Sen. Malkus, Dorchester Democrat, the judiciary chairman, also said he wanted to be "careful about busybodies and gossip seekers."

The Maryland Press association, in whose behalf Goldstein said he introduced the bill, requested the committee to delay action until it might work up a substitute. Malkus gave the association until September 1 to offer a new draft.

Goldstein also will offer for study a similar bill signed last week in Pennsylvania. He said about 30 states now have such open record laws.

When contracted by a representative of The Republican about refusal to show records, H. D. Swartzentruber, president of the County Commissioners, said he presumed that the Senator referred to the county Welfare board or adoption records, which are restricted by state law. He said as far as he knew no person had ever been refused permission to inspect public records in the office of the County Commissioners or the County Roads department. People are not permitted to remove records from the offices but they may look at them at any time during the regular office hours, and in the presence of an office employe, he pointed out.

This is considered a mystery thriller and concerns a group of strangers stranded in a boarding house during a snow storm, one of whom is a murdered. Tom Calkins will do the directing and properties will be handled by Joan Therianlt. All of the other summer theatre players will be in the cast, including Bonnie Barton, Sandra Teboe, Joseph Hanrahan, Neil Flanagan, William Pappas, Helen Page Camp, Cris Curran and Peter Mallon.

The play will be given Tuesday through Saturday nights, at 8:30.

1,609 Acres Reforested

Some 1,609 acres of land in the four Western Maryland counties were reforested during the fiscal year which ended June 30, as 1,609,000 trees were planted in the four counties, according to District Forester William H. Johnson.

This was the best reforestation record in Western Maryland since the State Department of Forests and Parks began keeping such records. Some 1,016½ acres were reforested by private individuals and industries. Of this total 938 acres were planted by private individuals and private clubs. Some 16½ acres were reforested by industries and 62 acres by railroads, power companies and other related industries.

Of the 592½ acres of public lands reforested, 501 were on state forests, 48 acres on other state lands and 43½ reforested by towns, public schools and county governments. The breakdown by counties was not available but Johnson said Garrett county had the largest number of acres.

Urge Contributions

An appeal for special funds for disaster relief in Lonisiana, due to the hurricane "Audrey," has been issued by the American Red Cross.

President Eisenhower, in a public message, said the great task of rehabilitation, caring for evacuated persons, sheltering and feeding them, ministering to the sick and injured, would be done by the Red Cross Chapter. Mrs. Kermit Glotfelty, Red Cross campaign chairman, suggested that contributions from this area be sent to the American National Red Cross, Eastern area, 615 North St. Asaph Street, Alexandria, Va.

Much News Eliminated

A number of news stories and letters from county correspondents were either eliminated entirely this week or greatly curtailed because of limited space in this issue.

We will endeavor to use as much of this as possible next week.

A Baltimore man died at 42 after having been unconscious for more than four years after an automobile collision.

Christmas Tree Growers To Meet

The Maryland Christmas Tree Growers association, Inc., will hold its second annual summer meeting at the plantation of Dr. A. E. Mance, north of Oakland, on Wednesday, July 17th. At this time tree growers, and others interested in this industry will gather to hear talks, and observe newest methods and equipment of plantation management. It is planned to have different types of mowers and brush cutting equipment on display as well as the varied accessories of the Christmas tree trade.

Featured as guest speaker will be Russell Denton, Comeaut, O., owner of the Denton Evergreen Nursery. In addition to being a nurseryman for a number of years, Mr. Denton has had wide experience in the production and marketing of trees. A novel feature of this year's program will be the grading demonstration. Members will have a chance to grade the trees according to latest accepted standards and then check their results with the judge's opinion. This is considered especially important for growers who are planning to enter Christmas trees in the competitive exhibit at the Garrett County Fair in August. Growers, and others interested in this activity, are invited to attend the meeting, which gets underway at 12:30 p. m., DST.

Fix Water Line

Oakland residents were without water for several hours last night while workmen repaired a water line which leads from the pump house to the spring house on the city water farm.

The lack of water was not due to any shortage, according to the town official, who said there was an ample water supply, but that it was necessary to repair the line.

Auto On Fire

Oakland firemen were called last Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock to extinguish a fire around the dashboard of an automobile owned by Sam Myers. The fire occurred on the Cherry Creek road, south of town, near the home of Carlton Bowser.

Firemen reported the fire caused damage to the extent of $50. The blaze was caused by shorted wires, the firemen said.

Firemen answered a second alarm this week when a grass fire was thought to be beyond control on a vacant lot between the B and O. tracks and Reese street, in the vicinity of the dead pond, Wednesday afternoon, about 2:30. B. and O. trackmen put out the blaze before the Oakland firemen arrived.

Review of The Play At the Playhouse

By AZA STANTON

There is an expression among theatrical people to describe an actor in a minor role who becomes the focal point of the audience by the use of facial expression, mannerisms and attitudes. They call it "catching flies." In his role as a shy little messenger who, in an awkward effort to deliver a document becomes involved in a bedlam of mistaken identities, young Cris Curran is certainly "catching flies" this week at the Garrett County Playhouse.

The play is "Hands Across The Sea," one of the three one-act comedies comprising this week's playhouse production. "Tonight at 8:30" it is followed by "Fumed Oak," an "unpleasant comedy" in two scenes and "Red Peppers" "an interlude with music".

Beautiful Sandra Teboe, at one moment brilliantly flitting and gushing her way through sitting-room small-talk and endless telephone conversations in "Hands Across The Sea," suddenly becomes a nagging, haggling housewife in "Fumed Oak". Miss Teboe is one of the new members of the Playhouse cast and is, in this writer's opinion, every inch a leading lady.

Hats off to Tom Calkins who not only so ably directed "Tonight at 8:30," but plays the leading role in "Fumed Oak", the story of a man harassed for fifteen years by a nagging wife (Sandra Teboe), a grumbling mother-in-law (Bonnie Barton), and simpering daughter (Helen Page Camp). With superb support from all three women in the cast, he plays the part as only Tom Calkins could play it.

Although returning for her third season with the Playhouse, it still amazes me how Bonnie Barton manages to be such a lovely young thing one minute and such a haggard old woman the next. In "Tonight at 8:30", Miss Barton's skill in both makeup and acting is everything we've come to expect of her—and more!

Helen Page Camp provides a priceless performance in each segment of "Tonight at 8:30" Those of us who have watched her remarkable talent in action in the past two years were certainly not disappointed this week. Garbed in her usual outlandish manner, Miss Camp romps through three different characterizations. Hilariously funny as the daughter in "Fumed Oak", she and Neil Flanagan argue incessantly in delightful cockney accents with each other and everybody else in the cast of "Red Peppers." They also do a suitable "hammy" vaudeville routine together.

Handsome Joseph Hanrahan and pretty, perky Joan Therianlt play supporting roles in this week's production, but it is apparent that they both possess splendid ability. Also included in the supporting cast were William G. Pappas and Peter Mallon who handled their respective roles quite well.

At first thought it would seem confusing to be confronted with three one-act plays the same evening, but they are united by the wit and inimitable writing style of Noel Coward. Actually the choice is sheer genius on the part of Producer Gene Yell who succeeds admirably in presenting his entire cast in widely diversified characterizations. There is no question in one's mind, after seeing "Tonight At 8:30," that this Garrett County Playhouse cast is remarkably good.

An angry man is Sylvester T. Bly,
Who today was sold a piece of "blue sky."
He'd stepped in a showroom—out of the rain,
Was sold a new car before he could explain!

How he hated the styling—so high and square
And in new features it was really bare.
"I got a real bargain—the buy of my life—
But how do I ever convince my own wife?"

Moral: You're paying for a new car...make sure you get one!

When you buy a new car, put your money on tomorrow—not yesterday. Swept-Wing Dodge actually obsoletes other cars in its field. Should you invest in high, boxy styling when Dodge offers the low, low look of tomorrow? Should you invest in outmoded coil springs when Dodge offers new Torsion-Aire Ride? Should you invest in an old-fashioned lever-type transmission when Dodge offers the ease of Push-Button Driving? In other things, too—engines, brakes, interiors—Dodge is years ahead. So put your money on tomorrow. See your Dodge dealer. Join the swing to the Swept-Wing Dodge!

Getting a birdie on No. 9 hole isn't the least bit unusual, but just to be different, Becky Teets, literally got one. She sheed off the tee and as the ball was headed for the rough it "hit" a bird and bounced back to the fairway. We may name this column "Can You Top This".

Reports on Schools

The board inspected the new elementary building at Oakland and the repair work at Crellin, Bloomington and Deer Park, and surveyed the possibility of the purchase of additional land for the Bloomington school.

Mr. Hawkins said that progress was being made on the painting, repair and renovation of schools but that a lot remained to be done before the work would be completed. He said the renovation of the Yoder school was complete. The board is furnishing material and patrons are constructing a fence around the school property. Purchase of additional land from Milton E. Yoder for Yoder school for $200 was approved.

He also reported satisfactory progress on the route 40 school. Wesley Altman, architect, has inspected both schools now under construction and said the quality of workmanship was high.

The high bid of $255 by John H. Michaels for the sale of the West Vindex school was accepted. Other bids were Mrs. Margaret R. Cook, $250; Haven DeWitt, $150.

The board approved an increase in amount of fire insurance now carried on school buildings in the net amount of $116,700.

Procedure for approval of selection of substitute school bus drivers was discussed. The procedure requiring physical examination, tests in handling school equipment, study of rules concerning bus drivers, complete knowledge of route to be covered, requirements that drivers be neat and clean and able to get along well with school children, and approval of school principal were all approved as prerequisites for approval.

Mr. Hawkins said he would attend the annual meeting of the Associated Public School Systems in New York, July 29 to August 2.

It Runs Through My Mind

BY POLLY J. HANSY

Modern Invention

This week I had a letter from a farm woman asking if I had ever found a pea sheller that was satisfactory.

Since she didn't sign her name I will answer her through this column. I am glad to report on a gadget that is most satisfactory. It's a flexible implement attached to a handle called an arm. It has five moveable parts, four in a group and one off to the side. The part that is off side works better with a nail on the end, although I must say, with a half day's use it may need re-filing. That is, if there's anything left of it.

Now in our household we find this implement works better in units rather than single handed. The amazing thing is that there are no two alike, yet they produce exactly the same results. A pair of these may be long, slender and graceful with every nail the same length and tapered to perfection, while another may be strong, stubby and not a nail in sight. In this case there is automatic motivation which gives the pod a twist that all but pops the peas in the pan.

These pea shellers need a lubrication although one of ours is well oiled with printer's ink. I growl a good bit about printer's ink when it comes to door facings, hand towels and wash hasins, but when it comes on the gadget for shelling peas, I find it has no harmful effect at all.

So flexible is this gadget that it would work just as well without printer's ink. For instance, motor oil, rotenone, wheat chaff or laying mash—most anything will make the moving part more workable.

Get four or five of these going at once and you'll find you're into large scale production and it's as much fun as the coffee break is for the Eskimo.

P.S. This same gadget may be used for seeding cherries.

Lucky Little Girls

Another letter also came this week and I'm using it to show that there are people in every community waiting to do a good job in leadership. Every group yells for more of it.

The letter said in part, "The girls in our rural area are interested in forming a girl scout troop. The ages would be from 8 to 13. Although I have no children of my own in this age group I am very much interested in these girls since I've been teaching their Sunday School class.

"I have had very little scouting experience—but I was in the 4-H club for about 5 years. Could you tell me where I could get the information I'd need to start a local troop? I love to work with crafts, but I have had no formal education except high school and I'm wondering if I could qualify to be a leader. I would not be able to go to school at present but I am willing to do all the reading I can get my fingers on. Could you give me some advice so I can give these eager little girls the right answers to their questions about scouting?

Both scouting and 4-H are fine organizations but the success of either depends upon the leadership and the cooperation of the parents. More help is given lone troops in scouting than was done in earlier years and Garrett county has a full time 4-H club agent who gives much help to the local clubs.

Why don't you write to Girl Scouts of U.S.A., 155 East 44th street, New York 17, and ask for help, and also ask Miss Johanna Magaha to explain 4-H work and let the girls decide which they like the better.

We have examples of fine work in both groups in our county. Cara Weber has done a wonderful job with the Oakland scout troop. It has been a success because she loves the girls and gives a lot of herself. She has good assistants and an active troop committee.

The Bittinger 4-H club has been strong for years. Even their little girls have a know-how and poise that distinguishes them. Again, their leader, Mrs. Lester Smith, loves the girls and gives of herself.

Either organization would be fortunate to have a person like you in their program, and I feel sure those in your group would be lucky little girls.

DODGE outpulls "other two" low-priced trucks!

Here's the scientific way to measure the actual pulling power a truck can deliver to its rear wheels. All three low-priced trucks were hooked up, one by one, to a special dynamometer truck. Each was comparably equipped and test-loaded.

Super-sensitive gauges inside the dynamometer truck register the maximum pull of each truck at 10 m.p.h. Insets in photos above show actual gauge readings in each case. To convert these readings into pounds, simply multiply them by three.

The results are conclusive evidence that Dodge Power Giants give you a third more pulling power than either of the "other two" low-priced makes. And this is just one of a series of tests that prove Dodge is the best truck of the low-priced three.

Wed Last Saturday In Oakland

In a noon ceremony in St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Oakland, last Saturday, July 6, Miss Helen Caroline Patton, of New Orleans, La., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Duncan Patton, of Hollywood, Fla., and summer residents of Highwood, Deep Creek Lake, became the bride of Dr. Robert Harold Cox, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Lynwood Cox, of New Orleans.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John J. Atwell, rector, before an altar banked with rhododendron, and standards of white gladiolas, carnations and roses. Mrs. Neil C. Fraley, Oakland, was organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a Swiss embroidered organdy gown fashioned with a tiered skirt, terminating in a chapel sweep, and a fingertip veil of French illusion cascading from a Juliet cap of matching embroidered organdy. Her bouquet was of Shasta daisies.

She had as her attendants her two cousins, Misses Josephine and Dorothy Eckert, of Pittsburgh, who wore ballerina length frocks of white organdy with trim of light mint green embroidery and taffeta cummerbunds of the same color. They carried cascades of ivy.

The groom's brother, A. Rogers Cox, of New Orleans, was best man, and Robert Zetzmann, Herman Fitzpatrick, of New Orleans, and Alan Douglas, of Cumberland, were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a pink embroidered linen dress with matching picture hat and accessories, with a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses. The groom's mother was attired in a light blue appliqued linen dress with white hat and white accessories. Her bouquet was of white sweetheart roses.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Mt. Lake Hotel immediately following the ceremony, after which the couple left for a brief honeymoon trip in the Smokey mountains before continuing to New Orleans where Dr. Cox will resume his studies as a specialist in Ear, Nose and Throat.

Among the out of town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Charles Lynwood Cox, Mr. and Mrs. A. Rogers Cox, Robert Zetzmann, Herman Fitzpatrick, of New Orleans; Dr. and Mrs. William Osborn, Dayton, O.; Dr. and Mrs. J. Harold Barnard and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. William Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Eckert, of Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. William L. Forgie and daughter, Miss Priscilla Forgie, Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, Mrs. Addison Jones and Miss Mary Hamilton, of Washington, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of Stephens Junior college, Columbia, Mo., and Sophie Newcomb college in New Orleans. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. She has spent most of her summers on Deep Creek Lake since early childhood.

Dr. Cox is a graduate of the New Orleans Academy, Tulane university and the university's school of medicine. Upon completion of his specialization studies he will practice with his father in New Orleans.

He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and of Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity.

The couple will reside at 4620 Baronne street, New Orleans.

Receipts-Expenses High For Oakland For Past Month

Oakland's receipts for the past month totaled over $20,500, it was learned from a report of the clerk-collector made at the regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening. Expenditures also were substantial.

Receipts included $128.51 from water, $6,086.56 from taxes and $14,114.82 from miscellaneous items, making a total of $20,629.98. The latter item included $4,741.65 from traders' licenses; $5,770.75 from income tax, and $800.99 from parking meters.

Expenditures totaled $11,915.69, which included police protection, $775; street labor, $1,169.43; street supplies, $1,180.62; water supplies, $1,383.78; and capital outlay for water pumps, $2,731.22. After bills are paid the balance in bank totals $14,099.20, according to Mrs. Gladys Nordeck, clerk-collector.

Mostly routine business was conducted by the council. Henry McComas, hospital superintendent, sought a special rate for water used at the hospital, and was asked to get rates paid by other hospitals and present it at the next meeting.

Robert Weeks was granted use of a third parking meter for the Oakland Taxi service, beginning September 1, which would amount to $5.20 per month. The company already has two meters.

Council approved a water tap for Carl Cathell in Leighton addition; agreed to provide a brighter street light at Oak and 6th, at telephone office; agreed to provide more light at Graham's motel at the north edge of town.

Council also agreed to obtain bids for rebuilding of springhouse on water farm. Use of town equipment was approved for S. F. Hamill, for a driveway; W. W. Dawson, for a sidewalk; to be paid for at usual rate; and was denied Sanders Motor Freight, since work was to be done inside. Council said it felt it was not the policy of the town to use it inside of buildings.

Permits were granted to A. R. Kitzmiller to erect a storage building 8x12 on Liberty street; to William E. Naylor to erect a garage 24 by 30 on Alder street, and to Oakland Coca-Cola to erect a building 38x100 in rear of their present plant on Third street.

Council denied a request of Emroy Bolden to furnish a storm sewer at his property on Old Deer Park Road. Council said it would be for the correction of a natural condition "which is not the responsibility of the council."

Sunday movie tax for June amounted to $46.10.

Actress Judy Tyler and husband died in a Wyoming auto crash.

Grantsville Wins Two Over Week-End

Grantsville Sluggers won two games over the week-end in the Pen-Mar league.

On Saturday with Junie Perry enjoying a batting spree the Sluggers won 9-5 over Mt. Savage, and on Sunday they defeated Centerville 9 to 7.

In the first game Perry had a pair of triples and two singles. Keister twirled the nine-hit win for Grantsville and smashed two three-baggers. Other hits were by Tom Milavec, Buckingham, Emeric.

Grantsville overcame a two-run first inning with three in the fourth and never trailed.

In Sunday's game Centerville staged a five-run rally in the ninth inning but this was not enough to overcome the winners. The game ended when Toby Colaw dug a wild throw out of the dirt at first base for the final out. Keister hurled another nine innings and won his second game in as many days. He struck out eight. He also collected three hits including a triple. Toby Colaw hammered a homer and two singles. Milavec also hit a homer with two on base. Centerville nipped a Grantsville rally in the bud in the 6th when a player converted Keister's smash to deep short into a double play after the Sluggers had loaded the bases.

Grantsville has now won eight games and lost eight, and stands fifth in the league.

Betty can laugh at ducklings. She remembers that classic of the Ugly One who grew up to be a stately swan.

Betty laughs because she understands the story. She knows that some people, like ducklings, often scorn someone who is different.

But she knows, too, from her religious training, that there are times when a person must face the scorn of others and be different. In fact, already she has found that a primary aim of Christianity is to change life for the better . . . to help the individual be different so the world can be different.

Not everyone can laugh at ducklings. Some folks take quite seriously the dread of being different. For instance, there are men and women who don't attend Church, but who would like to. They simply feel awkward about breaking away from an indifference which they think is expected of them.

You can make it easy for the hungry-but-hesitant to attend Church. Always invite someone to worship with you.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

No smaller car is designed or powered to come close to Pontiac's eye-opening performance . . . alert, reflex-action response . . . and its smooth, effortless mastery of every driving demand. Try a demonstration drive—over your own route—in traffic or out on the highway. Put the facts on America's Number One Road Car to a test and you'll leave the little league for good!

WITH 4 TO 7 EXTRA INCHES OF WHEELBASE, PONTIAC OUTCLASSES THE SMALLER CARS IN RIDE AND ROADABILITY!
Pontiac's length is built in—not hung on! Smaller cars extend bumpers and fenders to look big, but Pontiac doesn't need camouflage . . . it is big! Its man-sized 122-inch wheelbase strides over the bumps instead of riding on them. This extra length, plus a carload of new suspension ideas, results in Pontiac's exclusive Level-Line Ride that no car at any price can surpass! Sample a few miles—and you'll never re-enlist in the small-car army again!

YOUR MONEY ACTUALLY BUYS UP TO 8.9% MORE SOLID CAR PER DOLLAR IN A PONTIAC!
The so-called "low-price" cars fall far short of Pontiac in actual, measurable car—and your Pontiac dealer has official specification comparisons to prove it! No smaller car comes even close to Pontiac's rock-solid construction . . . from its rugged X-member frame through every inch of its heavy-duty running gear Pontiac is muscle all the way! This extra heft means Pontiac holds the road like no smaller car you've ever driven . . . gives you a ride remarkably free of bounce, shake and noise! Put all the facts and figures to your own personal road test. Call your own shots and see how Pontiac's Precision-Touch Controls give you steering, braking and parking ease out of reach of the small jobs!

PONTIAC HAS ALWAYS COMMANDED A HIGH TRADE-IN DOLLAR!
When you put your money in a Pontiac you know your investment will be riding high for a long time to come! In fact, over the years, no car has a better reputation for being a top-demand used car. So before you sign on the dotted line for a smaller job at Pontiac's price—get the dollar-stretching good news your Pontiac dealer has waiting for you. Here in the easiest move of your life are the car and the value that will get you out of the small-car class for keeps!

NOW! If you want the ultimate in both economy and extraordinary performance, new Tri-Power Carburation is available at extra cost on even the lowest priced Pontiac models! It's America's newest power advance and exclusively Pontiac's at so low a cost!

"FORTY-FOUR YEARS OF THE LIFE OF A HUNTER" by Meshack Browning, Maryland's famous pioneer hunter is now available. Although it was first published 98 years ago and is now in its 12th edition, it is more widely read than ever before.
His truthful accounts of desperate encounters with the savage beasts of the forest, his superhuman efforts to maintain his family in the wilderness, far from human aid or associations, and his undaunted courage in facing the hardships of pioneer life cannot fail to captivate the reader.
It really deserves a place in every Marylander's library.

Bridge Building . . . .

We have remarked before about the wonderful understanding that is brought among people of various nationalities by the IFYE program.

The program of the International Fellowship Youth Exchange, sponsored by a number of organizations, provides for exchange of outstanding youth of one country with another. Young people from America go to India, Brazil, Holland, Germany, Sweden, Norway and many other countries for a period of six months and live with families of those countries. Youth from those countries come to America and spend the same amount of time with interested families.

They enter fully into the life of each particular family, help with the chores and for the time being are real members of that family.

As a speaker at the older youth conference at Jackson's Mill last month declared: "It helps to build bridges of understanding. It aids in getting the picture of brotherhood in proper focus. It enables us to see each other, not as groups, names or masses, but as individuals. It strengthens the ability to see beyond the face to the heart."

But there is a constant barrier that must be broken down every time a foreign exchange student comes to this country. He has been given a greatly exaggerated picture of life in these United States by moving pictures that are shown throughout the world. Originating in America these pictures always seem to stress divorce, drinking, desperadoes, and crime, living the life of leisure and lavishness and other patterns that are nothing like the true America.

As a girl from Brazil remarked at that camp: "My conception of America and its people was gathered through movies. And when I come here and live among you, you are not like that at all. Why you seem to be as happy and good as anybody else."

Moving pictures have a tremendous opportunity for promoting international understanding, but they must portray Americans as they really are. In the meantime the IFYE program is doing its best to dispel the mist through these actual contacts. It continues to build bridges of understanding. May such a program continue to grow.

Specialists Investigate Leaf Blight On White Oaks After Discovery Here

Blight Is Not Fatal—Pathologist Makes Survey

A leaf blight has attacked the white oaks in Garrett county, but a report from Dr. L. O. Weaver, state pathologist, indicates that the blight is not fatal.

Dr. Weaver was brought to Oakland last week by John H. Carter, county agent, after the latter had received numerous complaints and queries about the disease.

The blight is called "athracnose" and Dr. Weaver pointed out that it was a common disease of sycamore in Maryland each year with the American plane or sycamore being the most susceptible species. However white oak, and at times most other oaks, are subject to the disease.

Dr. Weaver said that spray chemicals must be applied early in the spring if they are to be used for blight control. Since the athracnose disease does not kill trees but weakens them and often makes them unsightly, the decision whether or not to spray depends upon the availability of pressure sprayers and the value placed upon the trees. Dr. Weaver added that if the homeowner decides to spray for athracnose or blight control, he should start early and spray thoroughly with the proper fungicides. It was recommended that all fallen leaves be raked up and burned in the fall since the fungus lives over the winter in the fallen leaves. The fungus also winters.

He emphsized that control measures are rarely attempted on sycamore or oaks growing in open fields or in woodlots, but he felt sprays were justified on valuable shade or ornamental trees.

He further explained: "The first sign of the disease in the spring is the sudden browning and drying of single or clusters of leaves. The leaves appear scorched as if injured by frost, with a browning begining at the margins and usually progressing inward along the veins and midrib. Moderately infected trees show clusters of leaves scattered over the entire tree, which contrast sharply with the unaffected foliage. Blight is causod by the fungus, 'Gnomonea veveta.' Infection is caused by spores of the fungus which are produced in the spring and carried by air currents to young leaves where they cause infection. Rains favor infection. The prevalence and the severity of attack are governed mainly by weather conditions, frequent rains and cool temperatures favoring rapid spread."

Testing For Bangs Disease About Ended

The area test for brucellosis disease among cattle is about completed, it was announced this week by Dr. Donald Glotfelty, veterinarian in the vicinity of the laboratory here.

He revealed that since July 1, 1956, some 14,771 cattle had been tested for brucellosis (Bang's disease.) He said cattle owners had been very cooperative in helping the veterinarians meet the deadline which has been set at August 31.

Dr. Glotfelty said that all adult animals except steers must be tested within this period in order for the county to become an accredited county. He said that the rate of infection at present is very low. He estimated that there were less than 1,000 cattle still to be tested.

He stated that the accreditation of the county depends upon getting the few remaining herds tested prior to the deadline. He said that if a dairyman's herd had not been tested as of this date to check the classified advertisements in this week's Republican, concerning a notice about testing.

Dr. Glotfelty said he had recently received a notice stating that Garrett county had been accredited for tuberculosis, effective March 1, which remains in effect for a period of three years. The notification was received from the Federal government agency.

BLOCK NUMBER 2,000—Block layers are shown laying the final block in the new barracks at the Boy Scout camp on Deep Creek Lake, which was raised in one day's time by some thirty-five members of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions club and seven volunteer members. The building will be roofed this week and will be available for the scouts' use when they go to camp this Sunday for a two week's period.

Kottcamp, governor of the 735th district of Rotary International, who is making his annual official visit to each of the 42 Rotary clubs in parts of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, will be the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Oakland Rotary club on Friday evening, July 19. Following the dinner meeting he will also confer with Willard L. Hawkins, club president; Robert T. Hoffman, club secretary, and committee chairmen of administration and service activities.

Mr. Kottcamp is president of a mechanical construction company in Chambersburg, Pa., and is a past president of the Chambersburg Rotary club. He is also past president of the Chamber of Commerce there and a former member of the board of directors of the Chambersburg hospital.

He is a past burgess of the Borough of Chambersburg, a former director of civil defense and was chairman of the Chambersburg recreation board.

There are Rotary clubs in 102 countries throughout the free world.

Discussion Is Held On Watershed Job

The forestry aspect of the Little Youghiogheny Watershed project in the vicinity of Oakland was being discussed this week.

William H. Johnson, district forester, said he was conferring with Frank Paradise, of Upper Darby, Pa., watershed expert with the U. S. Forest Service. Sitting in on the discussions were A. R. Bond, assistant state forester; and R. Thomas Thayer, district forester.

Mr. Paradise is assisting in the formation of the work plan for the watershed project authorized by Public Law 566 which is an agreement of private citizens, local government agencies and the federal government.

The plan will provide for flood control in small watersheds. The project was approved for the Little Youghiogheny river and when completed is expected to provide protection against floods in Oakland and vicinity.

The program calls for a series of small dams and reforestation of marginal lands to improve the water holding capacity of present forest vegetation by more intense management of the areas. The dam building will be under the supervision of the soil conservation service, as well as widening of the stream of the Little Youghiogheny west of Oakland. Work on this part of the project will begin when rights of way and easements agreements are completed.

Sponsors of the total program in the county are the Mayor and town Council of Oakland, the Board of County Commissioners, the Soil Conservation Service and the Forestry Board.

Cool Nights, Warm Days Prevail Here

Cool nights and fairly warm days have prevailed through most of the present week in Garrett County.

There was a light rainfall early Sunday morning but skies cleared later in the day. Temperatures at night have drooped to the low fifties and top forties.

The ground is rather dry, but thus far crops and gardens do not seem to have been retarded. There were predictions that the week-end would bring showers.

Deer Park Firemen Inaugurate Fund Raising Campaign

The Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department, Inc., has inaugurated a fund raising campaign, in an effort to obtain money to purchase much needed equipment.

Letters concerning this campaign are being mailed this week to citizens throughout the area.

William E. Clatterbuck, campaign manager, explained that in 1954 the department placed in service a 1952 model truck with a water capacity of 800 gallons, and in the summer of 1955 completed a 24 by 40 addition to the department building suitable for housing the tank truck. An inhalator also was added.

He said the company was still desperately in need of many items, additional fire hose, and protective clothing being just two of the items.

To Sponsor Carnival

The firemen will sponsor their annual street carnival July 31 through August 3 with a parade being featured Thursday, August 1, 7:30 p. m. Some two dozen fire companies, bands, auxiliaries and marching units are expected to participate. Expected are bands from Frostburg, Southern High, Terra Alta, and Oakland, plus fire companies from Frostburg, Confluence, Grantsville, Bruceton, Brandonville, Terra Alta, Bowman's Addition, Kingwood, Accident, Thomas, Oakland, Davis, Parsons, Clarysville, Tunnelton, Bayard, Newburg, Friendsville, and Rowlesburg.

At a recent meeting Glenn D. O'Brien, company treasurer, was re-elected representative to the Allegany-Garrett County Firemen's association, a position he has held for the past four years. George Comp, Jr., company secretary, who was president of the two-county group last year, was also recently elected as a member of the executive committee of the Maryland State Firemen's association.

"Bus Stop" Is Third Play Coming Up

"Bus Stop," by William Inge, will be the third play to be presented by the Summer Theatre players, beginning next Tuesday evening.

The second play, "The Mousetrap," will give its third performance this evening at the playhouse at McHenry, and will continue until Saturday night. The plays have been well attended, the barn being filled almost to capacity last Saturday night.

Director Gene Yell said next week's presentation was a popular Broadway play, presently being made into a movie with Marilyn Monroe in the star role. Next week Sandra Tehoe and Cris Curran will have the lead role with all the other members of the cast participating except Tom Calkins and Joan Therlault. "Bus Stop" is listed as an uproarious comedy that strays from the truth.

Performances are held Tuesday through Saturday, beginning at 8:30, at the former Arden Boat club at McHenry.

6800 New Telephone Books Distributed

Delivery of Garrett County's new telephone directory was completed this week. Approximately 6,800 new 1957 books have been delivered to homes and businesses throughout the county as compared throughout the county as compared to 6,000 delivered last year. Indication of the growth throughout the surrounding area is the increase of over 375 new listings in the alphabetical section of the directory.

C. L. Stem, local manager stated; "Telephone users will note that all telephones in Garrett County are now on the 2 letter, 5 numoral plan, to conform with the nationwide numbering system. This will eventually make it possible for telephone users to dial their own long distance calls."

Stem also pointed out, "since there are a great many changes in telephone numbers, it is important that users look up all numbers desired before calling." Old books should be destroyed.

On the information pages in the front of the book there is a note on the new Maryland law regarding the refusal to relinquish the use of a party line immediately when informed that it is needed for an emergency call. The law, in effect since June 1, defines "emergency" as "a situation in which property or human life are in jeopardy, and the prompt summoning of aid is essential."

Featuring the Maryland State House on its cover and a new type of easier to read print in its interior, the directory lists all telephone numbers currently in use.

Local Lions Raise Boy Scout Barracks In Day's Time

Some thirty-five members of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions club, with the assistance of seven volunteer stone masons, exerted a mighty effort last Sunday and produced a 30 by 70 building, that will be used as sleeping quarters at the Oakland Boy Scout camp.

A footer for the building was completed several days prior to Sunday. At 7:30 a. m. Sunday the swarm of Lions descended upon the camp and when they called off work at 5:30 p. m. there had been 2,000 blocks placed in position. Seven stone masons contributed their time free of charge and kept the Lions club members busy mixing concrete and carrying the blocks to them. The block layers included Clyde A. Gnegy, Murray Paugh, Jr., Carl Wilson, Dale Harvey, Edward Gnegy, Bud Sliger and John Shillinghurg.

No one member of the Lions club or any one group of members claim any of the credit for the gigantic task. They said it was strictly a club project which had been in the planning stage for about a year. Plans for the structure were drawn by William A. Shirer.

For this year the scouts will use cots and mattresses, but also planned for future use are the construction of bunks, a separate room for toilets and showers, a stone fireplace for days when the weather is inclement, and a separate toilet for visitors.

Sometime during the present week carpenters who also are volunteering their services, will complete the roof, so that it will be ready for occupancy Sunday when the scouts move into the camp for their regular two-week annual encampment.

Cost of the project is being borne by the Lions club.

Approval Given For Flood Survey Of Kitzmiller Area

A preliminary study and survey of the flood control problem at Kitzmiller has been authorized by United States Army Engineers, U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall and Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde announced last Friday in a combined release. Both legislators have been working on the problem for a long time.

The Chief of the Army Engineers has notificed Messrs. Beall and Hyde that the study will deal with the problems of floods caused by the north branch of the Potomac river at Kitzmiller. The study will cover the preparation of plans and cost estimates in sufficient detail to determine whether the project is economically feasible and whether all requirements of the local corporation can be met.

According to the terminology used by the Army Engineers, such a study is known as "the preparation of a Design Memorandum." Col. George B. Sumner, district army engineer, said it would take several months to prepare.

The completion date, as well as the future of the project will depend to a large extent on prompt cooperation from the town of Kitzmiller, Col. Sumner stated. He added that the financial status of Kitzmiller would be studied to determine whether county and state aid might be needed.

Funds for the Kitzmiller project survey have been allotted under authority contained in a law passed last year to cover the construction of small flood control projects not specifically authorized by Congress.

Work on federal action on the local flood problem began several years ago while Senator Beall was congressman from this district. He made several visits to Kitzmiller and on one occasion was accompanied by two Army engineers who made an on-the-spot visual check. At that time there were no federal funds available for immediate relief, but the engineers agreed that the problem could be acute in time of high water. They promised Sen. Beall to pursue the problem further.

Kitzmiller once a thriving center of coal production, has been hard hit by flood waters on several occasions. The worst floods were in 1924 and 1936. At other times the Potomac river has spread over the community, taking toll in property and street damage.

Attempts have been made to build flood walls but to assure permanent flood protection, a larger project is termed necessary.

THE AMERICAN WAY

SKINNING THE SHEEP

By George Peek

The English language, American style, is one of constant change. New words, slogans, quips, maxims, aphorisms, adages and wisecracks are added almost with every tick of the clock.

Some fourteen years ago, in 1943, a veteran of the Congress, Robert L. Doughton, at that time Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, coined a new truism that was just about tops. He uttered it in disapproval of the proposal of the then Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that the Congress authorize more than $10 billion in additional taxes—it was an eloquent speech of just fourteen words. He said:

"You can shear a sheep every year, but you can skin him only once."

Congressman Doughton hadn't been in Washington for 32 years for nothing—he'd been there since 1911. He hadn't been honored with the chairmanship of the most important Congressional Committee solely because of his good looks, with which, incidentally, he was amply endowed. The South Carolina legislator had his ear to the ground and his eyes wide open for every moment he had been at the nation's capital, and throughout his fourscore years he had learned many things. One of the most important of these was that there is a limit to how much a government can tax without destroying enterprise and eventually creating an economic vacuum, leaving little or nothing upon which to levy taxes.

President Coolidge had a reputation of saying very little, but when on rare occasions, he did open his mouth, he generally "said a mouthful." In 1924, he had this to say on taxation:

"The first object of taxation is to secure revenue. When the taxation of large incomes is approached with that in view, the problem is to find a rate which will produce the largest returns. Experience does not show that the higher rate produces the higher revenue. Experience is all in the other way."

With each passing day it becomes increasingly apparent that this nation made a grave error when it adopted the 16th Amendment (Income Tax) without putting a limit as to the percentage the Congress could levy on incomes, inheritances, and gifts. This failure to put a ceiling has had the effect of encouraging wasteful government spending and of pulling the Federal Government into many businesses in competition with private enterprise.

Many bills are now before the Congress and before several of the individual States, calling for either outright repeal of the 16th Amendment, or amending it to put a limit as to the tax percentage Congress can levy on incomes, inheritances and gifts, except in the case of war creating a national emergency. In the latter event, the limitation could be temporarily suspended by a three-quarters vote of each House of Congress.

We have come pretty close to skinning the sheep, and in so doing are bordering on adopting two of the major planks as set forth in the Communist Manifesto of Karl Marx, to wit: A heavy or progressive or gradnated income tax to level off incomes; and the abolition of all right of inheritance. We spend billions to combat Communism abroad, further billions at home for security against it, the while we permit communization of our own economy. The Russian high command must be "laughing up their sleeves" as they observe this ridiculous performance.

All thinking American citizens should give the matter of repealing the 16th Amendment, or limiting the percentage of its take, their serious consideration and study; and then advise their legislators at both Washington and the various State capitals, the conclusions of their study. It is respectfully suggested that in those letters to the legislators those fourteen words of Congressman Doughton be incorporated:

"You can shear a sheep every year, but you can skin him only once."

And for extra measure, it might be well to include those pregnant words of the Late, un-loquacious Calvin Coolidge:

"Experience does not show that the higher rate (of taxes) produces the higher revenue. Experience is all in the other way."

Congressional Viewpoint

Sen. John Marshall Butler

A Study in Double Cross

At a time when the entire world prayerfully seeks some form of agreement on disarmament, two comments last week by Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia are deserving of special attention. First, while conceding that "there is some difference" between the Yugoslavia and Soviet Union brand of communism, Tito vowed that ". . . we have the same aim, that is to say the building of socialism and communism." Secondly, on the best way of achieving peace, Tito cling to the doctrine of co-existence "in which we should strive to solve peacefully by way of negotiation and agreement all the programs which could arise . . ."

On the first point, many, including this writer, have felt that military and economic aid to Russian satellites surely serve to strengthen the political and economic objectives of international communism. In the face of this latest pronouncement by a truly entrenched communist leader, it is difficult to conclude that such assistance enhances the cause of freedom but more accurately helps in "the building of socialism and communism."

With disarmament negotiations now in progress, Tito's second observation here cited, reveals the duplicity and deceit which have always accompanied communist enterprise. Solely for propaganda purposes, this type of statement is offered to fan the flame for peace which rightfully exists in the hearts and minds of all mankind. Such statements are intended to capture the unsuspecting mind. Tito's emphasis on more negotiation and more agreement was no doubt deliberate, for through this process the originators and apostles of world communism have become eminently skillful in the art of the double cross. Stalin once bluntly proclaimed, "words are one thing, action another. Good words are a mask for concealment of bad deeds."

Since the Soviet Union came into being, it has broken its word to virtually every country to which it ever gave a signed promise. In treaties and agreements involving all aspects of international relations and promises, it has demonstrated that the signature of any communist government on any document is not worth the paper on which it is written. The Korean Armistice is a living example of how the communists never hesitate to break agreements when it serves their purpose.

While it has been said that our diplomats have a penchant for losing the peace for which our military forces have fought so courageously, our disarmament delegates should not ignore this incontestable record of perfidy and double cross, nor should they ignore this recent warning by Admiral Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, on the question of inspection: "We cannot trust the Russians on this or anything else."

Listen Americans!

BY GEORGE S. BENSON
President of Harding College

"The history of liberty is the history of the limitation of governmental power, not the increase of it. When we resist concentration of power we are resisting the process of death, because the concentration of power is always what precedes the destruction of human liberties." President Woodrow Wilson said this. The founding fathers of our nation said it, perhaps in slightly different words, over and over again as they worked upon the construction of our Republican form of government, dispersing the powers into three branches, hemming them in with many safeguards, and retaining most of the governmental powers to the states.

It would be comforting to know that every high school boy and girl in America can recite these words of Woodrow Wilson on government limitation, and have a clear understanding of their meaning. Unfortunately, it just isn't so. Thousands of our high schools do not offer citizenship education. American history. American government. American economics.

In recent years, realizing the importance of our children knowing the advantages of our system, parents have been asking for American citizenship courses. Teachers and educational administrators generally have been anxious to establish such courses.

The Harding Academy, which is the high school branch of Harding College, has been teaching American citizenship for years. Superintendent Perry Mason recently published high school course outlines in American Government, American History, Civics, and World History.

The outline for American Government begins with the Woodrow Wilson quote on the danger of concentration of power in government. Goals to be developed in each student: 1) A knowledge of the American Constitution and gratitude to the men who wrote it; 2) An understanding of the form and functions of national, state, and local governments in the United States; 3) An understanding that liberty is by law and that respect for law must be inculcated in the citizenry until it becomes a national virtue; 4) A knowledge that our whole concept of democracy rests upon a recognition of the worth and dignity of man; 5) A sense of responsibility for the demands of citizenship in a free country.

Basic text for the course is American Government (1955), Magruder-McClenaghan. Allyn and Bacon, Inc., Dallas. Teachers or interested parents may write for a copy of the outline.

Senate Cloakroom

By J. GLENN BEALL
United States Senator from Maryland

The longest single speech ever delivered in the United States Senate lasted for 22 hours and 26 minutes.

The speaker was Senator Wayne Morse, of Oregon. The time was April 24-25, 1953. The issue under discussion was the so-called tidelands offshore oil bill."

After 35 days of discussion, we voted. The vote incidentally was against the position taken by Senator Morse during his record-breaking address.

Logical Conclusion

I mention that particular debate at that time because it provides an excellent example of complete consideration of a subject followed by a logical conclusion — decisive vote.

In a filibuster, on the other hand, the main objective is to prevent a vote.

Extended Debate

Most students of American government are strong supporters of the Senate rules which permit extended debate.

As William S. White observed in his new book on the Senate, "it perhaps not too bad to have one place in which matters can be examined at leisure even if a bizarre uncomfortably protracted."

Filibusters

There is a sharp division of opinion, however, on the question of filibusters.

Under the present Senate rules, filibuster attempts can be cut short by a vote of "three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn" that is, by 64 votes.

This requirement has been in effect since 1949, prior to which it took two-thirds of those present and voting to halt a discussion.

Under the two "cloture" systems I have just mentioned, 22 attempts were made to end debates between 1917 and the present. Four of these were successful.

Comparision of Cloture Plans

Opponents of the current cloture rule feel that it is too restrictive and several amendments to it have been offered.

An idea of the effectiveness of each of the various proposals can be gained from the following data on the 22 attempts which have been made to limit debate on various issues during the past forty years:

1. Under a requirement for 64 votes, the effectiveness would have been three out of the 22.

2. Under a requirement for a 49-vote majority of the entire membership, the effectiveness would have been nine of the 22.

3. Under a requirement for two-thirds of those present and voting, the effectiveness would have been four of the 22.

4. Under a requirement for a simple majority of those present and voting, the effectiveness would have been 15 of the 22.

Filibustered Bills

It is interesting to note, in conclusion, that of 36 major bills, exclusive of various appropriation measures, which have been filibustered in the Senate since 1865, all but 11 eventually became law.

The 11 which were not enacted include nine measures which can be classified as civil rights legislation: three anti-lynch bills (1922, 1935 and 1937), four anti-poll tax bills (1942, 1944, 1946 and 1948), and two Fair Employment Practices or FEPC bills (1946 and 1950).

Notes from my appointment book: Important committee work and votes in the Senate kept me close to Capitol Hill for most of the week, but I did have an opportunity to attend a reception at the French Embassy and to participate in Independence Day ceremonies in Dundalk.

GLADES

Mrs. Margaret Casteel and Mrs. Maude Glotfelty, Oakland, visited Mrs. William Glotfelty and family Thursday afternoon. Monday callers at the Glotfelty home were Rev. and Mrs. William DeShong, Friendsville.

One Man Looks At God

By Charles W. Carlson, Pastor, St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Oakland, Maryland

After an interruption of two weeks, when a much enjoyed vacation was had by this writer, we proceed with the current series on the Epistle of James. This week we consider the words: "My brethren, show no partiality as you hold the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of Glory."

Many have been the times when I have observed a breach of this idea of James. In a congregation that I attended some years ago I served as an usher on Sunday on the left hand side of the church. Shortly after the opening of the service a man came into the church on the opposite side of the room. The first thing he did was to kneel right inside of the door for prayer. He then got up and looked around questioningly. The usher for that side of the church walked over to the man and gave him a bulletin, then led him to a pew near the rear in which a man and woman sat at the end, but in which there was plenty of room. The man sat down in this pew, and as soon as the woman saw him, she had what was almost a look of shock on her face and quickly pushed her husband into the pew as far he could go. You see, the man was, from the obvious condition of his clothes and his lack of a clean shave, a bum. Perhaps the woman felt that some of his shabbiness might rub off on her. At any rate, she made a distinct point of ignoring the man from that point on. This is not uncommon from what I have seen and heard. Too many respectable middle class churches are places where those who are inadequately clothed find no welcome whatsoever. Too many churches seem to think that in order to be a Christian, you must wear fine clothing and hold a good position in society. Too many churches have forgotten that their witness should be first of all to those who need it very badly, the bum, the drunkard, the prostitute, and all others of the unfortunate.

Then there is the matter of race. I personally doubt whether there would be many churches in Oakland, or for that matter in most any place where a Negro would be welcomed as a brother in Christ by the members of that church. James has particular reference in the passage under consideration to the distinction that is made by many between rich and poor, but I am sure that he would speak with equal harshness to those who show partiality because of race.

The horrible feature of the whole business of partiality is that it is not just limited to the members of a given church, but many times crops up in the ministry of a pastor as well. In such cases, the pastor thinks in terms of whom he has to please when he gives a minister, spending more of his time and attention on those who have the most money and power in a community and virtually ignoring the poor people in a town or a congregation.

However it comes forth, whether in members or pastors, this matter of partiality is a black mark on the church. In the matter of segregation where the church should have been a leader in the solution of a problem of race, it is one of the worst sinners in the matter of continuing to segregate people according to their racial background. Where the church should be a place where all find the love of God and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit, it has often deteriorated into a situation where the rise of new and misguided sectarian groups has been the direct result of the church refusing to give an adequate ministry to the poor. There is only one answer. It is in the realization that God has created us, and has redeemed all who believe in His Son and challenges us all to love our neighbors as ourselves. And so with James we give the challenge: "My brethren, show no partiality as you hold the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Is Your Name DAVIS?

Do You Know That

Davis is one of the most popular of English surnames. Of simple derivation, it is merely a shortened form of Davids and means "son of David". The latter signifies "beloved" and has been used widely both as a personal name and surname for many generations, particularly among the Welsh and Scots.

Malatiah Davis (1717-1795) and William Davis (1724-1780) served as lieutenant colonels respectively in the Massachusetts and North Carolina troops during the Revolutionary War.

The second deed recorded in Garrett County was on March 1, 1873. It was from Henry G. Davis and others to James Casey for a lot in Deer Park.

Among the early marriage licenses issued by the clerk of the Garrett County Court was that of John W. Harvey and Sarah E. Davis on April 21, 1873.

John M. Davis was superintendent of the Sunday School and a member of the board of trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Oakland in 1882. He was also a charter member of Alta Lodge No. 574, Knights of Pythias which was instituted on April 3, 1877.

Henry Gassaway Davis (1823-1916), a descendant of an old Maryland family, was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad during the early years of his career, started a general store in Piedmont, West Virginia at the age of 35 and later became the owner of several thousand acres of nearly timber lands. He was United States senator from West Virginia and Democratic candidate for vice-president of the United States in 1901.

Westmoreland Davis (1859-1942) was governor of Virginia.

Vernon Mansfield Davis (1855-1941) was judge, Supreme Court of New York.

Arthur Cayley Davis is vice-admiral, U. S. Navy.

Hannibal Albert Davis is professor and head of the department of mathematics, West Virginia University.

13 Firemen Will Get Certificates In Advanced Course

Thirteen members of the Deer Park and Oakland fire departments, who completed an advanced course in firemanship, will receive certificates at a dinner in their honor this evening at the Deer Park fire hall. The dinner will be served by the Women's auxiliary of the Deer Park department.

Taking the advanced course were Edward E. Sollars, Jr., Glenn O'Brien, Dale Simpson and J. R. Thrasher, of the Deer Park company; Frank Biser, Charles Davis, W. W. Dawson, Lindsay Gonder, Donald Stemple, John Sharps, Harold Schell, William H. Spiker and Howard J. White, of the Oakland company.

It was explained that the advanced course in firemanship was designed to be taken by firemen who have already completed the basic course and who hold a card indicating satisfactory completion of study and practice in the fundamentals of fire fighting. The advanced course may not be taken for credit prior to finishing the basic work nor may the two courses be taken for credit at the same time, because instructors feel that maximum value will be realized only when full attention is concentrated on one course.

During 1956 eighteen members of the Deer Park and Oakland fire departments took the basic course and passed the required examination. The course lasted for twenty weeks, with a minimum class participation of three hours each week in addition to the study required for each lesson.

This year thirteen of the eighteen enrolled for the advanced course and in June took the final examination required by the College of Engineering Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland. All of them passed.

The advanced course of twenty weeks covered size-up and attack, control and extinguishment, exposures and protection, fires in buildings of various types and construction, special fires such as oil, electrical, chemical, etc.; fire pumps, construction, theory, operation and maintenance; simple sketching for fire maps, inspection, fire investigation and reports, automatic sprinklers, fire protection and detection devices, actual building inspecion, and relaying water.

The dinner this evening at 6:30 is being held for the thirteen members who completed the course, their wives, officers of the two departments and a few other invited guests. Forty are expected. Certificates are to be presented by James C. Robertson, senior instructor of the fire service extension.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Reward of Consistency

It is true that when Congress wants to it can pull itself out of some amazing legislative tangles and with astonishing speed enact a lot of important laws. But these congressional accomplishments occur in years when members of the House and Senate are under strong political pressure from their districts and states, due to pending primaries and local elections.

—o—

Distinctly, this is not one of those years. This year there are no members of the House up to succeed themselves, very few senators and, of course, no President to be chosen for nearly three years. If this were an election year things would be different. Members of Congress all would be anxious to get home to look after their "political fences." As it is, very few are eager to get away from Washington. To many it is more pleasant here than at home. They have air-cooled chambers, offices and hotels. Most of them, too, have important "local laws" which they do not want to "drop off the vine" and local appointments which they want to put through. Add all this up and it is easy to see why the most experienced Washington observers do not care to predict when this session will end.

—o—

Few now think there will be adjournment in August; some believe Congress will still be in session late in the fall. In the end, of course, a bruised and battered budget will be passed—also some of the Eisenhower domestic program, including a filibustering delayed civil rights act. There also will be plenty of time for the enactment of the Hoover report, known as H. R. 8002, to modernize Federal budgeting methods. It is conceded this will save a large sum of money annually. The Senate has unanimously approved similar legislation and the White House has called for its enactment. Yet it will take some expression of public sentiment to insure its passage by the House. And that is what the Hoover Commission is now calling for. Under the circumstances, there seems slight excuse for failure to act on this bill and the chances are it will become a law, which will certainly be good for the country as a whole.

—o—

All needed is some real public prodding of House members. It seems incredible that a measure so completely nonpolitical and so universally approved as this could fail. Yet such failures have occurred in the past solely through public inertia. It would be calamitous if that should happen in this case. The Hoover Commission is appealing to citizens in all states to write to their representatives in the House in favor of H. R. 8002. Whatever the sins of omission and commission of this Congress may be, the enactment of this measure alone would greatly help make its record commendable.

—o—

In this session, as in many others, the most potent and consistent force behind this type of legislation has been Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia. He has been in the Senate for 24 years. Four times elected—once (in 1940) without opposition—his present term expires in 1959. Just past his seventieth birthday, he has not yet let it be known whether he intends to run in 1958, though there is no question that he could be renominated and re-elected. It is true that six years ago he had determined not to run again and only changed his mind because of the dirty type of campaign made against him in Virginia by Mr. Walter Reuther's CIO. His re-election was overwhelming. It would be even more so should he run in 1958, because he is now easily the outstanding senator. If there is one whose reputation has been enhanced in the last two years, his is it.

—o—

For nearly 30 years he has been the foremost advocate of Federal economy. Without regard for politics he has urged retrenchment in Federal expenditures, a balanced budget and redured appropriations. During most of that time he has had hostility from the White House and lukewarm support from his colleagues. While he had strong admirers in every state, the people as a whole remained somewhat nonunderstanding of the seriousness of his warnings—particularly concerning inflation. In the last four years there has been a great change. For one thing, Senator Byrd is now chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, the most powerful of all congressional committees. For another, instead of White House hostility from Presidents of his own party, he has personal friendship from a President with whom he differs on detail, but who fundamentally believes in the Byrd fiscal views. For a third, the people generally have come to realize that the Byrd views are sound. If he should not run again in 1958 it would be a loss, not only to the Senate, but to the nation.

Invitations Mailed For Annual Tennis Tourney, Aug. 6-10

Invitations to participate in the thirty-sixth annual tennis tournament for the Western Maryland championship have been mailed to some 250 or 300 prospective entrants, it was announced by Ralph E. Weber, president of the Mt. Lake Tennis club.

The tournament is set for the Mt. Lake Park courts August sixth through August tenth, and there will be events in men's women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles.

Already lined up for the tournament are several tennis players who are considered outstanding in tennis circles in this part of the country. They include Fred McNair, Washington, who won last year's singles event; Philip Neff, of Washington, runner-up last year and winner in 1955; Buddy Adair and Henry Foss, both Washington; Tom Bradford, among the first ten in the middle Atlantic rating; John Harris, University of Michigan; Doyle Royal, College Park; Larry Middlekamp, College Park; Frank Hartz, a ranking member of the Middle Atlantic, of Richmond, and Ralph Whittaker, also of Richmond.

Nancy Corse, Washington, winner of the women's singles last year, is planning to return, and among her competitors will be Miss Adrienne Ayres, of Baltimore, a high ranking player in the Middle Atlantic.

Many others are expected to enroll, now that the invitations have been mailed.

This year's officers also include J. Horner Davis, Wilson K. Levering, Jr., and Nelson Thomasson III, vice-presidents; Mrs. Walter Pollard, treasurer; Mrs. George P. Deacon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Wilson K. Levering, Jr., recording secretary; Jennings Randolph, publicity; assisted by Neil McCord and Earl Brown. A junior committee also has been named for this year, in an effort to increase interest in tennis among the younger set.

Social activities will include an open house, informal parties, a corn roast and the tournament dance. The latter date was set for August 10 and will be semi-formal. Admission to social events will be free to every tennis entrant.

Senate Cloakroom

By J. GLENN BEALL
United States Senator from Maryland

As the senate faced the possibility of a lengthy filibuster each member received a memorandum on "resting during the late or all-night sessions" and a "Do Not Disturb" sign to hang on his door during the hours when the building's cleaning force might be at work.

Some Senators had cots rolled into their offices.

Most members cancelled all their outside engagements.

Realizing the importance of maintaining a force strong enough to participate effectively in any parliamentary action, the Senators were preparing to be on hand day and night.

Sitting-It-Out

I mention this because the tactic of "sitting-it-out" is one of the basic remedies for obstruction in the Senate when it is not possible to muster 64 votes necessary to cut off a prolonged debate.

In the past this strategy has not always been effective, even though anti-filibuster forces have sometimes insisted on the strictest observance of various Senate rules which might tend to wear down the speakers.

In fact, a review of Congressional history will show that filibusters have had initial successes against all types of legislation, ranging from a migratory bird bill to a flood control measure.

However, as I mentioned in last weeks's "Senate Cloakroom" newsletter, all but 11 of the 36 major bills which have been successfully filibustered in the Senate since 1865 have eventually been enacted into law.

A group of 9 Civil Rights measures forms the most noticeable block of bills which have been talked to death during one session without being revived and passed in another.

Pros of Filibustering

In brief, the following are some offered in favor of filibustering:

(1) Obstruction is justifiable as a means of preventing a majority from trampling upon minority rights, which the Government has a duty to protect.

(2) A Senate majority does not necessarily represent a consensus of the people or even of the states, and prolonged debate may prevent hasty majority action which would be out of harmony with genuine popular opinion.

(3) It is essential in our form of Government that there be one place - - in this case, the Senate - - where a thorough and exhaustive debate can be conducted. Such unrestricted debate is also a vital check upon presidential or party autocracy.

(4) The record will show that the Senate has operated effectively under rules permitting filibusters.

(5) In debates involving fundamental Constitutional questions, Senators have a duty to protect the rights of their individual States.

Arguments against Filibusters

Those opposed to filibusters use the following arguments:

(1) Under the practice of filibustering, the basic American principle of majority rule is nullified.

(2) Filibusters are costly and destroy the ability of the Senate to act efficiently on legislation.

(3) Filibustering gives one Senator or a small group of Senators the power to veto a measure or to extort special favors for their own constituents.

(4) For decades important social legislation has been delayed and public resentment has been aroused by such obstructionist tactics.

(5) An effective anti-filibuster rule ought to exist because it is the duty of the Senate not merely to debate but to legislate, and the volume of business is such that time should not be consumed uselessly.

Personal Position

The pro's and con's of this issue obviously include arguments which themselves can touch off almost endless debates.

My own feeling, which I have stated on numerous occasions, is this:

"I will continue to lend my strongest support to the principle that matters before the Senate should be given the most extensive debate, but I also feel strongly that after the facts have been fully discussed, every man should be called on to see the issue to a logical conclusion, and vote.

"Only in such a way will the citizens of America know how their elected representatives feel about the pressing issues of our times, and only in such a way will civil rights legislation be brought into the open for the decisive action - - either pro or con - - to which it is entitled. The same is true of other matters.

"Lengthy debate on important matters is a dictate of wisdom; endless debate is the offspring of evasion, folly and waste."

It Runs Through My Mind

BY POLLY J. HANST

Old Hen And Chickens

A stranger opened my eyes to a plant growing in our yard which we knew as "old hen and chickens." He had stopped to inquire the whereabouts of a neighbor and commented that he had never seen these plants produce bloom before.

We had been noticing how unusual this flower was. One "old hen" out of a cluster will shoot up to about the size and shape of a turkey's neck and form a cluster of the loveliest pink buds that have the general form of the mother plant.

"The location must be exactly right," spoke the stranger whose car license showed he was some distance from home. "This is a very old plant," he went on, "dates back to the fern and moss, which means really old."

Then I said to curious countries I get awfully weary of being ignorant and more than weary of being mentally lazy that the botany of the plant had never as much as crossed my mind.

He advised me to look into it, that I would probably find something interesting.

He was curious about my plant growing in a rock wall. I was curious about a man, past middle age, who looked like a naturalist, talked like one and in five minutes time in a completely impersonal way let me know that he knows how to get meaning out of life.

He was in search of truth. Someone had told him the trees in Cathedral Park, Aurora, were as old as 100 years — or two hundred — or were even here when the Indians roamed this territory.

"I can't take that for an answer," said he. "I was told a man by the name of Rogers would know if anyone would."

A felled tree will give the age by the ring but these are standing. So I directed him to Swallow Falls where the three tall hemlocks stand down in the spring to count rings.

He hunted on his way almost as if there was much he wanted to get off of his chest. In his car was a bucket with many species of wild flowers—wild phlox, bergamot, Queen Anne's lace, field lily—

In that casual meeting with a stranger I am curious about two things — old hen and chickens and how in heaven's name would one ever begin to look up information about such a plant. The other, how many rings in the stumps at Swallow Falls.

Come Saturday, the Lord willing, I'll know about the rings.

Ponce de Leon can have his fountain of youth but let me drink from the spring of curiosity.

Pups To Give

Wouldn't you like to have a pup? It may be the thing that will change your whole life, like the marriage vow — for better or worse.

That's about what happened to us—when our daughter put the pressure on—not because she was dog crazy but because "everyone has one." We didn't know what we were in for.

At the first the pup was IT. I was a cute little thing, even the Madam had to admit, and would have trained beautifully but instead it got spoiled. This stage was akin to that of the toddler. Into mischief all the time and the only thing that saves them is the way they look at you.

As the pup got older it became He. HE was a smart dog and his affection was downright flattering. HE no longer chewed the newest and best of the laundry as it hung on the line. HE just took privileges in the living quarters like scratching the tables and knocking off ash trays and chewing the kitchen cabinets. But as I said HE was smart, so a good licking cured that.

Then HE got to chasing cars and I thought 'this will soon solve our problem."

Oh yeah? About that time HE became extremely social. We saw dogs we had never seen before. They came in droves. All the neighbors talked to our backs and to our faces. When we locked him up the dogs howled. All night long they howled.

Last week HE had pups. I was practically beside myself but HE knew all the ropes. Brother, Spock couldn't have told him a thing. Indeed HE is making a beautiful mother.

But the fact still remains — we've got four pups.

If you're a family with children you surely will want them to grow up with a pup. Or if you live alone you should have a dog in the house to keep you company and also to bark every time the floor creaks. Or if you're set in your ways, there's just nothing that will upset your life, having a pup underfoot. So come one, come all, but for pity sake, don't leave me with five dogs on my hands.

Boyce-Savage Wedding Held

Before the altar of Lockwood Ev. U. B. church in Akron, O., on May 18, Miss Wilda Ann Savage and Robert Boyce exchanged nuptial vows with the Rev. Herbert Wolfe officiating.

The bride's gown was of white embroidered organza, with fitted bodice, sabrina neckline and long pointed sleeves. The skirt was highlighted with tiers of ruffles in the back forming a chapel train. A Juliet cap held her fingertip veil, and she carried a white orchid surrounded by lilies of the valley.

Miss Jean Saylor was her attendant and bridesmaids were Mrs. Alvin Hamilton, Mrs. Bert Thomas and Miss Burgan Mellinger.

Mary Kay and Kendra Jean Miller, cousins of the bride, were flower girls. Russell Boyce was his brother's best man.

Following a reception in the church social room the couple left for a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Deep Creek State Park Taking Shape

The state park on Deep Creek Lake is rounding into shape. Major work at this time is being concentrated on road building and preparation of parking space.

The Garrett County Roads department is rebuilding the county road that runs through the park from the Meadow Mountain inlet bridge to State route 495.

The park itself is located on the east bank of the lake between Meadow mountain run and Cherry Creek inlets.

Unforseen delays have held up completion of the work. One of them was a legal case that held up acquisition of 57 acres of lake shore for two years, from 1953 to 1955. Another legal wrinkle was smoothed out with the reception of an agreement for the use of the water front. This was made recently by the Pennsylvania Electric company and the State Department of Forests and Parks.

Thus far the department has acquired 57 acres in one tract and another 40 acres from another owner and these have been added to the department owned Thayer Game refuge of 1,100 acres. Only a portion of this will be available for park use.

Property acquisition has cost $79,000 and the state has appropriated $54,588 for construction. The first grant was received in 1954 when $15,000 was allocated for road construction, $7,421 for sanitary facilities, $4,969 for parking areas, $7,400 for picnic facilities and $4,898 for a bathhouse. The department received no appropriation in 1955 but the following year $15,000 was granted for beach development.

Roads have been covered with stone and are ready for blacktop. The first of two parking areas is ready for surface treatment. The bathhouse plans have been completed but the cement strike is expected to delay construction.

The state department of health will not allow the opening of the park until proper water and sanitary facilities are available.

A 20 by 30 foot stone comfort station has been built near the first parking lot. Others are to be constructed.

A main holdup is water. The department had a well dug which showed water at 150 feet but quicksand pushed into the well and it went dry. A new well is to be built at another location.

However, the park already is equipped with a large number of picnic tables. The park workers have started to build fireplaces to be used by picnickers. Made of two courses of concrete block for a base with a metal grill on top, they will be for wood fires, but charcoal may be used. Fifty of these are being built and later they will be covered with a stone veneer.

The work has been under the supervision of William H. Johnson, district forester, and carried out by Ward Ashby, park superintendent.

Johnson thought that sections of the park would be ready for camping this fall and other areas will be opened up next year.

State Roads chairman indicated he would ask General Assembly gas tax increase from six to seven cents a gallon.

House voted for bigger and better Civil Defense program.

Wardens Arrest 12 In Recent Days

Garrett County game wardens arrested twelve persons in recent days. Not only is there reckless driving of motor vehicles these days, but there is also reckless driving of motor boats on Deep Creek Lake.

Two persons were arrested on this charge within the past ten days. Gene Keister, Cresaptown, was arrested by Leo Friend, game warden, on July 6. He pleaded guilty before Trial Magistrate Earl C. Friend and was fined $25 and costs. Raymond J. Kifer, Acosta, Pa., was arrested July 10 on the same charge. He forfeited collateral of $25 and costs.

Raymond Readnow, Columbus, O., charged by Leo Friend with endangering property of others along Deep Creek Lake with motor boat, forfeited collateral of $25 and costs.

Disturbing Other Campers

Two couples were arrested July 13 by Elmer Upole, Jr., in the Big Run section on charges of disturbing other campers. They were Mr and Mrs. Courtney Frenzel, Manassas, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Rocco, Piedmont, W. Va. Each was fined $5 and costs by Trial Magistrate Friend.

For allowing a boat to operate without a license on July 10, Mrs. Genevieve DeWitt, star route, Oakland, was fined $25 and costs.

Game Warden Robert Brown arrested J. Gaylord Andrew, Dunn's Station, Pa., on a charge of approaching a dock in a reckless manner and was fined $25 and costs.

Three persons were arrested for fishing without a license. They were F. J. Brown, Charleroi, Pa.; Robert Bonner, Reedsville, W. Va.; and John C. Cleckner, Pasadena. The latter was fined $10 and costs. Brown and Bonner were fined $20 and costs.

All of the above were recorded in the office of the Trial Magistrate.

Grantsville Wins One, Loses One

Grantsville whipped Wellersburg 9 to 3 in the Pen Mar baseball league last Saturday afternoon at Grantsville. Grantsville polled 11 hits to win with Danny Cullen's homer and a pair of singles and Bob Buckel's two doubles pacing the attack. R. Keister was the winning pitcher.

In Sunday's game however, Barrelville routed the Grantsville Sluggers 13 to 3. Gracie and Kitzmiller were assaulted for 15 blows while the Grantsville team got six singles, four of them by Robert Keister and Ray Morgan.

Grantsville now is tied with Centreville and Mt. Savage for fourth place in the league.

Married June 7 at Oakland

Miss Betty Jean Kinest, only daughter of Mrs. Margaret Ott, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joseph H. Arnold, son of Henry Arnold, of Oakland, and Mrs. David B. Young, Jr., of Mentor, Ohio, were married in Oakland, Friday, June 7. Rev. J. E. Johnson performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride chose a white dress with white hat and accessories for her wedding.

Mrs. Arnold has completed three years at Duquesne university in Pittsburgh where she majored in music education. Her husband, a graduate of Oakland High school, is an airman first class in the Strategic air command and is now stationed at Camp Carswell in Fort Worth, Texas.

Review of The Play

By AZA STANTON

"The Mousetrap," a grade-A thriller-diller on the Garrett County Playhouse stage this week, is a spine-tingling melodrama by Agatha Christie. The play is built around that sadistic little nursery rhyme, "Three Blind Mice," and is designed to keep you on the edge of your chair. As the plot thickens and ferments you are certain to feel the touch of icy fingers at the back of your neck. Here's a big orchid bouquet to Director Tom Calkins and the entire cast for a job admirably well done.

The play is loaded with strange characters, each of whom is a prime suspect at one time or another. William G. Pappas, speaking in a thick European accent, plays his role to the hilt as the personification of the cloak and dagger cult. Neil Flannagan's crisp diction and grim expression is typical of an officer who intends getting to the bottom of things. Throwing his weight around in the conventional police sergeant manner, he solves the riddle in a most unexpected turn of events. As Major Metcalf, a retired British army officer who bears an obvious pedestrial resemblance to Groucho Marx, Peter Mallon takes a surprise role in the surprise ending.

Cris Curran is so superbly convincing and natural as a screwy young architect who becomes more and more schizoid during the course of the play that one becomes a bit concerned about him. I, for one, am quite anxious to see him in another characterization. Sandra Tcboe and Joseph Hanrahan, shouldering the leads, do exceptionally well portraying a young couple trying to make a go of operating a lodging house called "Monkswell Manor."

Bonnie Barton, playing her own age for a change, is a fine example of rugged young womanhood and Helen Page Camp is the very soul and body of a haughty, self-righteous jurist who comes to an abrupt conclusion of her career in the first act. To these two one can only say, "Magnificent!"

This presentation at the Playhouse justly deserves all the praise we can bestow upon it. If you enjoy an imaginative murder mystery, with an ideal balance between the humorous and the sinister, I strongly urge you not to miss "The Mousetrap." Oh, by the way, the butler didn't do it!

What? 300 Million Years To Cook Our Dinner!

That's right. The natural gas that now cooks your meals so quickly and does so many other chores so well was born 300 million years ago—or more.

When the earth was still quite young, the vast seas that covered it began to recede. As they did, trillions of tiny organisms and ocean plants were covered by sediment. The sediment became rock. Intense heat and pressure then distilled the embedded plants and organisms into natural gas.

There the gas lay, trapped beneath the ground for centuries, until man discovered it and solved the problems of bringing this clean, dependable, economical fuel right to your home. Nature's gift of 300 million years ago has become the "wonder fuel" of the Twentieth Century.

Today, natural gas is the modern, efficient fuel. And it serves you best when you use it with modern, automatic gas appliances.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH L. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Numbers 13; 14:1-10, 24, 30, 38; Joshua 14:6-15; 15:13-19; Judges 1:9-15.

Rugged Faith

Lesson for July 21, 1957

A MAN who at the age of 40 was not afraid to give a minority report even in the face of a threatened lynching; a man who at 85 was still asking for the hardest job and the most dangerous job in the country; such a man is worth more than a glance. Such a man was Caleb, a much younger contemporary of Moses.

Dr. Foreman

We first hear of this sturdy man when he and Joshua stood out alone against the overwhelming pessimism of the majority "Report on Prospects." Twelve tribal leaders had been chosen to go into Palestine and see what things looked like. Ten of these leaders brought back the word (and archaeology shows it was true): The country is full of well-built, well-fortified cities. We shall not take it without a fight. But then they went on to say: We shall lose the fight. Forget all about the conquest of Canaan; it can't be done. We are no better than grasshoppers!

God-Conscious

On the facts, Caleb and Joshua agreed. A beautiful land, well-defended cities, plenty of fighting certain. But on the recommendations they had something different to say. "Do not fear," they said. "The Lord is with us." But no one believed them unless it was Moses. The people were so far from believing them that they threatened them with death by stoning. The difference between Caleb and Joshua, on the one side, and the masses of the people on the other, was the faith of these men. The majority thought only, "We can do nothing." This tiny minority thought: "We can do a great deal—if God is with us." The majority looked at the situation and found it hopeless, because they found it godless. Caleb looked at the same situation with hope and confidence, because he saw God as the most important part of it. The reason why faith is strong is that faith is God-conscious.

On God's Side

Merely being aware of God is not the whole of faith, not the whole of the rugged faith of Caleb. It is quite clear from what Caleb said, that he wanted to be, and believed he was, on God's side, and carrying out God's purposes. Faith not only sees God in hard situations, faith lines up with God, so far as God's will can be seen. There is a great deal of difference, for example, between faith as we find it in Luther and as we find it in Hitler. Both of them were men of strong faith. They believed themselves to be men of destiny. But then why were they so different? The difference was in this: Luther wished nothing higher than to follow the will of God wherever it might lead him; Hitler if he believed in God at all, expected God to support his own ambitions. A Hitler cracks up at the last; but a Luther does not. So Caleb outlived his entire generation, for his hope and his faith were planted in God, not in himself.

Without Fear, Without Pride

Faith in God like all good things can be turned into a sort of mockery of itself, a cheap or grotesque imitation of reality. Faith can be a cover-up for fear. It can be used as a retreat to get out of attempting hard things. Once a young man was pleading in a great gathering of Christian leaders, for men to go out as Christian missionaries,—this in a day when missionaries were very few. An older minister rose and told the young man to sit down: "When God is ready to convert the heathen, he will do it without your help!" That minister was using his faith to conceal his own unwillingness to risk the dangers of being a missionary. Some parents are so much afraid of vaccination that they will refuse to let their children be vaccinated—we believe in God, they say. True faith is a rugged thing, as Caleb's was. It asks for the hardest tasks, it is not afraid of work or danger. Then faith can be twisted into pride; Hitler is an example of that, so was Napoleon. So was the Grand Inquisitor; so have been any number of tyrants in the church and out of it. True faith creates confidence, but not conceit. When a man of faith begins to confuse himself with God, rugged faith has changed to brittle arrogance.

Along The Potomac

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde • 6th District, Maryland

It seems to me that the current hue and cry over specific Supreme Court decisions misses the most significant—and in my opinion dangerous—trend developing out of Supreme Court opinions. While the Court is leaning over backward to protect individual rights it is at the same time increasing and broadening Federal power.

I am inclined to agree with the general philosophy of the Court with regard to freedom of speech, right of the people to peaceably assemble, and due process of law, but I disagree with its concept of increasing Federal power at the expense of State authority and local responsibility.

It is clear to me that the authors of the Contitution wanted strong guarantees for individual rights and limited powers for the Federal government. To make certain there would be no misunderstanding they repeated in the Bill of Rights protection for the individual and restraints on Federal power. It is a fact of history that individual rights disappear as the power of government grows. A people preserve their individual rights only as they place strong limitations on the power of their government.

What the Supreme Court and the so-called American liberal is apparently trying to do is to strengthen individual rights in a Federal government of unlimited powers. Eventually, if such a course continues the guarantees in our Bill of Rights will have to be sacrificed to a strong central government in Washington. I do not believe people are aware of the dangers we face as a Nation if the present trend continues.

I am happy to report that the poultry inspection bill has been amended in the House to allow exemption for the small producer selling his products directly to households, restaurants, hotels, etc.

On My Calendar

July 17. 5:00 p. m.—Annual picnic, St. Joseph's-on-Carrollton Manor, Frederick County.

July 20, 10 a. m.—Oldtown Sportsman Club and Cumberland Recreation Department Rodeo, Oldtown.

Various congressional committees now reviewing the Nation's economic health are in substantial agreement that a major factor creating inflation is excessive Federal spending. Inflation can be stopped if we are willing to cut drastically some Federal programs, eliminate others, and avoid any new programs.

The report of the Joint Subcommittee on Fiscal Policy stresses the fact that if further inflation is to be avoided, basic revision in existing Federal programs must be made as well as forgoing new expenditures.

An example of a new Federal spending program is aid for school construction. All agree that school construction is a local program and as such should remain under local control. Further, no witness in testimony on the school construction bill has been able to name a single State that could not build its school without Federal aid.

The trouble is that the States have become so used to turning to the Federal Government for help that the process is almost automatic. Of any new program requiring Federal aid we ought to ask ourselves: (1) Does the need for Federal aid outweigh the necessity for a drastic curtailment in Federal spending and halting inflation? (2) Do we not owe it to ourselves and our children to practice self-restraint calling on the Federal Government to take over programs that are better and less expensively done at home? (3) Or, are the States so bankrupt in responsibility that Federal aid is necessary and economic risks must be taken?

There is only one way in which taxes can be reduced and monetary restraints eased and that is by stopping increases in Federal Government spending. The cost of maintaining the Federal Government can be materially reduced if the States will assume their rightful duties and cease calling on Washington for aid in matters that are best handled and financed by local authority and under their control.

Oakland Country Club News

By JOHN FOX

We seem to be having a lot of golfers from Deep Creek Lake this season. I haven't figured out whether it is because golf is becoming more popular, or whether the fish just aren't biting this year.

This Sunday, July 21st, we'll make our annual jaunt to Uniontown for our match with their club. So far only 20 members have signed up for the trip and we'd like to go over there with at least 30 players. Let me know something.

Twenty players took part in the "Scotch foursome" match last Sunday. First prize winners were Linda Pritts and "Mick" Sively with a low net of 63. Then came Regina Smith and Bob Seefeld with a 65. Third low was won by Virginia Lohr and Bob Ruckert with a 66.

In the club tournament, "Pepper" Inskeep played just smooth enough to win the first flight championship. He shot a 36 to defeat Bob Seefeld in the quarter finals. Then beat Bill Sharps with a 41 in semi-finals and on Tuesday he whipped Jim Kreyenbuhl with a 39. "Pepper" has only been playing two years and is now definitely one of the top golfers at the club. In the second flight Blake Oss will meet the winner of the match between David Hopkins and Maurice Brookhart. In the third flight George Barger will take on Jim Kelly, while Jack Jones must wait for the results of the Ed Pendergast and Ralph Pritts meeting. The fourth flight is moving slowly in one bracket, however Bob Wilson defeated "Tip" Foster to reach the finals in his section.

A fellow by the name of J. B. Downie wrote this about golf—

It's a grand and glorious feeling
To have that "pro" control,
To loft it toward the ceiling,
And drop it at the hole.
The whole world looks rosy,
Your game is splendid—but—
The whole fool thing is ruined
When you miss a two-foot putt.

"Our Growing Edge"

MRS. MARTHA GLOTFELTY

Our Right To Disagree

One of our basic rights, of which we have many, is to disagree with the opinions of others. We can do this with tact, and certainly should try to do so. If we honestly try, we can disagree without being disagreeable.

I do not always agree with things I read or hear. I am sure you don't either, if you are a thinking person.

A case in point is a book I have recently read, called "How to Live 365 Days a Year" by Dr. John Schlindler. It is a fine and interesting book, and has much valuable information about many things we should all know, especially from a doctor's viewpoint. He speaks particularly of the effect and direct relationship of our emotions on our health and physical well-being. Certainly, since he has done a tremendous amount of research on this very thing, I would not question his findings.

There is one statement which he makes with which I most heartily disagree. All through the book, he dwells on the subject of immaturity as it relates to our well-being and to the solution of our many problems. I would agree with him that it is a wide spread malady among us, but the statement I take exception to is this one: He says, "Our homes and our schools are actually teaching our children to be and remain immature." Now, I grant you there is some truth in the statement, but it is not all true.

I, for one, have only to look back to my own home, and realize how very hard my parents tried to help me to become mature, to think, to reason, to stand on my own feet, to really grow up. The childish immaturities which are still a part of my personality are certainly not their fault, and I surely am not going to blame them. They are my own fault and nobody else's.

I look back on my school days. I call to mind the fine, mature and well-adjusted people who tried their very best to help me become a mature adult. I do not remember one teacher in either high school or college who seemed childish or immature either in their public or private life.

You may say that does not necessarily prove the point, and only reflects my own experience. Of course that is true, and as I said before, that is necessarily the basis for most of my conclusions, also yours. All of my life, I have seen parents try as hard as they know how to help their children to grow into responsible and mature adults. They have spent their energies and means toward that end.

I have seen dedicated teachers trying their very best to help our boys and girls grow into maturity. One of the avowed aims of our public schools today is to help the child's personality development as well as to teach him knowledge and skills.

I am one parent who is sick and tired of having everything blamed on us. Whenever we pick up a magazine these days, there are two subjects we are sure to read about. One is what terrible folks parents are, and the other is on the subject of sex. Of the latter subject, one brave man wrote some time ago in the Reader's Digest that he was sick and tired of that subject, too. He said it was as though we had invented it, instead of God, who created us.

I believe most parents wish nothing better for their children than to see them become mature, responsible adults. What do you think?

The Hue and the Cry

From a notable gathering of scientists at Pugwash, Nova Scotia, there comes this week another prescription for global peace—a system of world government, international police and international control of nuclear weapons. This remedy for all contemporary ills, advocated by Dr. Brock Chisolm, former head of the World Health Organization, was supplemented by an appeal from Professor Hidiki Yukawa, a Japanese physicist, for a discontinuance of hydrogen and atom bomb testing. Coming on the heels of other recent confused and confusing denouncements of nuclear tests, these latest pleadings hasten the growing belief that science and scientists can frequently be the servants of propaganda.

At the root of this controversy is the question of radioactive fallout, alleged to be injurious to the entire human race for generations to come. Curiously, this argument is directed at U. S. and British tests, while those conducted by the Soviets are rarely, if ever, the target for criticism. This riddle was promoted by mass student demonstrations in Tokyo protesting British and American bomb experiments in remote areas of the Pacific Ocean. Contrastingly, a series of Russian nuclear blasts, casting radioactive particles to the winds floating across Japan, failed to inspire similar demonstrations.

Along the same line, nearly 2,000 American scientists affixed their signatures to a petition urging bomb tests in the interest of world peace. Some prophesied that radioactive dust could eventually kill, sicken or cripple human beings. Despite positive efforts of leading atomic scientists to quiet this troubling situation, an expression of the possible hazards of radiation by the distinguished Nobel prize winner, Dr. Albert Schweitzer was widely publicized. The thoroughness with which his views were exploited created the impression that Dr. Schweitzer was an unwitting tool of certain groups of questionable motivation bent upon influencing domestic as well as international policies.

On both sides of the highly technical, and frequently unfathomable argument as to nuclear fallout, there is much expert testimony but no universal agreement. However, the paramount issues in continuing or suspending these tests are not scientific, but military and political in character. It is therefore to be regretted that so many scientists display little knowledge of the constant goals of international communism, and that their well-meaning, yet ill-advised, pronouncements frequently provide more fodder for the ceaseless communist propaganda machine.

County Fair To Feature Exhibit Of Yule Trees

A novel feature of the Garrett County Agricultural Fair at McHenry next month will be the competitive exhibit of Christmas trees.

The fair is chedaled August 12 to 17. Trees will be on display for judging in the main exhibition building, R. Thomas Thayer, Jr., assistant district forester, who will be in charge of the exhibit, said a similar event, held last January at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, attracted favorable comment from many visitors.

He said this would provide an opportunity to see what other growers are raising. Included in the exhibit will be Scotch pine, spruce, red pine and white pine. Prizes will be awarded.

Trees must be grown in Maryland on land owned and operated by exhibitors. They must range from five to seven feet in height and no trees with limbs or foliage added will be accepted.

Trees that have been sprayed or artificially colored will not be accepted as entries.

See actual road-test proof!

DODGE outperforms "other two" low-priced trucks!

They're off! All three low-priced trucks are lined up at the bottom of a test grade equal to the steepest hill in San Francisco. The flag drops, and this gruelling test of climbing power is officially underway. Dodge takes an early lead.

Halfway up. The extra V-8 power under the hood of the Dodge sends it quickly ahead. It's already two lengths out front. And there's a 1000-lb. test load on each one of these comparably equipped trucks. What's more, Dodge is still gaining!

Dodge flashes past the finish five lengths ahead of competition. Truck "3" and truck "4" just couldn't match that 201-h.p. Power Giant. And this is just one of a rugged series of tests that prove Dodge is best of the low-priced three.

● Your Dodge truck dealer has proof that Dodge leads in many ways. Come in . . . see other certified test photo sequences . . . and take a demonstration ride!

FORTY-FOUR YEARS OF THE LIFE OF A HUNTER" by Meshack Browning, Maryland's famous pioneer hunter, is now available.

Although it was first published 98 years ago and is now in its 12th edition, it is more widely read than ever before.

His truthful accounts of desperate encounters with the savage beasts of the forest, his superhuman efforts to maintain his family in the wilderness, far from human aid or associations, and his undaunted courage in facing the hardships of pioneer life cannot fail to captivate the reader.

It really deserves a place in every Marylander's library.

Contains brief history of the Browning family; illustrated cloth; $5.00 postpaid. R. Getty Browning, 1012 Harvey street, Raleigh N. C. —Adv. 9-tf

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 81. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., JULY 25, 1957. PER COPY, 8c NUMBER 21.

Hats Off! . . . . . .

Most of us, we believe, unconsciously take our hats off to the 250 or more volunteer firemen in our county, but it was brought to our mind rather forcefully last Thursday evening at a dinner honoring thirteen members of the Deer Park and Oakland departments.

These firemen had spent one night a week for 20 weeks during the winter and spring months, three hours at each meeting, with several hours of study to prepare themselves, just in order to be better firemen, and to learn how to combat fire with the least loss to the persons affected. The year before twenty or more had spent the same amount of time taking a basic course that would make it possible for them to take the advanced course just completed.

We were aware that fighting fire took a lot of time—that often a fireman's clothes were ruined by water—that sometimes a fireman was injured while at work—that most firemen loved what they were doing—but it was not until the other night that we realized that it also took special knowledge to fight fire properly.

As was pointed out, fighting fire is getting complicated and to do it properly, there must be courses of study.

There are those who like to criticize firemen for the way they go about extinguishing blazes, but we always thought they did a terrific job. Now that they are studying the technicalities of fire fighting, we can expect even better performances. But this week we want especially to take our hats off to these volunteers, who do their job with absolutely no thought of reward. They do it on behalf of their fellow men. We'll admit they all enjoy this type of fighting, but why not be joyful while rendering such a particular type of service to humanity. All deserve a world of credit and chiefly those who have used up long hours of study to improve their efficiency—for the benefit of other people.

Cool Weather Now Prevails After Rain

Cool weather prevailed in the area this week following a soaking rain on Tuesday which dropped 1.48 inches within a 26-hour period.

The rainfall was steady throughout the day and was the type which soaked in without much runoff. It was considered to be of much value to the crops which were beginning to suffer from the lack of moisture.

The temperature dropped to 42 degrees this morning, according to the official reading at the Weber station south of town.

The rain and cooling off period followed one of the hottest times of the season. The thermometer got up to 92 degrees on Sunday and 91 degrees on Monday. Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday were hot and humid. Some sections around the Lake and Swallow Falls area got a soaking rain also on Sunday night but other sections were not affected.

Two heat prostrations were reported Monday.

Apparently there were two heat prostrations on Monday. Robert Resh, of Accident, became ill at the Court House and was taken to Memorial hospital where he remains under observation.

Another man whose name could not be learned, became ill for a brief period at the Sunoco service station on Third street. However, he apparently recovered and went on his way.

To Distribute Year Books

Year books of Southern High school will be given out to senior students on Saturday, July 27 at the high school between 12 and 3 o'clock it was announced this week.

The date for distribution to underclassmen will be made known soon.

The reason for the delay was because the picture of another high school than Southern appeared on the opening page of the book. The publishing company, a midwestern establishment, had the books returned for correction.

Hospital Given Accredited Rating

The Garrett County Memorial hospital in Oakland has received an accredited rating among hospitals for a period of three years, from the Joint Commission on accreditation of hospitals, it was announced this week by Henry W. McComas, superintendent.

A letter to Mr. McComas, dated July 16, from the Joint Commission, with headquarters in Chicago, Ill., says: "The Board of Commissioners of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has approved the recommendation that Garrett County Memorial hospital be accredited for a period of three years or until a subsequent survey is conducted. This is the result of the evaluation of the hospital conducted on May 20, 1957 by Warren G. Atwood, M.D., field representative of the Commission.

"Your hospital is entitled to a Certificate of Accreditation. The Commission wishes to commend you for maintaining standards deserving of accreditation and for your constant effort to improve the quality of patient care."

Member organizations of the Joint Commission on accreditation include American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, American Hospital association, American Medical association and Canadian Medical association.

McComas said that the hospital had an accredited rating last year for a one year period only. He said only a limited number of hospitals were able to obtain the three-year status.

Sewage Disposal Causing Concern

The Board of Education encountered difficulty this week in completing arrangements for the disposal of sewage at the new Elementary school now under construction near Southern High school, just east of the Oakland city limits.

During a meeting with State Health department officials in Baltimore last Friday, the health authorities said they would refuse to issue a permit.

The Board of Education had made satisfactory arrangements with the Mayor and Town Council of Mt. Lake Park to attach the school's sewage line to the Mt. Lake Park sewers. The Board maintained that the project was merely one of transfer—that is, transfer of a certain amount of sewage from one sewer line to another. One of the two present elementary school buildings in Oakland is to be closed when the new school is opened, and the board asserted there would be no additional amount of sewage involved and that it would end up in the same place—that place being the Little Youghiogheny river.

Some officials were of the opinion the health department was using this incident to try to force the two towns to construct a sewage disposal plant. Construction of such a plant would cost a minimum of half a million dollars, according to authorities.

Attending last Friday's meeting were H. D. Swartzentruber, president of the County Commissioners, and Willard Hawkins, county superintendent of schools.

Finally the health officials agreed to reconsider the request and are holding another meeting today in Baltimore, which Mr. Hawkins is attending.

Watershed Reforest Program Discussed

A program of reforestation over a period of the next five years has been set up in connection with the forestry aspect of the Little Youghiogheny Watershed program in this county.

William H. Johnson, district forester, who met last week with Frank Paradise, watershed expert of the U. S. Forest Service, said that the tree planting project was discussed fully.

R. Thomas Thayer, assistant district forester who attended the meeting along with A. R. Bond, assistant forester in Annapolis, will endeavor to write management plans for all private timberland owners within the watershed, Mr. Johnson said.

They will be given recommendations for the handling of timber in order to secure the most efficient water holding capacity in the areas.

Mr. Johnson pointed out that they would get under way as soon as possible. Landowners will be asked to institute practices outlined in the management plans.

Student Awarded Two Scholarships

Jack Caruthers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Caruthers of Jennings, near Grantsville, has been awarded two four-year scholarships it was announced this week by Paul Muha, principal of Northern High school.

Jack's first four-year scholarship in the State Senatorial scholarship, awarded by Clifford Friend, State Senator. This scholarship, in the amount of $1,200 per year, is to the Johns Hopkins University's School of Engineering in Baltimore.

The State Senatorial scholarship, which Jack has received, is one of three scholarships that was made available to Garrett County graduates as a result of State Legislation some twenty-two years ago. Since that time, Garrett County youth have been taking advantage of these scholarships. Each county in the state has been allotted three scholarships at Johns Hopkins. These scholarships are administered by the county senators. The basis for awarding them is dependent upon the student's scholastic achievement. The funds for these scholarships are made available by the State of Maryland.

The second four-year scholarship is the Harbison-Walker Foundation scholarship sponsored by the Harbison-Walker Foundation, Inc. This scholarship, in the amount of $500 per year, is to any college or university. Jack will use this scholarship at the Johns Hopkins University.

The Harbison-Walker Foundation Scholarship is awarded to children of employes of the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company. The local plant, known as the New Savage Works, is located at Jennings. The local superintendent, Harry L. Renwick, said that the company is awarding 15 scholarships this year. The purpose of these scholarships is to encourage more students to study engineering, thus helping to alleviate the shortage of engineers in America.

In addition to the Harbison-Walker Scholarship, Jack will be employed during the summer months at the local plant. At present, he is working as a lab assistant in Jennings.

E. T. Hile, Vice President of the Harbison - Walker Refractories Company is in charge of the Company's scholarship program.

According to Mr. Muha, Jack was an outstanding scholar during his five years at Northern High School. He is 17 years old and was enrolled in the Academic Curriculum during his last four years. While in school, he participated in a number of school activities and was a member of several clubs. He was on the Honorable Mention Roll (An honor list for students obtaining better than a "B" average in their class work.) for seven semesters. His hobbies are reading and drawing.

Executive Committee Named By C. Of C.

An executive committee of three persons was named Monday night to head the Mt. Top Chamber of Commerce until the time of the annual election next January. The Chamber was in the process of reorganizing after a few months of inactivity.

Eighteen men were named as members of the Board of Directors at a meeting on July 15, and thirteen of the eighteen were present Monday evening for the reorganization session.

I. R. Rudy, Jr., Newton Coplin and Willis Shaffer were named as the three top men. Frank McDaniel was named secretary-treasurer and the executive committee was given the authority to name a corresponding secretary.

A program of activities is to be outlined and a study made of the group's by-laws. The next meeting of the board will be called by the executive committee in the near future.

Plan Band Concert

The summer band of Southern High school, Oakland, will present an informal concert on Saturday evening, July 27, on the Court House lawn, beginning at 7 o'clock, it was announced by Raymand Borrell, director.

Mr. Borrell explained that the band was made up of students who remain here during the summer months and who enjoy getting together to play during the vacation period.

Among the numbers on the program will be Voice of America, Freedom City, Indiana State Band march, all marches; a waltz, Waves of the Danube; Star Dust, When the Saints Go Marching In, and Trombone King. Two of them will feature majorette routines.

Road Job Awarded To Hazelwood Firm

A contract has been awarded by the State Roads Commission to the George F. Hazelwood company for the modernization of 3.37 miles of State Route 135, from near Deer Park to a point just inside Mt. Lake Park.

G. Bates Chaires, district State Roads commission engineer, said the contract is for $645,422, and also includes the erection of a three span bridge near Mt. Lake Park and widening of one existing small bridge.

The project is a continuation of the road work completed by the Hazelwood firm this past spring from the Swanton section to Deer Park. The new highway will be 24 feet wide and includes some relocation of the route.

The contracting firm notified Chaires that it would start on the new project within a few days.

The visit is being sponsored by the Friendsville Fire department auxiliary with Mrs. Fred Humberson as chairman.

Mrs. Grover Stemple, blood recruitment chairman for the county, said that since no visit was to be made at Accident this year, she was hopeful that a number of people from the Accident area would volunteer to give blood during the visit to Friendsville.

Bishop To Visit Here

Weed Killer Thought Cause of Ill Cattle

Several cattle have died and others made seriously ill along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks in recent weeks. The cattle allegedly were poisoned by the weed-killing spray put out along the railroad right of way.

Among the stockmen and farmers whose herds have been affected were Robert Bowser, Hutton; Boyd Lee, Fingerboard road, Lester Gank, Hutton; and Walter Hamill, Deer Park. Walter Hamill lost three cows which Dr. F. D. Custer, veterinarian, said died as the result of arsenic poisoning. He said Lee had lost two with others becoming ill, while Bowser had lost two with three becoming ill.

It was understood that the persons who had lost cattle were entering claims against the railroad. Similar occurrences had occurred around Clarksburg, and in the vicinity of Moorefield, W. Va.

The spray apparently being spread by a high pressure nozzle, had drifted beyond the boundaries of the railroad right-of-way.

Properties Change Hands

Several changes in property were effected during the past few days in Oakland.

The Pontiac garage building was purchased by Fred W. Burgwald.

Bennett's Body shop was purchased by Prentice DeBerry and has been rented to Charles Meyer who will operate the Pontiac automobile agency from that place. The Bennett family plans to move to Florida in the near future.

It was not known what the former Pontiac building would be used for. Fred W. Burgwald, new owner, was out of town and not available for comment.

Plans Progress For County Fair

Will Be Held At McHenry August 13 To 17; Program Is Planned

The program for Garrett county's first agricultural fair since 1931 was rounding into shape this week with meetings of the Board of Directors, Department heads and other officials.

The fair will be held at McHenry from Tuesday, August 13, to Saturday, August 17.

R. Nelson Phelps, executive secretary to the State Fair Board, met with officials Monday night at Oakland and instructed them in the operation of the various departments, stressed accuracy in keeping the records of entries, and furnished other information about the details of conducting a fair.

H. G. Gortner, president of the Board of Directors, said that the directors would meet at the fair building on Friday, July 26, and that heads of departments would meet Monday evening, July 29, to select space and complete final plans.

Gortner said the construction of a live stock building 24 by 100 feet was under way and would be completed in plenty of time. The exhibits will be placed in the Bowman boat barn, 40 by 200 feet, and that some of the entertainment would take place at the stock car racing area.

The Grand Ole Opry, featuring Hawkshaw Hawkins and Jean Shepherd, will be presented Thursday and Friday, afternoon and evening, August 15 and 16, at the stock car area, as a part of the Fair program.

Beam's Attractions Coming

Beam's Attractions will be set up on Monday, August 12, and will be ready to operate on Tuesday, August 13. They will remain on the grounds until Saturday night. These rides, shows and concessions are similar to those which furnished the amusements for the Centennial celebration in Oakland in 1949, and which received favorable comment from all areas.

Mr. Gortner said the full program for the fair was yet to be worked out, but that Farm Bureau Day was planned for Tuesday, August 13, with the farm queen to be crowned at 8 o'clock that evening. Wednesday is to be known as "Kiddies' Day", with school bands present on the fair grounds both afternoon and evening. Plans are also being made for a parade of farm machinery, live stock, trades display and floats on Thursday evening, August 14.

Mrs. Charles Wilt, superintendent of the Women's department for the fair met department heads Monday night. These included Mrs. James Glotfelty, Accident, clothing; Mrs. Earle Glotfelty, McHenry, foods; Mrs. Donald MacMurray, Mt. Lake Park, arts and crafts; Mrs. Harry Friend, Oakland, flowers and plants.

Mrs. Wilt suggested that each homemaker club fair chairman receive entries from her club area. Entries may also be sent to Claude Wagner, Sr., McHenry, by August 1. Entries are to be on the fair grounds by 7 p. m., August 12.

Mrs. Wilt said the heads of the women's departments plan to confer with the heads of similar departments in Cumberland prior to the opening of the fair.

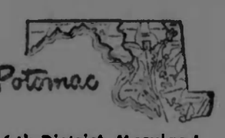
The Fair catalog and premium list have been printed and any interested person may get a copy from the office of John H. Carter, county agent, C. W. Wagner, McHenry; Mr. Gortner, at Oakland, or from any member of the Board of Directors.

The catalog contains 80 pages and cover and contains the list of premiums available to those who exhibit cattle, horses, ponies, sheep, swine, poultry, agricultural farm crops, vegetables, maple products, Christmas trees, homemakers products. There are also areas for girls and boys 4-H club departments, F.F.A. department, 4-H booth exhibits, F.F.A. and 4-H tractor operators' contest, crafts and shop work.

The first county fair was held in 1917 in the Naylor building on Third street. As more space was needed, the Bradley property west of Oakland was purchased and the fair was held there for several years. The fifteenth annual fair in 1931 was the last one until this year.

State's traffic death toll for year up to July 22, was 283, six more than for same period of 1956.

Along The Potomac



Congressman De Witt S. Hyde - 6th District, Maryland

There is wide misunderstanding of the meaning and the purpose of the Status-of-Force Agreements. Actually these agreements permit our far-flung defense operations and grant our soldiers protection they would not otherwise have. Without a Status-of-Forces Agreement, foreign nations have the right to arrest and try our men for violating their laws whether or not the soldier is on duty. Under such agreements they give up the right to arrest and try our men while on duty and guarantee them certain legal protection.

If we agree that it is wise military policy and good defense to keep our troops in foreign countries for our protection, then we must concede to those countries some rights to enforce their laws. It seems to me that it is wise to maintain our forces overseas in the foreseeable future so that if an attack comes from the Communist world, it will not strike first on our own shores.

There is something about the manipulation of the Girard case that troubles me. What is behind it all? I am convinced that the manipulators were not motivated by a humanitarian interest in the case itself, but saw in it a means of reaching another goal. Whatever the motive, the tragedy is that the excitement created by the Girard case has played into the hands of extreme right organizations and extreme left groups.

The Communists and other leftish organizations are glorying in the opportunity of using our emotional concern as a means of defeating our foreign military aid programs and forcing withdrawal of our troops from overseas. Isolationists, too, are using the case to further their own views. Both the extreme right and extreme left know that repeal of the Status-of-Forces Agreements would force us to withdraw our troops from foreign stations since our men would no longer be protected.

U. of Md. Research Sets Feeding Record

A new idea for feeding chickens has enabled University of Maryland poultry scientists to set what is believed to be a record for economical feeding of broilers.

In a large-scale experiment recently completed at the University's Salisbury broiler substation, the poultry nutrition researchers raised 6,400 broilers at feed costs varying from 8.52 to 9.92 cents per pound of broiler produced. This is the cheapest feed cost ever obtained by the Maryland scientists in a large scale trial and is thought to be lower than any reported elsewhere.

Feed costs were calculated at manufacturer's current costs for ingredients, plus a standard $16 a ton mark-up.

Large amounts of animal and vegetable fats, varying from two to 18 percent, were added to the feeds to obtain the greater feed efficiency. The fats, a by product of glycerine manufacturing, provide a cheap and highly concentrated source of energy for poultry feed. The protein level was also increased to maintain a caloric energy-protein ratio of 42 to 1 for the first six weeks. By increasing the amount of corn in the ration, the ratio was changed to 50-1 for the final two-week finishing period.

The most efficient feed, the one with 18 percent fat added produced 1,600 2.71 pound broilers in eight weeks on 1.89 pounds of feed per pound of broiler produced. Average feed cost was 8.81 cents per pound of bird. One of the pens of 100 Vantress White crossbred broilers used in the experiment was grown at an average feed cost of 8.52 cents per pound of broiler produced.

Even though this 18 percent added fat ration produced the most meat at the lowest cost, the scientists, G. F. Combs, G. L. Romoser and J. L. Nicholson, say that feeds with this much fat included aren't yet practical for broiler growers. The feed could be produced at a low enough cost to make it economically practical, but such a high fat content makes it hard to feed in self-feeders.

However, the 10 percent added fat ration would be practical, they say. In the experiment, the 1,600 birds fed the 10 percent added fat ration weighed 2.78 pounds in eight weeks. Only 2.01 pounds of feed were required per pound of bird. Feed cost 9.18 cents per pound of broiler produced.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Though the national conventions of the two political parties are just about three years away and the next presidential elections somewhat more than that—there is today far greater speculation about probable candidates than any one can recall at a similar period. The reasons are fairly clear.

—o—

For none in neither party is there a single man of unquestioned presidential size and recognized availability. This is not to say that among those now being "mentioned" as possible nominees for this or higher elective offices there are not several who easily could make better presidents than some we have had. It is to say that there is no towering figure with a national reputation and great personal popularity in sight. Such a man was and is General Eisenhower, now debarred by constitutional amendment from by reason of years and age from a third term. If there is another in the latter does not now occur. This leaves the game pretty wide open in both parties. The quite natural result is that a great many more so-called public men are being "mentioned" for the presidency than would be "mentioned" at all under ordinary circumstances this far in advance.

—o—

Some of these are really ridiculous pure or, perhaps, not so pure publicity seekers, cheap demagogues and breast-beaters. Most of them are in the Democratic party for the very simple reason that that party will have been out of power for several years and has seen its vastly publicized and terrifically beaten little hero Adlai E. Stevenson—twice so overwhelmingly defeated that he, himself, has joined the majority of Democrats who supported him in the belief that, regardless of who may be nominated on the other side, he is not desired by the majority of American voters.

—o—

Recently, there has been a rather feeble revival of the four-year-old boom for Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, which makes a little more sense though not very much more than the wide advertisement of various other Roosevelt New Dealers with their able and sometimes silly press agents. After the 1956 Democratic convention, most of the party columnists conceded that Governor Harriman had lost his last chance for the presidency. He would be in 1960, they pointed out, 70 years old—much too advanced in years either to run for, or to be, President. Now, apparently appalled at the absurdity of the roll call of those who aspire to become their party's choice, some of the more exalted of these publicists have reconsidered their attitude toward Governor Harriman. In the first place, they assert, he will not quite be 70 when the next election occurs but actually a few months away from that forbidding age milestone.

—o—

It is further pointed out that if, as expected, he is renominated and re-elected Governor of New York in 1958, he will be very much in the Democratic presidential picture in 1960, certainly more so than such well publicized figures as Senator Wayne Morse, the turncoat from Oregon, or Senator Hubert Humphrey, the garrulous statesman from Minnesota, or Governor Soapy Williams of Michigan, the political creature of the somewhat odoriferous Walker Reuther, who is the recognized despot of the AFL-CIO labor combination which seeks to run the country, and under the trueculent Mr. Truman pretty nearly did.

—o—

The Harriman advocates at this time make two rather potent points in his favor. One is that he will twice have demonstrated his ability to carry New York, the state with more electoral votes than any other. The second is that Mr. Harriman financially, is the best equipped not only of any Democratic aspirants but of all of them combined. Most of them are—or at least, pretend to be—poorer than the well-known church mouse.

When one ponders the fact that exceedingly few Presidents have ever been elected without the electoral vote of New York, it must be conceded that despite his handicaps, Governor Harriman has assets which few others so far "mentioned" have. He has one or two other admitted political assets and no one can recall that, though a polo player, he has ever had a serious illness. In a later column, the Republican 1960 situation will be dealt with.

Listen Americans!

BY GEORGE S. BENSON

President of Harding College

The destiny of America in the days ahead is wrapped up in the substance of the education being given the generation now in junior high schools, senior high schools, and colleges throughout our country. People are what they are taught to be, and we are either teaching this generation of youth to be grateful, intelligent, responsible custodians of the American heritage of freedom, or we are teaching them in a manner that will cause them to lose their freedom and nullify the magnificent progress of this great nation.

The Harding Academy (high school) at Searcy is pioneering in the development of American citizenship education. Last week we dealt with the Academy's unique course in American Government. Other courses already developed for the high school grades are Civics, American History, and World History.

Specifically, the outline for Civics sets forth these goals to be developed in each student: (1) To know and understand the basic freedoms guaranteed to American citizens under our Constitution; (2) To recognize the great differences between the concept of American democracy and totalitarian doctrines; (3) To know the values of Western society—religion, morality, Constitutional government, and the dignity of the individual.

(4) To recognize the value of American citizenship; (5) To know the rights and duties of good citizens; (6) To develop the spirit of free inquiry, working toward the development of ultimate truth—truth, and only truth, being the goal of free inquiry; (7) To understand propaganda techniques; (8) To appreciate the advantages of the American way of life.

Basic textbook for this Harding Academy Civics course is Today's Problems, by R. O. Hughes, Allyn and Bacon, Dallas, publishers. Reference books are: Fundamentals of Citizenship, Blough and Switzer, Laidlaw Brothers, Dallas; Your Rugged Constitution, Esther and Bruce Findlay, Science Research Associates, Dallas; Problems Facing American Democracy, Horace Kidger, Ginn and Company, Dallas; Know Your Enemy, Delia S. Mares, Banks Upshaw and Company, Dallas; The Constitution of the United States, Thomas James Norton, Committee for Constitutional Government, Inc., New York; The Mainspring of Human Progress, Henry Grady Weaver, Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y.; United States History, Fremont P. Wirth, American Book Company, New York.

One Man Looks At God

(By Charles W. Carlson, Pastor, St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Oakland, Maryland.)

In continuing our series on the Epistle of James, we will this week consider his words, recorded in the second chapter, verses 14 through 17.

What does it profit, my brethren, if a man says he has faith but has not works? Can his faith save him? If a brother or sister is ill-clad and in lack of daily food, and one of you says to them, "Go in peace, be warmed and filled", without giving them the things needed for the body, what does it profit? So faith by itself, if it has no works, is dead.

When the great doctrine of salvation by faith was proclaimed by the reformer Martin Luther, one of the most serious offshoots of this doctrine was the misinterpretation of it to mean salvation without works. This of course is a horrible mistake to make either in the gospel itself, or in the doctrine of salvation that has come forth from the reformation. Indeed we cannot by reason of our own worthiness earn our salvation, for it is only through the mercy and forgiveness of God's Son, Jesus Christ our Lord, that we can have a place as God's children, and this is just what salvation is — earned by Christ for us, not by us for us. Yet when we say that we believe in Jesus Christ, that is when we make claim to have faith in Him, we must mean more than just the mere admission of the fact that He really lived and did the things that the Bible said He did. We must go much further than the mere admission of our minds that Christ means something, further than just the words of our mouths in the proclamation of our faith in Him.

We as a total church have fallen far short of the possibilities that we could have done in history, to proclaim the gospel in action. Though many people are quick to condemn the welfare state as a state which produces unnecessary laziness on the part of those who receive welfare, yet the welfare state is largely the result of the fact that the church has been unwilling to fill the gap. There are some exceptions. The Salvation Army spends almost its exclusive witness in the matter of helping people out of love in practical ways. But the trouble is, not enough churches do anything like this. And unless the tide starts to swing in the opposite direction, it looks like the state is going to do more and more, the church less and less, in the way of helping him who is "ill-clad and in lack of daily food." When this happens, the ministry of the church is going to be weakened, perhaps to a real point of danger. For Christ came not just "talking a good line"; He fed. He healed. He helped people to whom He came to preach the Gospel of repentance in ways in which they really had a need.

There should be more talk in our churches about the work of missions both at home and abroad, and less about new buildings where they are not really needed; there should be more talk about how we as a church can help the minority groups of our country realize their heritage as children of God, and less about how we prove our superiority by using bigger organs and more expensive stained glass windows. We as a supposedly Christian nation should be a little more aware of the practical need for food on the part of two-thirds of the population of the world, and less interested in how we are going to sell our products at a big profit.

As I have said to my people many times, we can recite the words of the Apostles' Creed until we are "blue in the face", but unless those profound words of faith come out in the Christian acts of love in the deeds of the housewife, the automobile dealer, the druggist, the milkman, the words mean nothing more than the empty prattle of a bunch of parrots. As James so clearly says: "So faith by itself, if it has no works, is dead".

Review of The Play At the Playhouse

By AZA STANTON

It is not unusual in the theater for the audience to welcome an accomplished actor or actress on stage with a round of applause, therefore it wasn't particularly surprising when this honor was accorded Bonnie Barton, Helen Page Camp, and Tom Calkins during the first play of the season. It is indeed extraordinary however, when each member of the cast, leading and supporting player alike, receives an ovation following his or her final exit. This is precisely what happened during the closing moments of "Bus Stop" on opening night this week. The audience as much as said to each one in the cast of this delightful presentation, "You couldn't have been better!" "Bus Stop", is beyond a shadow of a doubt, the season's unparalleled production at the Garrett County Playhouse, and quite possibly their crowning achievement. Under the experienced eye of Producer Gene Yell, Tom Calkins has expertly directed a superior Library!

The casting of "Bus Stop" is perfect. Neil Flannagan is absolutely brilliant in his portrayal of "Dr. Lyman," a drunken intellectual who speaks philosophically, recites Shakespeare and has a passion for young girls. A Barrymore could not have been more fluent. Playing "Bo", a tempestuous young cowboy with an unorthodox courting technique, Cris Curran turns in another splendid performance. This young fellow has talent to burn! Sandra Teboe has never been more wonderful than she is as "Cherie", a beautiful lullibily from the Ozarks whose sole claim to fame seems to be a pendulating show-girl routine to the tune of "That Old Black Magic".

Needless to say, Bonnie Barton is matchless in the role of "Grace", the rough and ready proprietress of Grace's Diner, and Helen Page Camp is, as always, singularly priceless as "Elma", the waitress.

William Pappas is magnificent as "Virgil", the young cowboy's side-kick, and Joseph Hanrahan is the most convincing sheriff I've seen for a long time. Peter Mallon does his best job to date in the role of "Carl", the bus driver.

"Bus Stop" is a refreshingly amusing love story involving the ill-mannered cowboy and the shapely dance-hall queen from the Ozarks. The action (and there is certainly action a-plenty) takes place in Grace's Diner, the bus stop to which the title refers. Sandwiched between the antics of the love-sick cowboy in his frantic efforts to marry and whisk the show-girl off to his ranch in Montana whether she likes it or not, the play manages a few side-line romances and diversified droll interludes. It is excellent entertainment, to say the least!

THE GOLF SHOT THAT COST $50,000

A "Sunday golfer" hooked. The ball hit a woman driving a car, and the car turned over. The occupants, permanently disabled and disfigured, sued for $50,000.

"Our Growing Edge"

MRS. MARTHA GLOTFELTY

With A Song In Our Hearts

Tom Brown, who spent his life as a county farm agent in Union County, N. C., said in his later days, "There is a song in my heart all the day long because of the progress and betterment I have been able to help my people accomplish."

Sometimes, amid the struggle to make a living for ourselves and our families, I believe each one of us should have something that we do in living service to God and our fellow-man that put a song in our hearts, too. Our work, no matter how menial should have some meaning for us, and we need to find time for those creative, constructive tasks that really make us sing.

There is a great need today for young people to go into the many types of work and the professions which do not yield large dividends in a financial way, but which pay great dividends in happiness and a sense of fulfillment. All of our leading rural magazines tell of the great need for all kinds of agricultural leaders and workers. For more rural ministers, more well trained rural school teachers. These are all very satisfying jobs.

Just last Sunday, a young student pastor serving our rural church said the primary reason more young men do not become ministers is because of their personal selfishness. For his part, he found his work to be a soul satisfying one, and hoped some day to work especially with rural folks.

I never to got a story Mr. Walter Dawson told some years ago in a teacher's meeting. He told of a teacher who came to a backwoods community, where the folks had little education and few opportunities.

She was honestly interested in them, and with all her might tried to help them. After she was there awhile, the folks began to talk better, to think better, even to stand straighter, with more pride and self-confidence. She gave them a new picture of their potential abilities. You know, I'll bet her heart had a song in it too. What would our world do without folks like that?

This creative work done by the folks in many professions and trades is so very important we could not measure it in terms of money. The ones who do this work have a joy of bringing new visions, new insights to their fellow-men. If done in the right spirit, the song should be there.

For all of us who have already chosen a life's work there are creative tasks for us too. They are all around us. We, too can have in the doing of them—a song in our hearts.

Senate Cloakroom

By J. GLENN BEALL
United States Senator from Maryland

On January 11, just eight days after the beginning of the current 85th Congress, President Eisenhower signed this session's first public law.

Since then more than 100 other measures have also been added to our Nation's statute books.

Some affect Marylanders directly; some only indirectly.

During the next few weeks, I would like to discuss a few of these new laws with you.

Capital Area Holiday

The very first measure that was passed this year—Public Law 1 of the 85th Congress—will provide a periodic extra holiday for many residents of the metropolitan area of the District of Columbia.

This law makes each Presidential Inauguration Day a legal holiday for Federal employees of the D. C. region, and it includes a section which states specifically that it shall apply to Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

Aid For Small Business

Another law signed early in this session is of special importance to the Free State's small businesses.

Under the terms of this act, the funds available to Small Business Administration for business loans have been increased from $150 million to $230 million.

An indication of Maryland's interest in this legislation can be gained from the fact that during the fiscal year which ended this past June 30, the S. B. A. approved a total of $1,457,000 in business loans for our State.

Agricultural Legislation

Our agricultural interests will profit from the effects of the new Federal Plant Pest Act.

This establishes specific authority for the Department of Agriculture to regulate and control the importation and the interstate movement of plant diseases and disease-bearing organisms.

In addition, it adds four new plant pests to the list of those against which the Department of Agriculture is authorized to conduct eradication and control programs.

The new additions are listed as "fire ants, soybean cyst nematode, witchweed and spotted alfalfa aphid."

I have been informed by the Department of Agriculture that while none of these is now a major problem in Maryland, it is possible that the first three could spread to our area unless steps are taken under the new law to contain them farther south.

Concerning the spotted alfalfa aphid, the Agriculture Department said that it has spread eastward rapidly from the Southwest and that "Maryland will probably get it some day, too."

The intensity of our problem and the effectiveness of our attack on it will probably depend to a large extent on the program to be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Plant Pest Act.

NOTES FROM MY APPOINTMENT BOOK — Although the Senate was going into session early and working extra late on the Civil Rights Bill, we adjourned several nights in time for me to participate in affairs honoring Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and our newly appointed Ambassador to the Dominican Republic, the Hon. Joseph S. Farland. My schedule also included the annual crab feast of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick, in Baltimore, and the U. S. O. Gi-Pal dinner aboard the aircraft carrier USS Leyte, off Annapolis. During a meeting at which all of us in the Maryland Congressional delegation questioned Secretary of the Navy Gates about the attitude of his department toward Maryland's shipyards, the Secretary promised that we would receive our "fair share" of construction and repair contracts. He also said that he is still studying the operations of the Office of the Supervisor of shipbuilding and Assistant Industrial Manager, in Baltimore, to see whether it would be more efficient and economical to have some of the work done elsewhere. In any case, essential functions will be handled through a Baltimore office, said Secretary Gates. I have now written to him urging him as strongly as possible to maintain the offices, titles and powers of "the Supervisor of shipbuilding and Assistant Industrial Manager" right in Baltimore itself, despite any changes which might have to be made.

Nine Arrested For Destroying Property

Nine young men from Monessen, Pa., apparently started out last week to "do up" a portion of the Deep Creek Lake area, and ended up in the clutches of the county and state authorities.

They were charged by Charles H. Bowman, of McHenry, with malicious destruction of property after damaging his boat house Friday night, and Constable Mark H. Maust and State Troopers Corporal Sam Conrad, and Trooper First class Robert D. Hentlee brought the following into custody:

John Beerick, Keith Brodle, John Seekman, John Braddock, John Steeple, George Stemanok, Anthony Train, Richard Kuhar and Darrell Reed.

Brought before Trial Magistrate Earl C. Friend they all pleaded guilty to the charge. The Bowmans estimated their damages at $30 and informed the magistrate they would not press charges if this amount was paid.

So Magistrate Friend ordered them to pay the damages and the costs in the case which amounted to over $50. Their bail amounted to cause trouble Tuesday night at Thayer's Barn but were halted by State Police.

Assault Cases

A case was heard on July 24 involving common assault charged against Raymond Butts, 19, of near Grantsville. The assault was alleged to have taken place upon a thirteen-year-old girl.

The man pleaded guilty to the charge but before sentence was pronounced Butts, through his attorney, E. Ray Jones withdrew the plea and requested a jury trial. The case will be heard at the September term of court.

Constable Moon also has a warrant for the arrest of Joe Hardesty, who is charged with assault against Donald Rantch. The pair had an altercation outside the Arrow Club one day last week, and as a result Rantch went over to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital where his wounds were dressed. Thus far Moon has been unable to locate Hardesty.

Another charge of assault was lodged against H. Heise by deputy Yatchchyshyn, on July 21, following an alleged altercation over a reservation. Heise prayed a jury trial, and will be heard at the September term of court.

Assault Case Settled

One assault case was settled through an agreement of attorneys W. Dwight Stover and William O. Treacy.

The case involved Arthur Savage, Oakland, who was charged with assault and battery by James Hesen at Thayer's barn on July 6.

According to S. R. Pagenhardt, State's attorney, an assault case is the only criminal case that can be settled by agreement between the prosecuting witness and the defendant. The agreement was not made public.

Applies For Permit For Radio Station

A Vandergrift man, native of Vindex, has submitted an application to the Federal Communications Commission to start a radio station on route 56 in this county near Frostburg.

C. Carl Loughry, proprietor of Carl's Radio and Electric Service in Vandergrift, and singer of country music over radio station WAVL in Apollo, Pa., filed the application in Washington, D. C.

Loughry is sole owner of the enterprise which would trade as Western Maryland Broadcasting company. Applications take anywhere from two months to a year for approval.

In explaining plans for the new station, provided it is approved by the FCC, Loughry said it would be the only regional station in the area. It would have a frequency of 740 KC with power of 250 Watts, and would be operated daytime only.

Loughry said he has verifications concerning purchase of land and equipment, construction of a building, financing and availability of personnel to run the station. Initial construction cost was estimated at $25,985.26. Operating cost for the year was set at $43,000 with probable revenue $65,000.

Loughry has been associated with the Apollo radio station for nearly eight years where he has a daily program at 10:30 a. m. Loughry said he would continue to operate his business at Vandergrift as in the past.

He started his career in radio as a hillbilly singer over station WTBO, Cumberland, when 17. A native of Vindex, he was graduated from Kitzmiller High school, class of 1941. He was connected with WITH, Baltimore; WANN, Annapolis, and WMBS, Uniontown. He is a first class radio telephone operator, licensed by the FCC and completed engineering studies at Cleveland Institute of Radio Electronics.

Bids Received For Two Forestry Camps

R. L. Hamilton, Westernport, was apparent low bidder on construction of two forestry camps for boys in this county. Only two bids were received by the State Department of Public Improvements.

The Westernport man bid $123,000 for erection of three pre-fabricated metal buildings at each camp, one to be located near Lonaconing and the other at New Germany.

He also submitted a bid of $105,450 for wood frame structures similar to army barracks buildings. Marshall Lumber company of Lonaconing bid $126,516 for metal buildings but did not bid on the frame structures.

Bids also were received on five alternates. Without the staff cottage the metal type buildings would cost $97,120. With elimination of staff cottage with frame construction Hamilton bid $81,580. By eliminating the recreation area from the frame construction Hamilton bid $96,570.

The final alternate concerned certain minor changes in electrical wiring in the kitchen. With these alternates Hamilton bid $122,130 with metal construction and $104,580 with frame construction.

The General Construction Loan of 1956, provided by the General Assembly includes the appropriation of $89,000 for construction of two forestry camps and $11,000 for equipment. Only one of the alternates was within the $89,000 figure.

Each camp would accommodate 26 boys assigned from the Maryland Training School for Boys and Boys Village, and the necessary supervisory personnel.

Eventually the camps will be composed of three basic buildings, the first building containing the dining hall and kitchen, hobby room and recreation room and a small laundry. The second building will include a dormitory, toilet and shower rooms, counselor room and locker room.

The third building would be for staff, with living facilities for the supervisory and training personnel. As part of the training program boys assigned to the camps would complete interior finish on floors, ceilings, shelving and walls and extend water and sanitary lines.

The bids were referred to the State Department of Public Welfare for recommendation to the State Department of Public Improvements. Before a contract is awarded it must be approved by the Board of Public Works.

A traveling salesman was Harry G. Blowe,
Who could sell ice cubes to an eskimo,
But he fell for a line slicker than his,
From a new car salesman—wow! what a whiz!

The car had style—years out of date,
The features were new—back in '48!
Harry's still smiling, the tears hardly show,
But how he wishes he could get back his dough!

Moral: Don't get "bargain-talked" into yesterday's styling and features!

Like a lot of people, Harry was looking for a "good buy" in a new car. But no car is a bargain if it's outmoded before you drive it a mile. For the same money, Harry could have stepped up to a dashing Swept-Wing Dodge—so new it actually obsoletes other cars in its field. Obsoletes their high, boxy design with the low, low look of tomorrow. Obsoletes their old-fashioned features with such advances as Torsion-Aire Ride, Push-Button TorqueFlite and Total-Contact Brakes. So don't do what Harry did—please. See your Dodge dealer today.

My Private Movie

There was a day last summer that I keep tucked away in the back of my mind, like a miniature mental movie all my own. Sometimes, when other days aren't quite as bright as this one was, I take it out and reel off a private showing.

It was a Sunday. We'd beeen to church, Lee and the three children and I. Then we went home and packed up a big picnic lunch and took it down to the creek. It was one of those perfect summer days poets have written about. Everything tasted better than it could possibly have been. When we'd finished eating, the kids sailed their boats while Lee and I stretched out on the grass and looked up in the blue silk sky, all dotted with fleecy white clouds.

We didn't say anything, but I know that we were both thanking God for all the blessings he'd bestowed on us. I know that we were feeling, just then, particularly at peace with ourselves, and with the universe. I was thinking, too, of our kids as they'd come out of Sunday School that morning, with their bright faces glowing, and I gave a silent vote of gratitude to my parents for having raised me in the Church. Now I was able, in turn, to pass on this priceless heritage to my own children.

In this high pressure, jet-propelled age we're living in, we need so much to guide our children in the right way. Without the aid of the Church I, for one, would be at a total loss—and that afternoon I realized it, with particular emphasis.

I suppose, when you come right down to it, we really didn't do so much, that Sunday. But it was a day that left me with a feeling of family unity, of togetherness . . . . I shall never forget.

Sometimes, when things are "at sixes and sevens," a parent needs to take time out to remember just how precious a family is. Whenever I find myself in danger of forgetting—I just dust off my movie and live that Sunday all over again, to myself.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Oakland Country Club News

By JOHN FOX

Notre Dame is probably best known athletically for its football teams. For this reason it is interesting to report that several years ago a very successful graduate of this famous school left an enormous amount of money to the school, "to promote interest and ability in the two activities that he felt contributed as greatly as any of his other experiences in college to his successful achievements in later life." These two activities turned out to be golf and bridge. He felt so strongly about this fact that he left enough money to insure that other Notre Dame students would be exposed to these games.

Thirty of us went over to Uniontown to revenge our last loss to their club, but they refused to cooperate and proceeded to give us an even worse licking this time. Our best scorers were Bill Sharps and Maurice Brookhart, who won all three of their points. Don Smith's opponent (nickname Jabo) shot a 4 under par, 32 for the first nine holes. However, the most impressive thing to me was the spirit displayed at their club. After the match a pick-up contest was played by teams of two players each. Each teammate alternated hitting the ball. A gallery of about 30 to 40 people followed the ten players around the course and applauded the better shots.

Bill Welch playing our No. 5 hole hit the pin, rolled the ball up the stick, and then had it plunk down into the hole for an eagle. That's real control.

Jim Kelley finally stopped George Barger in our club tournament to advance to the semi-finals in his flight, while Maurice Brookhart disposed of David Hopkins in a "sudden death" extra hole match.

Don't forget to make your reservations for our Saturday night, August 3rd dance.

Bye.

Idols Old And New

Lesson for July 28, 1957

IF ANY of the readers of this paper had seen the pillar of Baal that the hero Gideon pulled down, they might not have noticed it at all. It may have been nothing more impressive than a post or pole of some kind, with or without some other image close beside it. Standing up or knocked over, it wouldn't seem to amount to much. And yet Gideon was accounted a hero for destroying it; a hero, because there were many people in the place who thought that tearing down that pillar was nothing short of sacrilege. For to them it was sacred, the most sacred object in the village. When Gideon tore it down, he actually risked his life at the hands of his fanatical neighbors.

Dr. Foreman

Idols Overseas

There is hardly any kind of thing, no matter how ugly, ridiculous or disgusting, that has not become an object of worship somewhere, some time. American Christian travelers to India are generally shocked by the "gods" of Hindu temples. Aside from the unmentionables, there are absurd things like Ganesh, a fat little god with an elephant's head; or little stone bulls on whose heads garlands of yellow flowers will be laid as a tribute. Elsewhere there are great fat Buddhas plated with gold or carved out of stone sitting out beside a mountain road, before whom offerings are placed, of money, food or drink. There are mountains and lakes and waterfalls and trees, local sights for the tourist, which are regarded with superstitious awe. Not an hour goes by, on this planet of ours, without some sort of honor—prayer, gifts, sacrifice—being offered to things which "having eyes see not, having ears hear not" sometimes in human shape, sometimes beastlike, sometimes very hard to classify.

Idols in America

Why do people do such silly things? Perhaps it is for the same reason that Americans worship their idols. Yes we do have idols in our enlightened land though they are seldom called by that name. Whatever a man hangs his heart on and depends on, as Luther said,—that is his god. And if what we hang our heart on and depend on is the true God, then worshipping him and serving him is true religion. But if what we hang our heart on and depend on is not the true God, then whatever we worship, it is an idol, and worshipping it and serving it is not only nonsense, it is sin. Here in America the name of one idol is The Public. Politicians fall down and worship this idol; so do actors and advertisers. Keep the Public happy and careless, for once you lose its favor, you are lost. Another idol is called The Majority. If most people do a thing (or don't do it, as the case may be), then that is the Last Word. Some people would no more think of going against the majority view than they would think of going against God. Indeed for such people the Majority, to all intents and purposes, might as well be God. For they don't listen to God with half the eagerness with which they always want to know what "everybody" does or thinks, before they will decide for themselves.

Only the Brave Break Idols

It took courage, moral and physical, for Gideon to destroy the idol of Baal. It always takes courage to tear down idols. It takes even greater courage to destroy idols oneself has made and worshipped. People who do not follow popular idols are regarded as little queer, if not more than a little sour. Idol-breakers, people who "buck" popular opinions and prejudices, not only have to get over their fear of what people will think, —they have to get over their fear of the idol itself. Whether it is the primitive African, afraid of the volcano he worships, or the ordinary American idolater, a worshipper of money or popularity it takes courage to break, or to break with, an idol of any kind. But once the break is made, once a man's trust is placed in the true God alone, he can smile at the idol whose crawling slave he used to be.

Surveying Remains In Blood Long Time

Surveying stays in the blood a long time, apparently. Here is the story of a fourth generation nephew of the former Garrett County surveyors, James Mason and Alex Mason, of the 1890's.

The story was provided by James M. Kershner, Warren, O., a former Garrett countian.

"James D. Kershner, Warren, O., completed 10 years of service with the Warren Fire department and became affiliated with Kenneth A. Lynn firm of civil engineers and surveyors as an engineer.

"Kershner recently passed the Ohio examination as a professional engineer with his certificate granted at Akron in May. He obtained his license as a registered surveyor in 1951.

"A star football player at Harding High school he also played for Western Reserve University and was named all-Ohio center in 1940. He also played in the Sun Bowl against Arizona State that year. He turned down an offer to play professional football.

"He is a World War II veteran and served with the air force for 3½ years, most of that time in the China-Burma-India area.

"He is married to the former Phyllis O'Brien and is the father of two children, James D., and Susan Elizabeth."

Sen. John Marshall Butler

The Tribunal of Last Resort

That the recent decisions of the Supreme Court have created a twilight zone of judicial and public confusion there can be little debate. Lawyers and laymen alike have echoed the criticisms expressed by some jurists. And, it is suggested that President Eisenhower has privately voiced a measure of alarm concerning the pattern of these newborn rulings by the highest Court in the land — at times called the tribunal of last report — affecting international affairs, internal subversion and Congressional authority.

With an abnormal emphasis upon sociological and idealogical matters, the Supreme Court, in a deluge of precedent-shattering and far-reaching judgments, has demonstrated a disregard for classic legal principles, and in particular, a contempt for the doctrine of stare decisis—the policy of following rules and principles established by previous judicial decisions. With a dismaying hyplay on words, the Court has weakened the ability of the Government to deal with the communist conspiracy. Even its most articulate defenders admit that, more and more, the Court has invaded the legislative field. Indeed, in some quarters, it is said the highest court in the land has become a court of ideologies rather than a court of law.

What is to be done or can be done? In truth, the Congress has the power and the implicit duty to correct any excesses, omissions or errors of the Supreme Court. It is so provided in the Constitution. The Founding Fathers, with a vision and wisdom sadly lacking today, intended that the legislative branch retain an active interest in, and co-equal working relationship with, the Supreme Court and the lower Federal Courts. Of late, too many otherwise well-informed people have blithely assumed, or erroneously concluded, that the Supreme Court is above and superior to the other two branches of our Government. Article III, Section 2 of the Constitution provides a means by which the Congress can and should maintain appropriate control over authorized functions of the Court. And so, it might be said that the Congress is really the tribunal of last resort.

The responsibility of the Congress therefore cannot be cast aside, minimized or wished away. If these troublesome decisions are to be righted, the Congress must act. But, it is essential that these be objective, careful and unemotional actions. To do otherwise might lead to ill-conceived legislative activity, resulting in a greater sense of uncertainty on the part of the American people who have already lost much confidence in the Supreme Court.

Wants House Study On Controls Over Public Purse

Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde, of this district, has called for establishment of a special house committee to study and make recommendations aimed at strengthening Congressional control over the public purse.

Mr. Hyde's request came in the form of a resolution introduced in the House of Representatives. The resolution calls for establishment of a 10-man bipartisan select committee to make the probe. Included in the group would be the chairman and ranking minority member of the House Appropriations committee. Representative Hyde said the committee would be required to make a report on its findings to the full House of Representatives as soon as practicable during the 85th congress.

"FORTY-FOUR YEARS OF THE LIFE OF A HUNTER," by Meshack Browning, Maryland's famous pioneer hunter, is now available.

Although it was first published 98 years ago and is now in its 12th edition, it is more widely read than ever before.

His truthful accounts of desperate encounters with the savage beasts of the forest, his superhuman efforts to maintain his family in the wilderness, far from human aid or associations, and his undaunted courage in facing the hardships of pioneer life cannot fail to captivate the reader.

It really deserves a place in every Marylander's library.

Contains brief history of the Browning family; Illustrated cloth; $5.00 postpaid. R. Getty Browning, 1012 Harvey street, Raleigh N. C. —Adv. 9-1f

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear husband and father, Jemper S. Teats, who passed away two years ago, August 7, 1955.

Gone dear husband, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face.
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still.
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

Sadly missed by his wife, son and family.

Continuing Asset . . . .

About this time last year we made the statement that Deep Creek Lake and its allied property interests were valuable assets to the county, and that without them the taxpayers of the county would long ago have been forced to pay additional revenue to the county in taxes to support its program. We said that in justifying an expenditure for completion of a road through one section of the lake.

After driving around portions of the lake a few days ago, we would like to reemphasize that statement and point out a few additional items.

Everywhere we went we saw additional summer homes being built. At almost every dock we saw two boats, sometimes three, and usually one of them was an expensive power craft, in the $4,000 and $5,000 class.

There are some 1,500 such boats licensed this year and over 3,000 permits granted for use of boats and canoes without motors.

Last year it was estimated that there were around 1,500 cottages around the lake, many of them assessed at $15,000 or better, but the average was estimated at $3,000. This year we would be safe in saying that the number of cottages has increased at least 150, making a total of 1,650.

The county's assessable basis is over $30 million dollars. Of this amount the Pennsylvania Electric's assessment is around $3 million and the properties around the lake have an estimated assessable basis of around $5 million. This does not take into account the value of the boats along the lake since these are not assessable, but they certainly eat up gas.

What we want to emphasize again is that the lake and adjacent properties reach a startling total this year of $8 million, providing more than a fourth of the entire county tax rate. That is not to be "sneezed at" or belittled by any citizen of the county.

These new sections of the lake are building up at such a rapid rate that it won't take many years to add another million dollars to the tax basis.

So let's be thankful we have what we have and continue to appreciate its many benefits.

Summer Theatre Has Record Attendance

The Summer theatre set an attendance record last week. Nine hundred thirty-seven persons attended the five performances of "Bus Stop," which topped any play of the three year period.

This week's offering, "Only An Orphan Girl," will continue this evening, Friday and Saturday evenings, the drama of human trials and tribulations in a purposely exaggerated atmosphere.

To get the audience in the proper mood there is group singing prior to the drama, led by Charles L. Briner, and accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Walter W. Price. Mrs. Price also does piano accompaniment for the entire show.

There are specialty numbers between acts by Bonnie Barton and Neil Flanagan. Around 150 attended last night's performance and director Gene Yell was hopeful that the play would attract more young people during the remaining nights this week.

"The Chalk Garden," by Enid Bagnold is to be presented next week, August 6 through August 10. Playing the feminine leads will be Helen Page Camp and Bonnie Barton. Others in the cast will include Neil Flanagan, Joe Hanrahan, Bill Pappas, Sandra Teboe, Joan Theriault, Fabiola Calkins and a semi-local talent, Miss Janet Loach, summer resident at Deep Creek. Curtain time is 8:30.

Polio Group Elects

The Garrett County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis had its annual meeting Monday night and elected the following officers:

Mrs. William Harmon, Accident, president, Jonas McKenzie Grantsville, vice-president, Ralph Beachley, Friendsville, secretary, J. G. Dilley, Oakland, treasurer.

Charles L. Briner was named campaign director for the drive in 1958. Briner said the funds received this year would be used more in the rehabilitation program, because of the low number of new infantile paralysis cases this year.

Briner announced that the county raised $5,001 in this year's drive, that the local chapter had $3,000 in the treasury, but that $1,800 of that amount was allocated for this year in providing aid to those already suffering from the disease. He said the chapter had two wheel chairs at the disposal of those who needed them.

4-H, FFA Have Clean-Up

A clean up day at the Garrett County fair grounds for 4-H and F. F. A. members has been announced for Thursday, August 8, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Marvin Callis and James McHenry urged all members to attend, to wear old clothes and bring their lunch. Work will be under the supervision of Mr. Callis and Mr. McHenry.

Miss and Mr. Highlander

Southern High school seniors of 1957 selected Mary Spencer and Walter DeBerry as Miss and Mr. Highlander IV. The announcement was made this week as the Highlander, school yearbook, was distributed.

The book was late due to an error in photographs of the high school, in the front of the book, necessitating the return of the books to the mid-west printer for correction.

The two persons elected represented the seniors in scholastic attainment, character leadership, contribution to the school and popularity.

Miss Spencer, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Spencer, was in the senior chorus three years, treasurer of the Dramatic club and secretary of her homeroom. Mr. DeBerry, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter DeBerry, was a member of F. F. A. four years, on numerous judging teams, a delegate to the United Nations, a homeroom officer every year and a member of the senior steering committee. He played intramural basketball.

Other seniors who were also in the running for Miss and Mr. Highlander were Betty Lee, Doris Lawson, Mary Bernard and Walter Hoye.

No New Clues In Friendsville Safecracking

About $40,000 Stolen From Fox Hardware Store In Friendsville

A safecracking job at the Fox Hardware store in Friendsville early Monday morning netted almost $40,000 for the robbers and gave the appearance of a job by professionals. Thus far no arrests have been made, although two persons were questioned at length by State Police and county officials.

Entrance to the hardware store was gained by forcing the front door. The wall safe, three feet wide and four feet high, is located in the left wall of the building on Maple street.

Sheriff James E. Frantz, one of the investigating officers, said the safe has both an outer and inner door. The outer door was opened without being damaged, indicating that professionals had been able to work the numblers on the dial successfully. The inner door was punched out as if is opened by key.

Arnold Fox, son of Fred G. Fox, founder of the business, said the robbers had tried to get in a window on the east end of the building but were unsuccessful.

Sheriff Frantz announced that the loot included almost $15,000 in cash and $25,150 in U. S. Series E bonds. Nothing else was taken from the store.

Mr. Fox said some of the money in the safe had accumulated at the end of the week due to some large collections he had made from his gasoline business customers. The balance of the money was from accumulated savings over the past several years.

Mr. Fox operates a gasoline distribution agency in the area.

The series E bonds had been purchased over the years and as they are not negotiable were kept in the inner section of the wall safe. The cash from savings and collected from gasoline customers was in envelopes.

Check, Old Bill Taken

State Police reported that one envelope contained $6,000 in $20 bills, another had $5,000 of various denominations, a third had $300 in $10 bills, a fourth had $300 in $5 bills, a fifth had $100 in $1 bills and a sixth had an unknown amount in $5, $10 and $1 bills, one of which was a $5 bill of the large size which was taken out of circulation about 25 years ago.

A seventh envelope had $200 in $20 bills and the eighth and final envelope had $160 in $10 bills. One check on the First National Bank of Oakland was also taken but Mr. Fox said he did not remember the amount.

The Series E bonds made out to Arnold and Ethel L. Fox totaled $15,000 in $100 denominations. Bonds of $100 denominations totaling $10,000 and made out to F. G. and Wilbur G. Fox, were among the loot. There were also four $100 and two $25 U. S. savings bonds made out to Jane Guarit taken in the safecracking.

Sheriff Frantz said the FBI had been called into the case.

Assisting in the investigation were Cpl. Sam Conrad and Trooper Charles DeWitt, of the State Police, Sheriff Frantz and Raymond Thomas, deputy.

Work Started At New Germany Area

Work has been started on a new entrance road and a new parking area at the New Germany Recreation area.

William H. Johnson, district forester, explained that the State Department of Forests and Parks gave the county the necessary land to relocate the county road near New Germany. The department has contracted with the county roads department for construction of a new entrance road and the parking area which will accommodate about 120 cars.

The new road will eliminate a hazardous condition which took the county road near the New Germany beach.

The county will construct a one-quarter mile road through a new camping area where a wash house is near completion. Toilet, bathing and laundry facilities are to be provided there for campers.

Contest Winner

Linda Ritchie, aged 9, who will be a fifth grade student this year in the Oakland Elementary annex, has been informed by a New York corporation that she had been judged a winner in a recent Popsicle "Popsi Doodle contest" and had been awarded a camera.

Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arvey Ritchie, drew a picture to win. This is not the first time Linda's drawing ability has received recognition. A few years ago she drew a picture of Wayne Griffith on a television program, which was given recognition in a television show.

The Popsi Doodle contest is carried on locally by the Englander Pharmacy in Oakland.

Many Entries Are Assured For 36th Tennis Tourney

The thirty-sixth annual tennis tournament for Western Maryland championships, which gets under way at Mt. Lake Park next Tuesday, August 6, will be "bigger and better than ever," judging from the pre-tourney entry lists.

Sixty persons were entered in last year's tournament which was the biggest for many years, but this year's entry list probably will top that of a year ago. The success in the large entry list both years has been credited to Alex Keiles, Washington tennis enthusiast, who has spent many hours building up the event.

Many of the entries will have rankings in the Middle Atlantic association, including Tom Bradford, Bruce Gustafson, Frank Spears, all lieutenants in the U. S. Marine corps; Phil Neff, Donald Floyd, Charles Channing, John Meyers, Doyle Royal, Kahl Spriggs, Buddy Adair, Earl Brown, Alex Keiles and Red Brown.

Miss Sydney Burt, Wheeling, a junior champion of West Virginia, and Nancy Corse, Washington, last year's Women's singles winner, will be among the women appearing in competition. Others include Frances Bassett, Adrian Ayres, Corella Bageant and Mildred Smith.

Drawings for the tourney are scheduled to be made Monday evening, August 5, at 8 o'clock at the Allegheny cottage. Play will begin Tuesday morning. There will be competition in men's, women's singles and doubles, and mixed doubles.

The tournament is sponsored by the Mt. Lake Tennis club and is sanctioned by the U. S. Lawn Tennis association.

Tennis Courts Purchased

In order to insure continued use of the Tennis courts, not only for the annual tournament, but also for the benefit of many individuals, a group of nine men this year purchased the courts from A. D. Naylor. The price paid was $2,750.

These courts are available to any person interested in tennis from the middle of June until sometime in September, and they may be used free of charge. The nine who made the purchase are endeavoring to make a civic project of the transaction, and are soliciting small contributions from interested persons to help take care of the upkeep of the courts.

Those who contributed toward the purchase include Horner Davis, Neil McCord, Nelson Thomasson, Walter Pollard, Ralph Weber, Irvin Feld, C. Swan Weber, Wilson Levering and James Holloway, most of them residents of the Park. They stressed the fact that the courts were for residents of the county and the summer visitors.

Song Service Is Set

A song service with instrumental music has been planned for each Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the Kuntz Chapel Methodist church.

The annual homecoming will be Sunday, August 11 with dinner to be served on the grounds.

Adults Supplying Teen-Agers With Beer And Whisky

Police broke up, at least for the time being, a conspiracy between certain individuals and teen-agers, wherein some adults were providing the youths with beer and whiskey—at a profit.

The program came to a head last Friday evening, just about time for the special Teen-age affair being held at the Moose hall.

At least seven teen-agers were rounded up and questioned, and S. R. Pagenhardt, state's attorney, said some whiskey was recovered. Parents were called in and a considerable discussion followed, he said.

At the same time Albert Tasker, of Deer Park, was placed under arrest and will be charged with selling beer to minors and with selling alcoholic beverage on Sundays. Tasker already has been charged with similar offenses when a group of men were rounded up by revenue agents earlier this year.

Pagenhardt said the youths were apprehended Friday evening at the Sunoco Filling station on Third street. No charges have been preferred yet against any adults.

The State's Attorney said he had been informed that adults were obtaining whiskey and beer and then reselling it to the youngsters at a profit. He said he had been informed in one instance that a fifth of whiskey had been obtained for around $3.50 and had been resold to a teen-ager for $5 plus $1 for gasoline for the trip to Terra Alta.

The investigation is continuing.

Two Are Injured In Plane Crash

Two local men were hospitalized last Saturday when the light plane in which they were riding failed to respond to controls and crashed on the Clay Uphole farm, four miles west of Oakland.

Admitted to Garrett County Memorial hospital, Oakland, were H. Ward Hinebaugh, of Oakland, and Adam Earl Pritt, Jr., of near Bloomington. The two were not seriously injured and were released from the hospital after having their injuries treated.

Hinebaugh sufferrd lacerations of the face and leg. Pritt had a broken left arm, lacerations and contusions.

Corporal Sam Conrad, of the State Police, who investigated, said Hinebaugh was piloting the plane. The craft was flying at 200 feet when it nosed down. Hinebaugh said, it failed to respond to the controls and as he was coming in for a "dead stick" landing the left wing of the craft struck brush causing the plane to flip over.

A portion of the Uphole farm is being used as a landing strip by Hinebaugh.

The firm will construct three buildings at each of the two camp sites. The low bid was $71,830. They will be built from wood.

The boys who will occupy the camps will finish the interiors including floors, ceilings, shelving and walls. Only 22 Pints Of Blood Are Received

Only twenty-two pints of blood were received when the Johnstown bloodmobile unit visited Friendsville this week. The Red Cross had hoped to obtain at least 18 pints.

The statistics showed that 78 persons were scheduled. Twenty-four people kept their appointments and two were rejected. There were no walk-ins.

Mrs. Grover C. Stemple, blood recruitment chairman, announced that the next visit to Oakland would be on Monday, August 19, from 12 to 6, and that after this date there would be no visit until in February of 1958. The last visit to Oakland was made on June 3.

Work Under Way On Flood Control For Friendsville

Work on the Friendsville flood protection project around Bear Creek got under way several days ago. It is calculated to prevent future floods in the area through a process of lowering and widening the stream for a distance of some 2,000 feet.

Work is being done under supervision of the U. S. Army Engineer district, Pittsburgh Corps of Engineers, and the authorized by the U. S. Flood Control Act of 1950.

The actual work is being done by the Yoder construction company of Uniontown, Pa., and must be completed within 201 days.

Principal features of the improvement are the deepening and widening of the stream, a concrete lined channel at bridge on route 53, and improved drainage facilities on the left bank of Bear Creek.

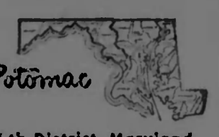
Committee

Along The Potomac



Congressman De Witt S. Hyde · 6th District, Maryland

I have long felt the restrictions imposed by the Hatch Act on the political activities of Federal workers should be modified. I have recently testified in favor of a bill which would provide for the establishment of a Commission to study the restrictions of the Act.

Other matters of interest to Government employees and retirees that have occupied my attention include an increase in postal salary scales for which I voted. I am also happy to report that our efforts in behalf of legislation to permit the Civil Service Commission to take over and maintain the assets and liabilities of Government employee group life insurance associations has resulted in a House subcommittee favorably reporting the Senate-passed bill to accomplish this.

In seeking ways of maintaining a high level of employment in Maryland, I attended a conference with the Secretary of the Navy to work out plans to send more Navy repair work to Baltimore shipyards. The grant of a $12 million research and development contract to the Fairchild plant in Hagerstown is of interest and benefit to my District.

The House Ways and Means Committee has favorably reported a bill which would amend the Social Security Act and extend to the States the privilege of social security coverage for State and local police and firemen now under state retirement systems. This bill does for all of the States what my bill would have done for Maryland.

The House Public Works Committee has favorably reported my bill to transfer ownership of Bailey Bridge at Corriganville in Allegany County from the Federal Government to the county.

I have requested the Veterans Administration to declare veterans in Allegany County eligible for direct housing loans. A bill passed by the House now awaiting Senate action directs the Veterans administration to provide loans to veterans in small towns and rural areas as a matter of course.

I have introduced a House Resolution calling for a special House committee to study and make recommendations aimed at strengthening congressional control over the public purse. I believe this will lead to real saving to the tax payer.

Review of The Play At The Playhouse

By AZA STANTON

Hiss the Villain and cheer the Hero, the order of the day at The Garrett County Playhouse this week, "Only An Orphan Girl" ("A Soul-Stirring Drama Of Human Trials And Tribulations In Three Acts" by Heuning Nelms) is an old-fashioned "Mellerdramer" from the word "Go." From the opening scene in Farmer Perkins' farmyard to the Villain's final intonation of, "Curses! Foiled again!" the presentation is unbelievably corny and violently funny.

Complete with buzz-saw (cardboard), Dynamite (cut-up broom handle) and Snow storm (confetti out of the overhead fan), the play is a throwback from the "Good Old Days" of Mississippi Showboats and traveling Tent-shows, and is a complete deviation from the usual bill-of-fare at the Playhouse.

Preluded by audience participation in group singing ably conducted by our good friend Charles "Chic" Briner, the show includes other appropriate vocal renditions by Bonnie Barton and Neil Flanagan. At the piano (sufficiently out of tune), Mrs. Walter W. Price accompanies the waddle, slink, stalk or glide of each character with stereotyped musical themes, Mr. Briner's group singing and Mrs. Price's piano accompaniment serve the purpose of setting the mood of the play and the actors carry on from there—and how they carry on!

Helen Page Camp, Neil Flanagan, William Pappas and Peter Mallon amble through their burlesqued hayseed roles with alacrity and cornball efficiency. With missing teeth, corncob pipe and padded backside, Miss Camp is in her glory. As a matter of fact, the cast seems to enjoy this one as much as the audience. Their slap-stick antics are guaranteed to provide many a hearty guffaw.

Jennifer Yell, director Gene Yell's comely daughter, makes her debut this week as "Lucy" (A Ray Of Sunshine). The young lady seems to be quite at home under the lights. Bonnie Barton is the sweet, innocent young thing perpetually at the mercy of Villain Joseph Hanrahan who alternately proposes, threatens and attempts bodily harm until Hero Neil Flanagan (A Clean-Cut Farm Lad) comes bounding in at the last possible moment to effect the rescue and pay off the mortgage. Sandra Tehoe flounces about the stage alternately aiding and abetting the Villain making unsuccessful efforts to lead the "clean-cut farm lad" astray.

Sound effects man, Cris Curran, winds up his duties as a buzz-saw. If you are the type of person who likes to hiss, cheer and throw ripe tomatoes you'll really have a ball at "Only An Orphan Girl"!

A Message from Clinton W. Englander, "Your Pharmacist"

It is amazing how many people offer advice that only a physician is qualified to give. They mean well but do not realize the skilled knowledge required to diagnose an illness.

"The Butcher, the Baker, the Candlestick Maker" are all quick to recommend some medicine that cured someone they know. Grandma—God bless her—always has a favorite remedy her grandmother used.

Sometimes they help, but when they don't, the delay in giving proper treatment can give a virus or an infection a foothold that is much harder to overcome.

Don't gamble with your health. When you are sick let your physician diagnose the cause and prescribe the particular medicine that will help you most.

More than half of the important medicines in present day prescriptions were unknown less than five years ago. That is why you can always depend on a prescription, compounded especially for your particular ailment, to help you most.

It Runs Through My Mind

BY FOLEY J. HANST

If the people of Aurora can make great claims about their virgin pine (the only stand in West Virginia, I'm told) being here when the Indians were, we can make the same claim.

Some of us went ring counting at Swallow Falls after the gentleman let me in on his quest for truth in regard to the age of the trees of Cathedral Park. Of course none of us Garrett Countians want to be outdone by our neighbors where it concerns beautiful parks. So we can be pretty sure that the tall timbers at Swallow Falls were pushing their roots into the ground soon after Jamestown was being settled.

Ellis Martin counted 150 rings on the fallen tree. The one I counted had 103 rings or 206. I wasn't exactly sure what a ring was. I did discover that this particular tree made great growth around its 25th to 35th year.

It seems that Bill Johnson and Mr. Buckingham of the Forestry department counted one with 300 rings some time ago. So these tall timbers were here at the time of the Indians. Why, only yesterday, I was sure I saw a tomahawk mark on one of them.

The County Fair

Folks are talking about the fine job the Fair Board did on the premium booklet that is off the press and in the hands of many people.

Just goes to show that determination and unselfishness are important in making anything go over.

Those men and women have spent long hours for a nine months' period setting up the fair. I sat in on a few of the earlier meetings and was impressed by the unselfishness of the group. Every one of them knew that it meant a lot of work and there was no personal gain.

The interest is spreading and as Newt Coplin would say, "We're really going to put it over."

We can't measure its success in gate receipts or the number of entries. It's the learning experience.

There's Tubby Winters who has the job of grooming their cattle for the show. "It's a big job," he said as we discussed courage in our Sunday School class, "to train animals to show. You have to make them stand right, brush their hair and shine their hooves."

That experience will do something for Tubby. Just as making an apron will do something for Mary and baking biscuits will do something for Sue.

Even Gus Gortner will have learned something. He said all along he couldn't be a president—yet he has made a good one.

I love a fair like the firemen love a parade. I hope there'll be turkeys, spotted chickens, cows, pigs, sheep, quilts, big pumpkins, freak vegetables and everything that goes with one.

And to think at last we're going to have an honest to goodness agricultural fair!

Physically Fit?

There's much discussion over the physical fitness of American youth in the current issue of U. S. News and World Report. According to studies our youth are taller, heavier and softer. School buses, cars, T. V., are not doing much to build muscle. Neither are elevators and automatics in the home.

No wood to carry, water to pump, carpets to pound. Our youngsters do more spectating than participating. Not only are they missing out on muscle building but they're missing some of the fun that goes into it.

Just last month when our 4-H girls were guests of another club most of the girls saw Prisoners' Base for the first time. That old stand-by of their parents' school days.

We have been so busy trying to give our children every advantage that money can buy and yet they had never had the thrill of getting someone off base. They played until their faces reddened and their hearts pounded and one little girl exclaimed, "I've never had so much fun in my life."

Prisoners' Base—a game that requires a mixture of kids who have two legs and outstretched hands. Yet most of our children never heard of it. That and ice skating would help make them more fit for good living.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Ruth
Devotional Reading: Deuteronomy 10 17-21

Foreigner

Lesson for August 4, 1957

AMERICA has always been a land of foreigners. The first human beings who ever came to these shores were natives of other lands. We think of the Indians as having lived here always, but their ancestors came from Asia across the Bering Strait. Some ancestor of every one who reads this sentence was once recently—or long ago—an immigrant to this country. And still they keep coming. The coming of Hungarians is fresh in our minds; but they are only one among many races in our American melting pot. In this we are more like Brazil or Australia than like long-settled countries such as Norway and Scotland.

Dr. Foreman

Motives

Why don't people stay put? Why this age-long trek from one land to another? Sometimes it is a mass-movement, sometimes a mere trickle of individuals. But migration is almost never aimless. There are always reasons. The story of Ruth, in the Bible book named for her, is the story of an immigrant girl, and very suggestive for our times too. This particular young woman left her native land to go among strangers at a time and place when strangers and migrants had a much harder time of it than they do even now. But her motives were simple, strong and good. She went from Moab to Judah because she loved her mother-in-law Naomi, the mother of her dead young husband. One of the most beautiful expressions of devotion, by the way, to be found anywhere, is in the Book of Ruth where the young woman declares her determination to follow Naomi wherever she goes—a small poem of love, from daughter-in-law to her mother-in-law. Ruth's motive in moving from her native country to a strange one was chiefly love for her family. They were going to come to America for another reason than this: that their fathers had come or were coming from all of the Hungarian families we want to stay together of the many brides from Germany and Italy and Japan; of the newcomers from Greece, China, Ireland and all over the world, who as soon as they get through customs have headed straight for some city where they could live near their relatives. Most foreigners arrive with mixed motives; so did our own ancestors. And some of those motives are just as good as Ruth's.

Contributions

Ruth, like most immigrants, had to start at the bottom of the ladder, both economically and socially. She was one of the extremely poor for whom the ancient law had been made: Do not harvest your fields clean—leave some gleanings for the poor of the land. So in her humble way, picking up what she could find in the fields of Boaz, Ruth contributed to the "labor pool" of her new home. Boaz was bright enough to see that Ruth had something to contribute besides physical strength. (She could carry a 90-pound sack of grain without help.) She had character of a rare sort. It took courage on the part of Boaz to decide to marry her, for he would be going against the prejudices of his neighbors, even against the law, which banned Moabites down to the tenth generation—and Ruth was only the first! But Boaz knew that this young woman, as wife and mother, would be an asset to his family and his country. And we know how right he was: how she became an ancestor of King David and thus of the greater King Jesus.

Welcome

It is only natural for people, families, communities and even nations to become ingrown, to be suspicious of strangers. Some places hardly ever admit any one to their closed circle. In a Virginia community a daughter of one of the "First Families," speaking of a neighbor, said, "Her family came here only 60 years ago—they don't really belong here!" What a lonely life that neighbor must have led! Newcomers have to prove themselves, as all men must; but it is shabby treatment not even to give them a chance. Happy is the community, and blessed the church, that will be as quick to help the needy among its newcomers, and to perceive the good in them, as Boaz was with Ruth, the penniless immigrant.

"FORTY-FOUR YEARS OF THE LIFE OF A HUNTER," by Meshack Browning, Maryland's famous pioneer hunter, is now available.

Although it was first published 98 years ago and is now in its 12th edition, it is more widely read than ever before.

His truthful accounts of desperate encounters with the savage beasts of the forest, his superhuman efforts to maintain his family in the wilderness, far from human aid or associations, and his undaunted courage in facing the hardships of pioneer life cannot fail to captivate the reader.

It really deserves a place in every Marylander's library.

Rare Fish Subject Of Lengthy Article

Discovery of the longnose sucker or sturgeon for the first time in Maryland waters last September is the subject of an article authored by R. J. Mansueti in the Maryland Tidewater News.

The finding, hailed as a local event of great zoogeographical and ecological interest was made during the routine draining of Lake Koshare near Hutton by representatives of the Maryland Inland Game and Fish commission and the Maryland Department of Research and Education.

About ten of the fish were collected by Harold Elser, fishery biologist.

The longnose sucker, according to Mansueti, is distributed in colder lakes and streams from Alaska and northern Canada south to the northern Rocky Mountains, the Great Lakes basin and northern New England.

In 1878 David Starr Jordan was the first and last to record it from the Pennsylvania section of the Youghiogheny river near Coulter at McKeesport, approximately 50 miles north of the Maryland line. It has never been found in Pennsylvania since.

In 1900, Mansueti writes, Goldsborough and Clark recorded this species for the first and last time in the Monongahela River system in West Virginia, about 55 miles southwest of the Maryland locality. It has not since been found in West Virginia waters. The Garrett County record is the second southernmost locality for this species anywhere in North America.

"Since part of the Youghiogheny river occurs in extreme Western Maryland, this species was assumed to occur there," Mansueti writes. 'However, no prior records of this species had been obtained so that it was omitted from check lists and keys on the assumption that acid mine waters may have eliminated it from Maryland streams.

"Lake Koshare drains into Herrington creek, which flows east about two miles to the Youghiogheny river." The discovery of the longnose sucker has raised hope that some of the unique fish that are believed extinct may once again be found.

The author of the article pointed out that when the last ice sheet covered northern Pennsylvania the floods of cold water killed or forced many of the existing fishes of Maryland southward. These waters, derived from melting of receding glaciers, formed a network of waterways and connected many currently unconnected watersheds and consequently fish had access above waterfalls and other such barriers. These waters also allowed such cold water forms as the trouts, sculpins and longnose suckers to enter the labyrinth of cold water streams of Western Maryland from the south unglaciated areas. It seems likely that the longnose sucker was dispersed into and landlocked in the upper Youghiogheny river during early postglacial times before these areas became isolated.

So it seems likely that the Garrett county population is a relic group that has persisted since the last glacial epoch. Like the old established families of Maryland that trace their settlement back 300 years, so the longnose suckers can trace their lineage in Maryland waters back 15,000 to 20,000 years.

Lake Koshare, about 20 acres in size, was constructed in 1925 by the late Dr. Henry W. McComas. It is part of the property now owned by Chester Johns, of Baltimore, who operates Camps Minnetoska and Whitethorn.

Mr. Johns said the lake was drained in 1956 and stocked with 1,200 brown and brook trout so that a methodical record could be kept. He said the department plans to drain the lake again this fall and take records of the growth and other information about trout.

This Sunday we play a match with the golfers from Frostburg's Maplehurst club. Players will start teeing off around 10:30 a. m. After the 18 holes refreshments and dinner will be served to the players. We hope to be strong enough to make Frostburg our first victim, so if you haven't already signed up to play please do so this week. Visitors of course are welcome.

"Pepper" Inskeep continued winning by defeating "Mick" Sively in the semi-finals of the Westvaco Paper Mill tournament. If he can beat Dave Hopkins in the finals it will be his second championship this year.

Jim Kreyenbuhl along with former members, Leo Treacy, now from Hagerstown, and visitor, Tom Ervin, of Atlanta, Ga., all entered the Tri-State Amateur Golf tournament at Kingwood, W. Va. All three failed to qualify and were eliminated in the tough competition. Maurey Bailey, Baltimore, shot an even par 288 for the 72 holes to win for the second straight year. Runner-up was Charles Yearick, also of Baltimore, with a 290.

In our club tournament, Jack Hall defeated Oregan Madera and now must meet Maurice Brookhart in the finals. Brook disposed of Blake Oss to reach the finals in the second flight.

In the 3rd flight, Jack Jones defeated H. Bittinger, but was stopped by Ralph Pritts. Ralph must now take on Jim Kelley in the finals.

Jim Kreyenbuhl shot a fine two under par 32 for the first nine holes on Sunday. His finest shot was a No. 9 iron hit from about 50 yards off the ninth green. The ball went in perfectly for an eagle.

HAWKSHAW HAWKINS

MISS JEAN SHEPARD

Miss Jean Shepard, Capitol recording artist, and Hawkshaw Hawkins, radio entertainer, are two members of the cast of "Grand Ole Opry," that will be presented at the Garrett County Agricultural fair grounds at McHenry, Thursday and Friday, August 15 and 16.

Miss Shepard, native of Oklahoma, moved to California at age 11 and while in high school started her own all-girl western band. She played bass fiddle and drums as well as leading and fronting the band and doing vocals. Her first commercial recording for Capitol was "Twice the Loving," and "Crying Steel Guitar Waltz." Her next record was "A Dear John Letter," with Jean doing the singing and Ferlin Huskey the recitations. At present she is being heard on radio station WSM and the Opry in Nashville, Tenn., and is seen on the TV shows originating from there.

Prior to going to Nashville and the Opry she appeared on Fadiozark's Red Foley Ozark Jubilee every Saturday night for ten months.

Hawkins, native of Huntington, began an early radio career. He entered an amateur contest as a kid and won a job in radio in his own home town of Huntington. He went on to Wheeling where he won two popularity contests and a starring spot on a network show. He records for RCA Victor.

He is listed as one of Grand Ole Opry's top record sellers and showman but he is also an artist with the bullwhip. He is considered one of the nation's outstanding horseback riders and trainers. He makes his home at present in Nashville, Tenn., where he is heard over WSM and also appears on the television show weekly.

Come to the Fair . . . .

There's a song that goes something like this—"Hi, Ho, come to the fair!" And that's just what we want to urge the people of our county to do next week.

The way this fair moves will set the mood and standard for the fairs of the future. Cooperation is really evident. Entire organizations are going out of their way to do things for the fair, like assisting in the sale of tickets. Grantsville, Accident, Oakland, and other areas are behind this movement.

The fair is a method of bringing together all sections of the county in a way that no other project could do. There may be those who feel that a county fair is old fashioned, and that the enthusiasm will not last. But some fairs became old fashioned only because managers have tried to bring in new fangled entertainment and foreign ideas, and have forgotten the basic reasons for a fair.

There will always be the spirit of wholesome competition among people and farm people are no exception. One person sees the product of another and in an attempt to improve on that product, better things are created. To be able to exhibit a first class article, whether it be live stock, clothing or canning, gives one a certain joy that cannot be gained in any other way.

A real agricultural fair makes for a more substantial community, and a progressive one. We are sure that this county wants to be progressive.

Rev. John Atwell Resigns Pastorate

Has Accepted Coll From Missionory District Of Arizono

The Rev. John J. Atwell, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church at Oakland for the past two and one-half years, has resigned his position. He has accepted a call from the Missionary district of Arizona by the Rt. Rev. Arthur B. Kinsolving II, D. D., and will be in charge of two church groups. Mr. Atwell and his family will leave Oakland Saturday morning. His resignation here is effective August 31, but he is now on vacation and therefore free to leave at any time. He will assume his new duties September 1.

In his new parish Mr. Atwell will use a rented hall in Chandler, Arizona, until a church is built. Chandler is a winter resort with cattle and cotton as the main livelihood. The second church is at Florence, Arizona, 32 miles east of Chandler and 16 miles south of Phoenix. He will also have work at the state university, the penitentiary, and an air force base outside of Chandler. He will reside in Chandler.

Prior to coming to St. Matthew's at Oakland Mr. Atwell was priest in charge of the Garrett County Diocesan mission for seven years, at Deer Park, Altamont and Swanton. He was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1948, Episcopal seminary in Virginia in 1950 and ordained to the Diaconate in 1950. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1951.

Mr. Atwell's activities in the community have been numerous, among boy scouts, youth, and welfare.

He has been chairman of the Deep Creek district Boy Scouts for four years, vice-president of Potomac Scout council for two, institutional representative of Deer Park troop for two, scoutmaster of the Deer Park troop, 1951 to 1951, chaplain and member of the Deer

Man Is Found At Crellin; Was Lost For Ten Hours

A sixty-year-old Parsons, W. Va., man, lost for over ten hours in the woods around Crellin, was found last Saturday afternoon as he emerged on to the Banner Mine road, by Delmos Sanders.

He was identified as Oliver Phillips, who had come to Crellin with his mother, Mrs. J. J. Phillips, to visit Mrs. Elwood Adams. They were enroute to Baltimore. Mrs. Adams said the man was not well and was on his way to Baltimore to enter a hospital for treatment.

Oakland firemen were called on Saturday afternoon and some of the department and a number of other people from Crellin engaged in a thorough search of the area. He was found about 6 o'clock near the Maryland line, on the road leading from Crellin toward the Banner mine opening.

Wins Contest

Miss Joanne Collier, of Accident, won first place in the recent "Talent Find" contest sponsored by the Associated Women of Garrett County Farm Bureau at the Accident Elementary school.

A senior at Northern High school, she presented a vocal solo, "Look for the Silver Lining." Miss Collier will be eligible to compete in the state finals.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Collier, Accident. Second place winners were Lucy Ellen and Ronald Beiler, Grantsville, who sang "Take Up Thy Cross.' Each contestant was awarded a consolation prize. Judges were George Paxton and Mrs. Edgar Gnegy, of Meyersdale, Pa.

Mrs. Gerald Glotfelty led groun singing prior to the contest, with Miss June Leydig at the piano. Mrs. O. C. Glotfelty, president of the Associated Women, introduced Rev. William Carlson, Accident, who gave the invocation and served as master of ceremonies.

Motor vehicle registrations in U. S. in 1956 totaled 65,212,510.

Gas Production Shows Decline

County Commissioners Get $17,036.27 Check As Shore Of Total

Natural gas production in Garrett county over the past three months ending June 30, showed a considerable decrease over the previous three months period, it was learned from the report received this week by the County Commissioners. The check received by the commissioners, however, was still a sizeable one.

The number of cubic feet produced in the 90-day period totaled 958,455,000, slightly under a billion. The marketable gas was valued at $243,375.28. Only six times has the total in a three month period been a billion cubic feet or better, and it was understood that a number of wells were being curtailed at the present time because of a surplus during the summer months.

The company sent a check for $7,036.27 as the county's total from the seven percent tax on the marketable gas which was $11,537.55 less than the largest amount received for a 90-day period. The first check was received by the Commissioners for the first report back in 1951 and checks have been received at three months periods since that time.

The breakdown of this latest tax showed $6,814.51 as the purchaser's proportion (2.8 percent) and $10,221.76 as the producer's proportion (4.2 percent).

Production from the thirty-four producing wells during the months of April, May and June totaled more than ten and one-half million cubic feet per day, with the Herman and Hanlin well in the Accident area being responsible for over 2.5 million per day. One new well, a Beachy well, drilled by Orville Eberly, agent, was listed but only a slight amount.

The Mitchell-Rush well showed production of over 182 million; Barbara Miller well, over 117 million, another Miller well over 100 million; Earl Knox well, over 83 million; Ford-Fike, over 18 million; Collier well over 28 million; Swartzentruber well over 16 million; Arnold well, over 46 million. The N. K. Welch well, at Lynndale, one of the oldest wells still producing, showed a total of 21,849,000.

Mt. Lake Park will receive a portion of the tax through the County Commissioners from gas produced within the corporate limits of the town.

Since the first check for the tax on the marketable gas was received by the Commissioners in July of 1951, the county's governing body has received $290,121.45, which has been used to help pay off the school bond indestedness. Any amount in excess of $50,000 during any one year will go toward the expenses of the Garrett County Memorial hospital, up to $25,000. Any additional funds over $75,000 will go into a fund for new school building repairs or additional new construction.

Received thus far in this fiscal year, $15,490.71. The checks for the final six months of the year will be tabulated with this total.

The complete report of the production for the ninety-day period is shown in the tabular form in today's issue.

Light Frost Seen

A light frost was seen in scattered sections of the county on Tuesday morning when the thermometer offlelally dropped to 36 degrees. No damage to crops was reported.

Weather has been cool since the rain of Sunday night with the temperature dropping into the thirties both Tuesday and Wednesday. There was also rain on Saturday evening and night.

Object To Garbage Dump

A group of twenty-one property owners are objecting to the establishment of a public garbage dump in their vicinity and are planning to present a petition to the County Commissioners at their next meeting.

The commissioners have been considering the establishment of a public dump on property formerly owned by H. C. Stickel, in the Round Glade section, about six miles from Oakland on the Oakland-Sang Run road.

Those objecting state in their petition that the dump would be a menace to health and would de[illegible] the value of their property.

Survey of All Polio Cases Will Be Made

Local Polio Foundation Chapters in Garrett and Allegany counties will cooperate this month with the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society in a comprehensive medical survey of polio cases in this area. This program, that will include all polio cases past and present, irrespective of date of onset or type of diagnosis, was decided upon last Erlday evening after conferences between the two polio chapters and the Medical Society.

"We are delighted to join with the Foundation chapters in this program," announced Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, president of the Medical Society. "The National Foundation has always stood ready to provide the finest available medical care to the victims of polio and we of the medical profession are prepared to help them in this as we are ready to help in any program to better the health and welfare of this community.

During 1956 Foundation Chapters in Maryland spent a total of

Indications Point To Successful Fair Next Week

All indications point to a successful agricultural fair, it was announced by H. G. Gortner, president, following a meeting of the Board of Directors at McHenry on Monday evening.

Mr. Gortner said there were a large number of live stock entries and from promises and talk of interested people, there would be many entries in other divisions.

The fair building are being rounded into shape. The live stock building is complete and the shelves and display tables in the other building are being placed today.

Arrangements have been made for lunch stands by the McHenry United Brethren church and the Underwood church. Boy scouts will take care of the parking. Girl scouts will distribute programs Saturday.

Various groups have promised helpers to assist in the sale of tickets to the amusements and shows, at different times. Accident firemen and Legion will send workers Tuesday night, Oakland firemen Wednesday night, Oakland Rotary club Thursday night, Oakland-Mt. Lake Lions Friday, and Grantsville firemen and Legion on Saturday night. Mr. Gortner said he was in need of a number of volunteers to help sell tickets in the afternoons.

The fair will be held at McHenry, Tuesday, August 13 to Saturday, August 17, and is the first fair to be held for a number of years. It was learned this week that the first fair was not held in 1917, but as early as 1911, and perhaps earlier.

Wilbur Davis discovered an account in the hardware store of his grandfather, J. M. Davis and Sons, showing that he had sold merchandise to the Garrett County fair association in 1911 amounting to $85, and again in 1915 for $72.07. Blair Simmons says it might have been as far back as 1913, and he has in his possession some of the premium ribbons members of his family obtained at that time.

Due to the interest in the historical aspect of the fair, Mr. Gortner said he planned to have a display table at the fair where people

To Get Face Lifting

Maryland Route 135 in Garrett County will get a face-lifting this summer.

The State Roads Commission this week sent a "notice to proceed" to the contractor to improve this highway from Deer Park southwesterly toward U. S. 219 a distance of 3.4 miles. The project includes grading, drainage, widening, partial relocation and surfacing in bituminous concrete. It also includes a new three-span reinforced concrete slab bridge and the widening of a concrete girder bridge to 32 feet.

Contractor on the project is the George F. Hazelwood company of Cumberland whose low bid was $615,122.

Firemen Answer Alarm

Members of the Oakland Fire department were called last Friday shortly after noon to extinguish a grass fire that had gotten beyond control near the B. and O. railroad at the south end of Eighth street.

There was no damage.

Board Authorizes Purchase Of 36 Voting Machines

Bid Of Automatic Company Accepted Friday

The Board of Supervisors of Elections, at a meeting last Friday, approved the purchase of 36 voting machines from the Automatic Voting Machine company, according to Russell L. Smith, clerk to the board.

Mr. Smith said the amount was $1,518 per machine, which would make a total of $54,648.

Attending the meeting were Ward Hinebaugh, substitute member of the board, taking the place of William L. Gibson, who is ill; Harvey Gortner and Rodger Bond, and Mr. Smith as clerk. Mr. Hinebaugh served as president pro-tem.

Mr. Smith said that letters had been sent to the Automatic Voting Machine company and the Shoup Voting Machine corporation several weeks ago requesting new bids, but that the board had not received any reply from Shoup.

No contract has been signed as yet, according to Mr. Smith, but the Automatic company was asked to submit a contract for signature.

Before the long drawn-ont squabble over selection of the machines last year resulted in a "no decision," 36 electrically operated machines were priced at $53,061 by Automatic and $50,801 by Shoup. The manually operated machines at that time from either company were $100 less on each machine.

Last Friday's approval of the machines of the Automatic company apparently was for the mannally operated machines.

As the result of legislation passed at the last session of the General Assembly any decision about voting machines was taken from the joint hands of the County Commissioners and the Board of Election Supervisors and placed solely in the hands of the election board. Section 119 (f) of chapter 739 relating to acquisition of voting machines, states: "The Board of Supervisors of Elections in the several political subdivisions shall use the powers conferred upon them for the acquisition of voting machines and shall acquire or have available the necessary number of voting machines for use at all elections; The County Commissioners shall provide for the payment for such machines."

The statute eliminated the words "and the County Commissioners" in the first few words and added the final section about payment.

Previously the law had read that the Election Board had the authority to purchase but that the order for purchase was subject to the approval of the County Commissioners.

The boards failed to agree on the type of machine and as a result paper ballots were used in the last election.

Train Kills Elderly Man at Oakland

Earl L. Freeland, aged 72, of Terra Alta, W. Va., was instantly killed last Saturday evening about 7:15 when he was struck by a westbound B. and O. railroad freight train at the Second street crossing in Oakland.

Mr. Freeland was a retired stable boss for the Borgman Coal company near Tunnelton and at one time was employed at the Terra Alta Stockyards.

He suffered a crushed skull and chest.

Sheriff James F. Frantz who investigated, said Freeland was walking on the crossing when he was hit by the freight train. The body was thrown about 50 feet by the impact.

About the time Freeland was hit, easthound passenger train No. 12 was pulling out of the station but Frantz said the passenger train did not block Freeland's view of the oncoming freight.

Engineer of the freight train was A. R. Zinn, Keyser, while L. E. Green, Piedmont, was the fireman.

The body was taken to the Fike-Watson Funeral home in Terra Alta, where funeral services were conducted on Tuesday afternoon with Rev. S. D. Sawyers, pastor of the Terra Alta Methodist church, officiating. Interment was in the Terra Alta cemetery.

Surviving are a son Leslie Freeland, Detroit, Mich., a daughter, Mrs. Orville J. Mason, Wellsburg, W. Va., seven grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Addition and Transfer at Southern High School

Richard Travis, football coach at Southern, will be transferred from the math department to full-time physical education instructor when school opens in September, it was announced by Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent of schools.

This shift in the assignment for the coach is made possible due to the resignation of Carleton Hogue and the employment of Mrs. Evelyn Watson, fully certified math instructor, to replace Mr. Travis in that department.

Mr. Travis came to Southern last year from Aurora High school and in addition to his regular teaching duties assumed the assignment of rebuilding the Southern High school football team. Hawkins said that due to his efforts last season as head coach, that prospects for the coming season were encouraging.

Mrs. Watson is a graduate of Fairmont College and holds her Master's degree from West Virginia University. She majored in mathematics while in college and has had seventeen years of teaching experience. Her husband, William Watson, Jr., has also accepted an assignment at Southern High school for the coming year. Both have been teaching recently in Tunnelton High school.

Ray Kight Sues Town Of Mt. Lake For $20,000.00

Ray Kpight of Mt. Lake Park, through his attorney, E. J. Ryan, of Cumberland, has sued the Mayor and City Council of Mt. Lake Park for 20,000 charging the latter with contaminating his property with sewage.

The suit was filed Saturday in the office of the clerk of the Circuit court, Richard L. Davis.

In his declaration the plaintiff contends that around July 19 the Mayor and Council by their agents, while installing and repairing a sewer line which carried sewage from a great number of properties in the municipality, "failed to make arrangements for handling of said sewage during the period of said repairs and installment of new sewer lines, and that without leave or authority from the plaintiff and in direct violation of his rights, the Mayor and Council turned all of said sewage into the lake belonging to the plaintiff, and have allowed a great amount of sewage, filth and garbage and other refuse to flow into the lake and have contaminated and corrupted waters thereto and has created a condition which has been detrimental to the health of persons using the lake."

He further declared that as a result the health officer has ordered that swimming cease in the lake and that fishing also be halted.

He says he will be put to considerable expense to attempt to remove the debris and corruption which has been placed there.

Knight owns the area commonly called "Mt. Lake" which he says for many years has been used for fishing and bathing purposes and yields a substantial income.

Playhouse Prepares For Its 6th Drama

The Garrett County Playhouse was preparing to move into its sixth week with rehearsals being held daily on the play by Phillp King, "See How They Run."

An announcement that appeared to be causing much pleasure this week was the announcement that Leonard Drum was returning to the playhouse for the final two plays of the season and would take one of the leads in next week's offering. Next week's play is billed as a hilarious production.

Drum, who was with the playhouse for two seasons, had been in New York this summer. He will be assisted in the cast by Sandra Teboe, Joe Hanraban, Bill Pappas, Chris Curran, Helen Camp and Bonnie Barton. Tom Calkins will do the directing.

Gene Yell, director, announced that Peter Mallou had left for New York Sunday where he had opportunity for regular employment. Yell said 828 had attended the five sessions last week and that the response this week was good.

The Chalk Garden will be presented the balance of this week at the former Arden Boat club at McHenry.

Pre-School Meetings Scheduled for August

Pre-school meetings are now being planned by the Board of Education staff for the latter part of August. The first meeting will be a Cafeteria Wurkshop for two days, August 20-21, to be held at the Red House school. Robert Martin, administrative assistant, who heads the county cafeteria program, will be in charge. He will be assisted by Miss Eleanor Weagly, state supervisor of the School Lunch Program. Miss Weagly will be on hand during both days of the workshop to discuss such matters relating to the school lunch program as menus, use of surplus foods, cost accounting, the Federal Milk program, purchasing of supplies, etc. All cafeteria workers and principals of schools with cafeterias will attend the two day session.

On Wednesday, August 28, all supervisors and school principals will meet at the Accident school for the day to discuss administrative policies for the coming year, as well as to plan together a program for the professional improvement of the schools. Thursday, August 29, all teachers are scheduled to report to their respective schools for the day to prepare for the opening of school. During the day, classrooms will be readied for school opening, teachers will meet with their principals for preliminary organization, new teachers will be oriented, and textbooks and instructional materials processed for opening day distribution.

Friday, August 30, the entire supervisory and teaching staff of the county will meet at Southern High school for a day of professional meetings. Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent, will bring the group up to date relative to the educational plans and program for the schools of the county in general. Mrs. Grace Dorsey, state supervisor of elementary schools, will talk on the subject, "What Is Effective Teaching and What Does It Take for One to Become a Good Teacher?"

During the remainder of the day various groups and departments will meet under the leadership of supervisors and selected teachers. The meeting will adjourn at 3 p. m. Schools will open for a full day Tuesday, September 3, 9 a. m.

New Students To Register At Southern High School

All students who will be attending Southern High school for the first time this year and who have not already registered for a program of studies are to go to the high school to register on Wednesday, August 14, between 9 a. m. and 12 o'clock noon, it was announced by W. Kenneth Johns, principal.

Pupils who attended the Oakland elementary school are not considered new pupils, Mr. Johns said, since their registration already has been completed. Mr. Johns said that parents were being encouraged to accompany new puptis to register so that they may become acquainted with the school and its program.

Two Men Held In Safecracking

Portion Of Money Found—Third Man Is Sought

Two men are being held in the Garrett County jail in connection with the safecracking at the Fox Hardware store in Friendsville on July 29.

The men were taken to the jail in Oakland, Sunday night, by Maryland State Police Corporal Samuel Conrad after about $4,400 of the $12,060 cash taken from the store was recovered in a rock pile in the mountains near Friendsville.

Cpl. Conrad identified the men as Elwood Kissner, 26, former resident of Friendsville, now living in Baltimore, and Oliver Rockett, 53, of Baltimore. A third man, believed to have been involved in a number of safecracking jobs in Baltimore, is being sought.

Charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny have been placed against the two, who are awaiting a hearing before Trial Magistrate Earl C. Friend. The charges were preferred by S. R. Pagenhardt, state's attorney.

Tfc. Charles DeWitt returned Monday from Richmond, Va., with an additional $1,900 in cash which police said was part of the loot. He picked it up from relatives of one of the prisoners who were arrested last Saturday by Baltimore police on a "tip from a reliable source."

The two men had been working for a Baltimore painting contractor when the Baltimore police picked them up. Conrad said Rockett had a sum of money on him including a $50 bill. Across the face of the bill was written in red ink the name of Frank McDaniel, an assistant cashier in the First National Bank, Oakland. Police said Rockett had admitted bis part in the crime.

Police said they were told that Kissn r. Rockett and a companion drove from Baltimore to break into the hardware store and completed the job in fifteen minutes. Over $25,000 in U. S. Savings bonds, stolen at the time, have not been recovered. It was thought at first that they had been burned, but police now believe that the bonds were hidden away somewhere. The bonds are replaceable. The third man who left Washington for Tennessee shortly after the robbery, had about $7,000 in cash with him. A general alarm covering some 17 states has been issued by police in the search for the third party. Police said they had further information on his mode of travel.

Assisting in the investigation are Sheriff James F. Frantz, and deputy Raymond Thomas.

Papers Found Burned

Kissner yesterday led Corporal Conrad to the spot where the men burned unwanted papers taken from the safe. The papers were burned beside a private road leading to the farm of Pat Crane, about five miles north of Albright, W. Va. Conrad said he found charred papers and the partly burned remnants of wooden drawers from the Fox safe. Unburned tax forms and parts of a brass lock which Conrad identified as belonging to the safe also were found.

Conrad said Kissner told him the bonds had been torn in half after the theft but were not burned. Kissner also told Conrad that Rockett remained in the car while Kissner and the third man dumped the papers and the safe drawer over an embankment along the Crane farm road.

One Man Looks At God

(By Charles W. Carlson, Pastor, St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Oakland Maryland.)

As we continue our current series on the Epistle of James we will consider this week the words recorded in James 3:5,6,10-12:

How great a forest is set ablaze by a small fire! And the tongue is a fire! . . . From the same mouth come forth blessing and cursing. My brethren, this ought not to be so. Does a spring pour forth from the same opening fresh water and brackish? Can a fig tree, my brethren, yield olives, or a grapevine figs? No more can salt water yield fresh.

The rhetorical questions with which James discusses the question of the inconsistency of the Christian tongue are a powerfully challenging series of thrusts for our times. One can almost feel the piercing sharpness of the "two-edged sword" of the Word of God as he reads them. For we are definitely inconsistent.

From the same mouth came forth the words, "I believe in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord," and, "This car is a real 'creampuff'," though the mind behind that mouth knows that the car is really pretty well-worn. In similar vein, the same mouth puts forth the words, "I believe . . . ", and "Did you hear what she did last Thursday! Well! I thought some of the other things she did were bad, but this one tops them all!" Then this mouth goes on to give the gory details of an event that is largely imagination.

The tongue is indeed a fire that can destroy. Many people's lives have been seriously hurt by the spread of vicious rumors that had very little basis in fact, and just as a small fire started by a carelessly discarded cigarette can destroy thousands of acres of good forest land, so a small story, when added to by all who usually suit the story to their own liking, can virtually destroy the character of a man.

As James says, "My brethren, this ought not to be so!" A spring does not obviously bring forth brackish and good water from the same opening, and a Christian's mouth should be consistently employed to the benefit of men, and the praise of God rather than the cursing of men, employing the name of God.

There are so many good things which can be accomplished by our mouths that we should be satisfied with the employment of them for these purposes. There are so many people who have not heard of the love of God, or if they have heard they have not done anything about it. These are all opportunities for us to witness to the glorious facts of salvation.

The next time you hear something bad about a person, why not stop yourself from aiding the bad things that you have heard to the conversation, and stop and pray for that person. Then whenever you have the opportunity, try to help that man correct his faults. It can be done. Your salvation is that good, there is nothing wrong with it, why not help another to find it too!

Review of The Play At The Playhouse

By AZA STANTON

"The Chalk Garden" is the highly literate work of Enid Bagnold. It is masterfully staged and presented this week by Director Tom Calkins and The Garrett County Playhouse company. To appreciate this skillful comedy one must listen closely to the dialogue, in which lies the real beauty of the play.

The verbose action envolves around a pompous grandmother and flippant, arson-prone granddaughter, living their self-centered lives in some remote estate. Their companions consist of an impassioned "manservant" and an exalted ex-butler named "Pinkbell" whose abstract contact with the rest of the household is by way of a blustering male nurse and a bright red telephone. The grandmother spends her time engrossed in the exasperating effort to grow things in a chalk-riddled garden, taking orders from the irate "Pinkbell" and giving orders to the brow-beaten "Manservant". The granddaughter's flamboyant activities seem to be confined to a cat-and-mouse game with the "manservant" and setting fires. From time to time she may be heard off stage emitting piercing screeches as she dances around innumerable bonfires, to the extreme discomfort of the harrassed manservant.

Matters become complicated by the arrival of the child's unwelcome mother and, later a grandiloquent judge. The child's polished and efficient companion, (an expert in both psychology and gardening), enters the scene early in the play and puts each and all (including child, grandmother, "Pinkbell" and judge) in their respective places, thereby earning the undying admiration of the "manservant". In the process of this accomplishment, however, she reveals her morbid hidden past.

In "Chalk Garden" there are the usual superb characterizations by Bonnie Barton and Helen Page Camp. Miss Camp carries her lengthy role of Mrs. St Maugha the grandmother with the exuberance and deft interpretation by which she has earned the respect and admiration of Playhouse patrons for the past three seasons. Miss Barton calmly and efficiently portrays "Miss Madrigal" the child's companion with poise, befitting emotion and polished brilliance.

In the role of "Maitland" the manservant, Neil Flanagan makes the most of every situation and inflection. He engenders Maitland's personality with his usual skill, ingenuity and proficiency.

Joan Therianlt executes the role of the capricious granddaughter "Laurel" with adroit ability, and both Joseph Hanrahan and William Pappas symbolize their respective characterizations of judge and nurse with sure-footed competence. Sandra Teboe as "Olivia" the child's rejected mother, submits another talented and dexterous performance. Miss Teboe is another member of the cast from whom we've come to expect perfection.

Janet Loach appears on the playhouse stage for the first time. She takes her brief part gracefully and professionally. As an over-dressed and curious lady of fading beauty, admittedly applying for a position simply to have a "peek" and ascertain if there are any available gentlemen involved, willowy Miss Loach most certainly possesses dramatic flair and a distinctive feeling for interpretation. Also appearing for the first time in a minor role, it is apparent that Fabiola Calkins (the director's charming wife) is conversant with dramatic art. She ably represents another applicant for the same position who is visibly cowed by the child whose companion she is supposed to become. Personally I hope to see more of both Miss Loach and Mrs. Calkins in future playhouse productions.

"The Chalk Garden" is a play which requires rapt attention. With subtle humor and wit, it toys with personalities and delicate human emotions. It is a sensitive and exceptionally well written play which can be deeply appreciated and enjoyed.

Litterbags For State Police

The Governor's Committee to Keep Maryland Beautiful has supplied litterbags for use in all state police cars.

State Police superintendent, Colonel Elmer F. Munshower, said he hoped that the use of the bags by state policemen would serve as a "good example to all motorists."

For those who do not practice Highway etiquette the state law provides penalties ranging up to a fine of $250 and 90 days in prison for throwing trash and refuse on the roads and roadsides.

Football Pratice To Start At Northern

Northern High School will issue football equipment and give physical examinations to all football players, August 11, at 9:00 A. M. at Northern High School, it was announced.

This is Northern's third year of football under the direction of Coach Denver L. Mitchell. For the two years of football, their record stands at 8 wins, 2 losses and 2 ties.

This year they will be playing without the services of Roy Rexrode, Eddie Rush, Warren Miller, Ward Humberson, Dean Durst, Alex Close and Claude Humberson. This was their entire line with the exception of the two ends. There will be 17 lettermen reporting for practice this year, along with several newcomers.

Bender-Yoder Nuptials July 26

The marriage of Miss Loretta Kathryn Yoder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan M. Yoder, Springs, Pa., and Joseph Francis Bender, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Bender, Grantsville, was solemnized Friday evening, July 26, at 8 o'clock at the Springs Mennonite church. Rev. Walter Otto officiated at the candlelight service.

An arrangement of white gladioli, white shasta daisies and ferns with lighted tapers in candelabra standards decorated the chancel.

A program of nuptial music was played and talks by Otto of Springs, were "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor length gown of imported chantilly lace over bridal satin featuring a Sabrina neckline and high collar with fitted bodice and pointed sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held with a French illusion iridescent sequined tiara. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds over a white Bible with baby breath and caught with ribbon with satin streamers.

Miss Frances Yoder, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was attired in an aqua gown and carried a bouquet of gold carnations with satin streamers. Miss Jean Yoder, bridesmaid, sister of the bride, wore a light blue gown and carried pink carnations with satin streamers.

Miss Sally Stanton, bridesmaid, wore a lavender gown and carried yellow carnations with satin streamers. Their gowns were ballerina length lace over taffeta fashioned with Princess bodice, full skirt with matching satin trim and scroll bows. All were matching scarf bands of net and taffeta ornamented with pearls, also matching mitts with net trim.

Ronda Tressler Sprague, flower girl, wore a floor length pink taffeta gown with a white picture hat trimmed in pink. Her gloves were pink and she carried a colonial bouquet.

Charles C. Border, brother of the groom served as best man. Ushers were Thomas Oliver Bender and William Donald Bender, brothers of the groom, Grantsville; Richard Ivan Yoder, Springs; and Earl Andrew Yoder, Harrisonburg, Va., brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Ivan M. Yoder mother of the bride, wore a beige crepe dress, street length, with white accessories.

Mrs. C. O. Bender, mother of the groom, was attired in a navy blue taffeta street length dress with blue and white accessories. Both wore pink roselmd corsages.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the Springs Youth center. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake with the bride and groom bell and roses, with white lighted tapers and white shasta daisies and ferns. The serving table was decorated with white lighted tapers, shasta daisies and ferns. Miss Mary Wengerd and Mrs. Glenda Shultz served the wedding cake and at the bridal table. Mrs. Cleamon Folk presided at the punch bowl, while Mrs. Ray Maust, Mrs. Ray Doer and Mrs. Carl Holliday assisted with the serving. Mrs. Elwood Tressler and Mrs. Donald Whisner presided at the gift table.

The couple left for a trip to Virginia, the bride wearing a light beige suit and beige accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The bride was graduated from Salisbury Elk-Lick High school and will be graduated from Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, Cumberland, on September 6.

The bridegroom was graduated from Northern High school and has completed his freshman year at Western Maryland college, Westminster. He expects to continue his education this September.

Out of town guests attended from Baltimore, Harrisonburg, Berlin, Somerset, Meyersdale, Salisbury, Accident, Frostburg, Mt. Savage, Westminster and cities in New Jersey.

A rehearsal party was held July 25 at the Mennonite church at Springs for the bridal party, parents of the couple and Rev. and Mrs. Walter Otto.

Robert M. Maroney, of Oakland, was the recipient on July 16, 1957 of U. S. Patent No. 2,799,471, entitled "Hydraulic Control Valve."

This invention pertains in general to valves which control the flow of fluids under pressure and in particular to a novel combination nozzle and valve assembly that is designed primarily for use with a garden hose or the like. As its advantageous feature, the flow of water is controlled by merely flexing or bending the portion of the hose adjacent to the delivery end upon which the device is monated.

Mr. Maroney's assembly is of an elongated nature and may readily be applied to and removed from the usual nipple at the delivery end of a garden hose. Its valve element projects a short distance into the hose itself, with provision being made for a compression spring and other parts by which the desired results are achieved.

In other words, the hose, to which Mr. Maroney's novel nozzle and valve assembly is attached, is held in one hand as is the customary practice. Normally, the end section of the hose, to which the assembly is mounted, is straight and there will be no flow of water. However, should the person, performing the lawn watering operation, desire the emission of a stream of water, it merely is necessary to bend the end portion of the hose into a curved arc and thus cause the valve to open and permit the flow of water. The amount of flow is regulated by adjusting the curvature to which the hose is bent.

Should it be desired to stop the flow of water, the curved section of the hose is straightened or the hose is dropped to the ground, thus automatically closing the valve by the action of the compression spring. It should be noted also that the hose may be moved from one place to another without shutting off the water at the source of supply by merely grasping it at a point far enough from its nipple to avoid bending that section.

Mr. Maroney has assigned one-half of this patent to Thomas B. Sheehe, also of Oakland.

Football Practice To Begin August 15 For Southern High

Dick Travis, head football coach at Southern High school, today issued a call for all boys in grades ten through twelve who are interested in football to report to the Southern gym at 8:30, Thursday, August 15.

Coach Travis indicated that each boy should bring a towel, gym shorts, tennis or football shoes to this first practice. He also stated that the boys should begin getting ready for practice by following the exercises given to them this past spring. One practice will be held daily during the first week. A physical examination, which is a basic requirement before any student can participate in sports at the local school, will also be given the first morning.

Both Mr. Travis and Kenneth Johns, principal, urged that as many boys as possible should turn out.

Coach Travis indicated that through the efforts of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Lions Club, transportation for those boys living in outlying areas will be provided after school begins. "This should be an added incentive for a wider participation in our football program," stated Mr. Johns.

On hand to assist Coach Travis will be Carl Schoonover who piloted the Southern basketball quint last year.

Edward Quacchia, Jr., High football coach, stated that practice sessions for boys in grades seven, eight and nine would begin during the first week of school. A tentative schedule of six games has been arranged for this season.

Employes of City Seek Pay Raise

Five employees of the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland appeared at a regular meeting Monday night to seek a raise in the pay, including vacation pay and group insurance. The present wage rate is $1.25 per hour for city employes.

These and a number of other routine matters were disposed of at the session. The council promised to consider the request and to have a man from the Maryland Municipal League come to Oakland to meet with the council in regard to group insurance.

Additional parking meters are to be placed in two sections, from Ward's Restaurant, Second and Oak, to alley, westward, and on Third street, southward, from Oak to alley at overhead bridge.

The Council also decided to ask the State Roads commission to send a representative to discuss a proposed wall on Third street, along Wilson creek, and instructed the clerk to write a letter to the B. and O. railroad concerning the condition of the Second street crossing.

The council decided to extend the pipe under Fourth street at Pennington, making it possible to widen the street and place guard rails.

It also decided to ask the County Commissioners to repair the street at the Hawkinson Tread corner, between Third and Fourth.

It also will ask the Chester Engineers, of Pittsburgh, Pa., to send a representative to go over the entire water system and make recommendations, particularly in the golf course area where it is felt a larger line is needed from the wells to the springhouse.

Receipts for the month totaled $13,652.11, including $5,710.91 from water, $5,721.02 from taxes and $2,220.18 from miscellaneous. The latter included $1,147.83 from parking meters.

Expenditures amounted to $9,120.76, including $2,185 for payment for 50 new parking meters which were installed recently on Second street, street labor of $1,472.96, street supplies of $658.42, water labor of $571.79 and water supplies of $345.65. Balance on hand after payment of bills, was $18,630.58.

The town approved use of town equipment for stone road work for S. F. Hamill, Emery Bolden and F. D. Bittle, at the usual price.

Gets Permit to Fire

Carroll E. Miller, member of the City Council, was granted a permit to erect and maintain a backstop for sighting in and test-firing rifles on his property on the Country Club road.

Other permits granted: R. W. Morrow, to erect a sign on Third street, to Chester Musser, to erect a dwelling, 24x31, on Mason street, approximate cost, $5,000; to Kitzmiller and Edgar, to erect residence for F. Robert Orr, 28 by 43, with 16-foot carport, on Country club road, at approximate cost of $12,000.

The council approved installation of a sewer tap for Sterling Processing company.

Batty Ridder and Mahlon Case were before the council to ask for water and sewerage facilities for a property on 8th street near the old ball diamond, where the Eastern States plans to erect a building. They were advised that they would have to obtain permission first from the State Department of Health.

Vice president Nixon said Republicans have excellent chance of winning House in next year's elections but face a tough fight for Senate control.

Away from it all

Would you like to be able to go to a retreat like this when you are worried—a place where you could be alone with your thoughts—a place where you could untangle your problems?

If you would, then you are like most people. Everyone needs a retreat, at moments. And everyone has one! It isn't a mountain cabin or a seaside cottage—but it is a place far better suited to prayer and contemplation, a place to sort out old errors and make new resolutions. It is your church.

Let your church be your sanctuary. Go to it when you are troubled. You will find within its walls your moment of peace, and you will walk out into the street again far better able to make the most of your life.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: I Samuel 1, 2:11-22.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 66:13-20.

Promise to God

Lesson for August 11, 1957

A SURE way to lose any one's respect is to fail to keep a promise. If a promise simply cannot be kept, as in case of illness or accident, no one will hold a failure against you. But a man will more quickly make excuses for himself than others will make for him. The brighter side is true too: no better way can be found to build up a solid reputation than to become known as a person who always keeps promises once made. No brilliance, no charm, makes up for keeping promises. What a letter of introduction this would make: "The bearer is is a young man of fine background. He graduated with honors. He has great charm of manner, his knowhow is enormous for his age. He has only one drawback: you can't depend on him."—!

Dr. Foreman

Promising God

Belief in God is feebler, even among good people, than it ought to be. One proof of this is the fact that many people, if not most of them, will be deeply ashamed of not keeping their promises to human beings; but will not take very seriously their failure to keep promises made to God. If a man owes a church pledge, and also some local store, he will pay the store bill first, and if he can only pay one, you know which gets the cash. If "ratting" on promises made to God is taken lightly, it only shows how lightly men believe in God.

If the Bible teaches anything it is that promises made to him mean far more than when made to ordinary people. The short name for such promises is "vows." Protestants make them as well as Roman Catholics. A promise seriously made, either to do something for God, or for his people because they are his people (especially the church) is a promise solemnly made to God. It is a promise calling on his name as a witness to a vow. As the Bible teaches, no body has to make a vow, but if it is made, the vow must be kept. Examples of vows are those made at baptism by the parents, if a child is involved, or by the one baptized if he is old enough, at confirmation or joining the church, or when making a pledge of money to a church, or the vows taken by a bride and groom as well as all sorts of private vows.

"... and Changeth Not"

"He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not," comes in for special praise, in the 15th Psalm. The story of Hannah tells of just such a person. She promised her first child to God. In her days and circumstances, this meant giving the child up and seldom seeing him again after the first few years. She had been bitter about her childlessness, and of course was overjoyed when little Samuel was born. Giving him up meant being childless all over again—but she kept her promise. She had five other children later, but she did not expect this when she presented her one son, her first-born, in the temple. It's easy to make promises, even easy to keep them when keeping them is pleasant. But your really devoted Christians, solid to the core, are those who keep their promises to God no matter what.

If Some One Knows

Human nature being what it is, even a promise to God is more likely to be kept if we know some one else knows about it. Hannah's vow was known to Eli the priest eventually, and we may guess that he suspected it from the start. No doubt this helped her to be faithful. So marriage vows are spoken not alone in God's presence but in the company of witnesses. So vows taken at joining the church, or confirmation, are taken in front of the whole congregation. This is why baptism, of a child or an adult, should never be private. If we were angels, a promise made to God in secret would be just as well kept as one made in public. But since we are human, and weak in faith, it helps if some ear besides God's hears our vows.

Oakland Country Club News

By JOHN FOX

It isn't satisfying for me to report the scores of our matches with other county clubs, but then I don't suppose our players enjoy reading about our losses either. The thing that is most discouraging is the fact that some of our better players were not present on Sunday, and with just a little help we could have won easily. Frostburg brought 43 men, 4 women, 8 caddies, 21 dogs and a cat. We could only find 27 men.

Don Smith had a low gross with a 70, while Jim Kreyenbuhl and Buddy Race shot 72's.

This Sunday, August 11th, Jimmy Spencer will bring 20 players over from the Sunnycroft Country club in Clarksburg. In addition, he claims to have two of the longest hitters in the area and they will challenge any two of our men to a driving contest. This will take place after the match and they will hit from just in front of No. 9 green, across No. 2 and No. 3 fairways. Each man will hit 5 balls with their longest attempt being measured. The team match will start at 12 noon and the driving contest will probably start around 4 p. m. This is a "dutch treat" arrangement since they will not be able to entertain us this year.

In our club tournament Ralph Pritts became 3rd flight champion by beating Jim Kelly and Maurice Brookhart is our 2nd flight champion since he won over Jack Hill.

About 50 people attended our dance last Saturday night, and everyone seemed real peppy.

Here's another story about a man about to hang. His executioner led him up the steps to the gallows, and while they got things ready he noticed that the trap door was very poorly constructed. When they asked him if he had any last words, he said while looking at the trap door, "Are you sure that thing is safe?' Bye.

The Mark of the Kremlin

The assassination last week of President Carlos Castillo Armas of Guatemala as a highly suspect communist again illustrates for all to see the "mark of the Kremlin." This tragic development fits the pattern of ever-mounting turmoil which has long signaled the spread of Communism. Vigorously anti-Red, years ago Guatemala's government attracted Communist interest. Garcia's was ousted, demonstration and obvious efforts to forestall evidence of Red influence "marks" Kremlin," have practically admitted trating from . . . and infiltration in Central and South . . . as evidence, thrive even . . . ment on the hemisphere, and subvert the free . . . "FORTY-FOUR YEARS OF THE LIFE OF A HUNTER," by Meshack Browning, Maryland's famous pioneer hunter, is now available.

Although it was first published 98 years ago and is now in its 12th edition, it is more widely read than ever before.

His truthful accounts of desperate encounters with the savage beasts of the forest, his superhuman efforts to maintain his family in the wilderness, far from human aid or associations, and his undaunted courage in facing the hardships of pioneer life cannot fail to captivate the reader.

It really deserves a place in every Marylander's library.

Warren-Gribble Nuptials July 23

MRS. CHARLES O. WARREN

The Philippi Baptist church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Imogene Gribble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Gribble, Philippi, to Charles O. Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren, Oakland, on Sunday, July 21, at 3 p. m.

Dr. Richard E. Shearer read the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of yellow and white gladioli and white tapers in seven branch candelabra.

Mrs. Adrian F. Davis, organist, presented a program of nuptial music preceding the ceremony, and accompanied Mrs. Donald Westfall, of Clarksburg, who sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a gown of white satin and French Chantilly lace, with long sleeves, ending in points over the wrists. Her veil of pure silk illusion fell from a crown of lace and satin, and she carried a white Bible, topped with a purple orchid, with white satin streamers ending in love-knots. Her only jewelry was a pair of pearl earrings.

Mrs. Robert Johnson, Norfolk, Va., served her sister as matron of honor and Miss Mary Martha Gribble, also a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. They were attired in identical gowns of teal blue taffeta and net, princess style, with matching picture hats and white gloves. They carried bouquets of miniature pink gladioli.

Elizabeth Ann Bennett, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a gown of pink taffeta, with matching hat and white gloves and carried a bouquet of miniature pink gladioli.

Gene Williams, Fairmont, was best man. Ushers were Robert L. Johnson, Norfolk; and Stanley Skarzinski, Fairmont.

Mrs. Gribble chose a sheath dress of green and white, with white accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Mrs. Warren wore a dress of navy blue, with accessories of white, and a shoulder corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the social rooms of the church. The lace-covered serving table was centered with a live-tiered wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom.

Mrs. James Malachiss, Cleveland, Ohio, aunt of the bride, served the cake, and Mrs. Carl Bennett and Mrs. Pete Kelly, aunts of the bride, Miss Shirley Warren and Miss Patricia Warren, sisters of the groom, Miss Janice Bennett and Mrs. Blonda Hollen, Jr., assisted. Mrs. Clyde Bennett, also an aunt of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Another aunt, Mrs. D. D. Duke, Wyoming, R. I., decorated the church.

The new Mrs. Warren was graduated from Philippi High school and Fairmont State college, where she was a member of Alpha Delta Chi Sorority. During the past school year she was employed as music teacher in Oakland schools.

Mr. Warren was graduated from Oakland High school and Fairmont State college where he was a member of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity and other campus organizations. Both Mr. and Mrs. Warren have accepted teaching positions in Norfolk, Va., where they will reside following a wedding trip.

For traveling Mrs. Warren chose a lavender sheath dress, complemented with a shoulder corsage of orchids. Her accessories were white.

Among the guests were Miss Mabel McGill and Mrs. Nellie Warren, both of Oakland.

Along The Potomac

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde - 6th District, Maryland

I think that it was clearly demonstrated during the House debate on the Federal aid for school construction measure that the States could build needed schools if they would. Even the proponents of Federal aid in our Congressional district do not deny this, but argue that since the States apparently won't, the Federal Government must. It seems to me wrong to demand of the Federal Government action which the States—without too great a sacrifice—could undertake themselves.

I would like to point out again that no official of the Government nor any educational organization has ever named a State financially unable to build all the schools it needs.

But, as I have said before, the basic and continuing issue is Federal control of our educational system. Even such a staunch friend of Federal aid as Columbia University Teachers College, after searching for evidence of Federal interference in the "impacted area program" and finding none, was still forced to conclude that real protection against Federal control rests on the officials who administer the program.

The Teachers College study says that Federal control is not likely if the officials who administer the program are "sensitive to the dangers of Federal control over personnel, curriculum, and instructional programs." Suppose they're not. What assurance have we that some Federal official steeped in the lure of an "ism" won't interject his ideas into my community if Uncle Sam is picking up the tab for school construction. We dare not rest the freedom of our schools on the thin reed of personal integrity—it must be deeply rooted in the law.

Academic freedom is so important, and the evils of centralized control and dictation in this field so daugerous, that I do not think we can afford to take the risk of endangering that freedom unless the risk is proved to be an absolute necessity.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Ruth Riggleman, who passed away August 10, 1953.

The sky is bright with sunshine
Little birds have built their nests;
While on a lonely hillside
Dear mother was put to rest.
She was taken to a new home,
Tho we're not to question why,
With God and his angels, beyond the sky.
When our life on earth is ended,
And judgment day has come,
May we share a home in heaven
With the mother we all loved.

Sadly missed by husband, sons and daughters. —Adv. 1t

McHenry Girl Wins Farm Queen Title

Miss Susan Bowman Will Represent County At State Fair

Susan Bowman, 16 year old brown haired, blue eyed miss, was crowned "1957 Garrett County Farm Queen" at the annual contest held Tuesday night at the Garrett County Agricultural Fair. She resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harland Bowman and her older sister and brother, on a 70 acre farm about 2 miles north of McHenry.

Miss Bowman has been an active 4-H member for 5 years. During this time she has won many honors in her clothing work. For the past 2 years, she has been grand champion in the county 4-H Dress Revue, and represented Garrett County in the state 4-H Revue, modeling a blue wool tailored suit. Last week, she appeared in the state revue modeling a white nylon lace and net evening gown, which she designed and constructed. In addition to these outstanding garments, Miss Bowman makes her own clothes, as well as her family. The new farm queen can cook and bake as well as sew a fine seam. She bakes and sells her products at the Farm and Home Market held each Saturday at McHenry.

Miss Bowman serves as Junior Leader of the North Star 4-H Club. In this position she guides the younger members through project work.

As a member of the Junior class at Northern High School, Miss Bowman is active in the Future Homemakers of America organization, and holds membership in the Projector Operators' Club. She is a member of the Methodist Church.

The State Farm Queen will be chosen August 26th, at the Timonium State Fair. Miss Bowman will compete with 22 other girls for the title. The girl chosen will reign as Queen of the Maryland State Fair.

Runners up to Miss Bowman were Joanne Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Collier, Accident; and Darlene Schossnagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Schlossnagle, Friendsville.

Blood Program Imperiled Unless More Is Secured

County Residents Are Using More Than They Are Contributing

Continued Garrett county participation in the Red Cross blood program hinged this week on more active support from local citizens, it was stated by officials in charge.

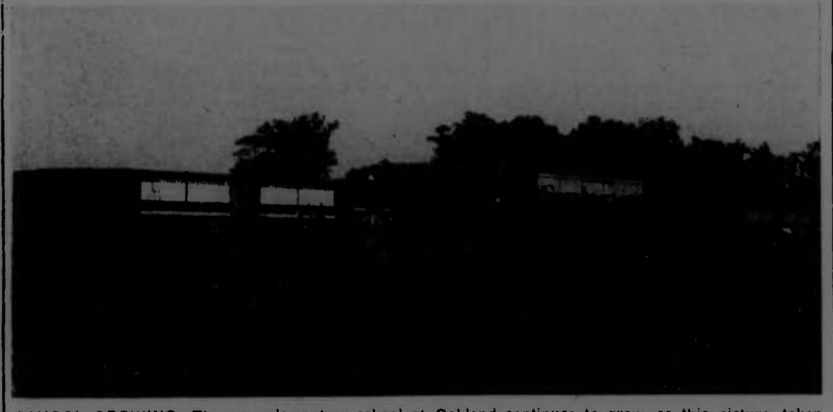
Mrs. Grover Stemple, blood recruitment chairman, said that during the past year local residents had received at least 29 more pints of blood than they had contributed. If this trend continues, she said, the bloodmobile would cease its visits to the area and the Garrett County Memorial hospital would no longer be eligible to provide free blood to patients.

Mrs. Stemple said that last year the county's quota was 361 pints and only 331 pints were supplied. During the same period, the hospital at Oakland received 335 pints and county residents in other hospitals accounted for at least 25 more.

Henry W. McComas, hospital superintendent, yesterday stressed the need for continued participation in the program. He said the hospital depended heavily on the Johnstown blood center for routine and emergency supplies and expressed much concern lest this source be discontinued.

When the bloodmobile next visits Oakland on August 26, the quota will be for 120 pints. The unit will be at the fire hall from noon until six p. m.

In addition to donors, Mrs. Stemple said the work is handicapped by a lack of volunteer registered nurses. Six nurses, in addition to nurses' aides, are required for the operation, she pointed out, and asked anyone with nursing training to volunteer their services by contacting her at DE 4-2186.



SCHOOL GROWING—The new elementary school at Oakland continues to grow, as this picture, taken this week, indicates. The new building, located behind Southern High School, is one of two such schools being built, the other underway on Route 40. Oakland's school is expected to be ready by the beginning of the second semester next school year.—Photo by The Republican.

County Fair Is Now Underway

The first Garrett County fair in —how many years—was in full swing today following its opening Tuesday after weeks of preparation by the fair organization and many county groups.

Exhibits from individuals and extension organizations, and commercial concerns occupy the newly constructed exhibit building on the fair grounds at McHenry. A number of commercial displays are also located outside the structure.

Tuesday was Farm Bureau day, with judging of everything except live stock. Yesterday, Children's day, adult dairy judging took place in the morning and 4-H and F.F.A. in the afternoon. Last night the live stock and machinery parade was held.

Today is Farm and City day. This morning adult beef, sheep and swine will be judged.

Tomorrow, Civic Club day, the tractor drivers' contest will be conducted in the afternoon for 4-H and F.F.A., in addition to the other attractions.

Saturday, a rodeo show will be presented. Entries may be picked up after 12 o'clock noon.

Officials reported good attendance for the first two days, and interest among spectators and exhibitors appeared high. Larger crowds were anticipated for the week-end.

Opinions differ as to the date the first fair was held. The official program lists 1917, but premium books and ribbons dating back to 1913 indicate a longer history.

This year's fair is the first since 1931.

Reenlists In Marines

Marine Sgt. Billy K. Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stewart, Star Route, Kitzmiller, receives congratulations from his company commander, Capt. C. A. Trowbridge, upon reenlisting for two years recently at Camp Lejeune, N. C., while serving with the 8th Regiment, 2nd Marine Division.

Stewart has requested a tranfer to the Division's 2nd Engineer Battalion to be a heavy equipment operator.

Before enlisting in February, 1951, he attended Kitzmiller High school.

Board To Close Mt. Zion School

The Mt. Zion school will be permanently closed and 12 or 14 children ordinarily attending there will be transported to Kitzmiller, the Board of Education decided at a meeting this week. The physical condition of the plant and the difficulty of finding a competent teacher were cited as reasons.

Bids on fleet policy insurance were opened and the contract was awarded to Nationwide Insurance Agency.

Accepted were resignations from Mrs. Olga Rowan and William Umbel, both of Northern, and approved were the appointments of Miss Arline Thacker, graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan and former Prince George's teacher, and Enio Loreta, a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, to replace them. Miss Thacker was transferred from Grantsville to Northern and her place at the former school will be filled by Paul Bailey, of Frostburg State.

Several changes in bus routes, to provide better service, were approved. The board also approved transfer of the bus owned by Frank Arnold to Harold L. Crowe, and approved Francis Miller as a driver for Carroll DeWitt, Thomas Beckman for Carl Wright and Lorraine Wiley for Harold Wiley.

The superintendent was authorized to offer $2,000 for five lots needed for school purposes at Bloomington.

The Lions club requested a donation of any unused commodes, washbowls or urinals for the Boy Scout camp and the board promished to cooperate fully with this request.

It was reported that the cost of summer maintenance and renovation was $8,000 for work on both high schools, at Yoder, Crellin, Bloomington, Deer Park, Grantsville, Friendsville and North Glade.

All furniture and equipment needed for the two new elementary schools has been purchased, it was reported, with the exception of two stage curtains.

Following adjournment, the board inspected work done at Yoder and Route 40.

The Youth Fellowship of the Oak Park Church of the Brethren is having a bake sale this Saturday, August 17, at the DeWitt and DeBerry store in Oakland.

Magistrate Disposes Of Nine Charges

Nine traffic cases and one boat violation were disposed of during the week by Magistrate Earl C. Friend in Oakland.

Harold R. Mason was charged by Trooper Glenn Folk with operating a vehicle for hire without a chauffeur's license. Given a choice of $10.00 or ten days, he chose the latter and became acquainted with the Garrett County jail.

LaVern R. Philpott, Manhassett, N. Y., arrested by Cpl. Sam Conrad for failure to give the right of way, was fined $10 and costs.

Judson F. Peck, Oakland, following too close, $10 and costs, Cpl. Conrad.

A 17-year-old Friendsville youth who was admitted to Garrett County Memorial hospital Sunday night with critical injuries following a one-car accident about six miles east of Friendsville on State Route 42, died yesterday at 10:55 a. m.

The victim, Randall Eugene Lowdermilk, suffered a compound fracture and badly mangled left arm, compound fracture of the left leg and internal injuries.

Tfc. Charles H. DeWitt said the youth was driving west from U. S. 219 in the direction of Friendsville and apparently dozed at the wheel and the car went out of control, crossed the highway and struck a bridge abutment on the south side of the road.

Young Lowdermilk was the only occupant of the vehicle at the time of the accident.

The body is at the Rodeheaver Funeral home, Markleysburg, Pa. Funeral arrangements this morning are incomplete.

Burned Bonds, Suspect Says

A bonfire in the backyard of a a Baltimore home did away with $25,000 worth of government bonds stolen from the A. E. Fox hardware store in Friendsville, one of two suspects told State Police this week.

Cpl. Samuel Conrad said Oliver Rockett, 53, has admitted that he burned the savings bonds in the backyard of his home after tearing them in pieces.

Baltimore police have been asked to check on evidence that the bonds were destroyed. Earlier, authorities sifted ashes located at a spot in West Virginia where some papers taken from the safe were burned, but they found no evidence of the bonds.

Rockett and Ellwood Kissner, 26, formerly of Friendsville, are lodged in the Garrett County jail charged with burglary and grand larceny of $37,510, including the bonds.

A third man, believed to have some $7,000 of the cash in his possession, is the subject of a 17-state manhunt, but is still at large.

About $1,000 in cash was recovered from a rockpile near Friendsville.

Swanton Man Shot

A 20-year-old Swanton area man was accidentally wounded in the lower left leg Monday afternoon when his .22 calibre pistol dropped on the floor of his home and discharged.

Fred Friend was treated at Garrett County Memorial hospital for a flesh wound of the leg. Cpl. Samuel Conrad, of the State Police, said Friend planned to hunt for ginseng root and decided to take his pistol along.

As he went to strap the holster around his waist, the pistol accidentally slipped from the holster and fell to the floor and discharged. Friend's wife was a witness to the accident.

Mrs. Joseph Frantz entertained members of her bridge club at her home Monday evening.

Deer Park Spring Water Still Important To Baltimore And Ohio

B. AND O. OWNED BOTTLING PLANT—Earle Hinebaugh, water supervisor, left, and Bio-Chemist Webster relax on platform of small but modern plant where Deer Park spring water is placed in sterilized bottles for use on trains.

A familiar sight to diners on B&O's feature trains is the silver-capped bottle bearing the green label, "Deer Park Spring Drinking Water." In its modernistic Incite holder, this water has through the years, come to be something of a conversation piece among travelers —a feature regarded as another one of "those small extras" which give B&O dining service its special distinction.

But though many have enjoyed this crystal-clear drinking water with its "delightfully palatable taste" (as advertised on the label), comparatively few know in full the romantic story of how the cooling mountain-spring water finds its way to the dining tables of modern B&O streamliners.

The water comes from "Boiling Spring," a picturesque stream gushing from a mountainside near the crest of the Alleghenies, at beautiful Deer Park, Md., once known as one of the most famous resorts in America.

Deer Park Spring water has been served on B&O diners since 1905, or thereabouts, always to the delight of discriminating travelers and always in accordance with highest standards of health and purity. But recently, improvements made by the railroad have served to bring the long-famous spring once again to public attention. A new pagoda-style spring house has replaced the old structure over the bubbling stream and a modern hypo-chlorinator installed. All installations conform to latest requirements of U. S. and Maryland State Public Health Services, as well as FILLING BOTTLES—Mountain fresh water flows from spring, through pipes, into bottling plant by force of gravity. It is sent into bottles, eight at a time, through this multiple spout unit operated by Mr. Hinebaugh. Bottling plant is a mile from the spring.

Review of The Play At The Playhouse

BY AZA STANTON

Alexander Pope could well have been looking for reference to this week's production at the Garrett County Playhouse when he wrote "A work where nothing's just or fit; one glaring chaos and wild heap of wit." The play is "See How They Run" by Philip King; a riotous, rollicking turmoil of three clergymen, a drunken spinster, a communistic lunatic, an American soldier, a maid, police sergeant and a vicar's wife. Each and every one becomes hopelessly involved in a dizzy bedlam of side-splitting lunacy, and remains so to the end. Flinging itself wildly into the air at the outset, this comedy never returns to earth. From all sides one hears the comment that this is the best presentation of the season. One must admit that it is the most hilarious.

Leonard Dram triumphantly returns to the Playhouse stage as an American soldier in England. The jocund pandemonium erupts during his visit with an old friend and former theatrical associate who has become the wife of a vicar. In the tangle of events he loses his uniform and almost his sanity while dressed in the vicar's "second best" suit. Mr. Dram enters into the hectic Donnybrook with all the import and rapid-fire delivery which has made him so tremendously popular with Playhouse audiences. He has even improved, it seems, after his stint in "Kaleidoscope."

W. Kenneth Johns is the bewildered police sergeant who tries to make heads or tails of the disordered situation and determine which of a conglomeration of clergymen and pseudo-clergymen is an escaped communist subversive. For his first appearance in a Playhouse production we must bestow upon Mr. Johns a well-earned pat on the back.

In "See How They Run," each member of the cast pulls out all the stops and scurries through his role as if the hounds were snapping at his heels. Joseph Hanrahan, Neil Flanagan and Cris Curran all portray men of the Cloth. As the frustrated vicar and husband, Joseph Hanrahan is righteously outraged by the disorder in the vicarage. In a moment of complete loss of self-possession, he rants about in his underwear brandishing a poker. Neil Flanagan, the austere bishop, is confounded by unbelievable circumstances from the moment he enters the scene. After a valiant effort to retain self-control he is overcome by the situation and enters bodily into the general state of confusion. Cris Curran portrays a timid, mild-mannered churchman seeking shelter in the Vicarage and finding a perplexing chase instead. With the rest, he becomes embroiled in the uproar.

As Miss Skillon, Bonnie Barton is either standing lumpishly or waddling about with rather agitated pelvic movements. After becoming disgustingly intoxicated, the little walking she is able to do is on her ankles. Most of the time, after attaining this inebriated condition, she is dragged around like a sack of potatoes. In all probability Miss Skillon is responsible for a good deal of the muddle. Helen Page Camp, who plays the gawky maid, Ida, may have started the whole bewildering thing by her inability to understand the peculiar situations she witnesses and by misplacing the soldier's uniform. Or it could have been the wild-eyed communist William Pappas), believing himself hounded by the police, who sets off the absurd chain of events by clouting the Vicar and filching his clothes. Or perhaps Sandra Teboe, the Vicar's beautiful and turbulent wife, could have instigated the fracas by becoming involved with the American soldier in the first place. But who am I to attempt to find order in all this chaos! Begone dull care! Away with melancholy! Let us become convulsed with laughter and roll in the aisles at the Garrett County Playhouse!

LOADING—A case of B. and O.'s famous Deer Park Spring Water is put aboard train at Deer Park Plant for dispatch to Baltimore or Chicago for distribution among the railroad's dining cars. Water is sent from bottling plant at rate of 40 cases per day. Each case contains eight half-gallon bottles.

Deer Park Spring Water

to the rigid requirement of our own B&O Research Department.

Though present-day B&O diners may not be aware of it, when they enjoy Deer Park Spring water, they are not only slaking their thirst with one of the purest waters to be found anywhere, but are drinking deep of the history and glamour of another era in our nation's past—an era which saw the ultimate in gaiety and good-living in the area immediately surrounding the spring from which the waters comes.

It was in 1873 that the famous old Deer Park Springs Hotel first opened its doors to guests, under ownership and management of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. In luxury of appointment and services, few hotels of the day surpassed it. Summer cottages owned by many of the most prominent families in the East sprang up on the mountainsides adjoining the hotel. To this site came the great and the near-great of the nation, to enjoy the unsurpassed mountain scenery, the healthful spring water, and recreational attractions provided by the management of the plush Deer Park Hotel. President Cleveland and his bride honeymooned here in 1886. Presidents Harrison and Garfield were frequent visitors and President Taft maintained a cottage at Deer Park to escape from the heat and pressures of Washington. Stars of the theatre and opera flocked to the hotel, as did famous writers, artists and foremost industrialists and professional leaders of the day. Yes, in those days life was gay at this secluded and exclusive rendezous, high in the Alleghenies, on the B&O.

But with changing times came a decline in the popularity of the fashionable resort. The coming of the automobile and other factors were altering the recreation habits of people everywhere. In 1911, the railroad sold the Deer Park Hotel and operations were suspended, thereby ending a memorable era in the resort life of the nation. Gradually through the years, portions of the building were torn down. However, it was not until 1944 that the last vestige of the storied, old hotel was finally removed, leaving only the enduring mountain scenery and, perchance, the ghosts of glamorous guests of the past to mark "what once had been" at Deer Park.

These were left—these and the famed "Boiling Spring." For even with the passing of an era, its waters, like "Old Man River," just kept rolling along. And, never losing sight of the superior drinking qualities of this water—and perhaps with more than a trace of nostalgia, too, B and O officials of the day retained ownership of the spring and continued to serve the water to patrons on its plush dining cars.

Understandably, then, it is with more than passing interest that we report the improvements which have recently been made at Boiling Springs, to perpetuate and enhance the goodness of Deer Park Spring Water, one of the most colorful traditions of B&O's dining service.

At Deer Park, our railroad not only owns and maintains the spring itself, but a modern bottling plant where the water is placed, mountain-fresh, into the sterilized bottles now so familiar to B&O diners. For many years, water was put aboard our dining cars in five-gallon bottles, says J. B. Martin, superintendent, Dining Car Department, under whose supervision the Deer Park water is served. But since 1946, the attractive half-gallon containers which slip handily into the modern lucite stands ready for table use, have been provided.

Deer Park water is served on all our feature trains. The water is a B&O exclusive, labeled "This water is not for sale."

The water is turned out of the bottling plant at the rate of 40 cases per day. Each case contains eight of the half-gallon bottles. Simple arithmetic will show that at this rate we are serving approximately 160 gallons of the cooling, spring water a day, to our passengers.

Operation of the small but modern Deer Park bottling plant is a one-man job handled by Earle T. Hinebaugh, water supervisor, an employee of our Dining Car Department.

Water flows from Boiling Spring at the rate of 100 gallons per minute. It travels, by force of gravity, through pipes to the bottling plant, about a mile away, after passing through the modern hypo-chlorinator, recently installed under the spring house by our Research Department. The spring itself is well protected by the new spring house, which resembles nothing so much as a Japanese pagoda in appearance. The spring house, with its spotless cement floor and cast iron spring rover, is kept securely locked.

In the bottling plant, Water Supervisor Hinebaugh's first chore each day is to wash empty bottles that have been returned, using a motor-driven brush. Next, he sterilizes the bottles with water heated to a temperature of 180 degrees fahrenheit. Clean bottles are filled with fresh water through a modern, multiple-spout unit which sends the water into eight bottles simultaneously. Next Mr. Hinebaugh applies a jell cap to each bottle to seal in goodness and purity. The half-gallon bottles are now ready to go into wooden cases, eight to the case. Trains No. 22 and No. 30 pick up the cases at Deer Park Station and speed them on to Dining Commissaries at Washington and Chicago for distribution to feature trains.

Most important of all, of course, B&O's Deer Park Spring water bears the approval of the U. S. Public Health Service. Once a week, inspectors from the Maryland Public Health Service drop in, always unannounced, to check the water. And once a week, too, Carl Webster, bio-chemist from our own Research Department, tests the water for purity.

And this is the story of B&O's Deer Park Spring Water. It explains, we think, why we claim for it much more than the simple properties of H2o, found in ordinary water. In this refreshing mountain-spring water, we maintain, are to be found also the properties of health, history and enchantment.

One Man Looks At God

(By Charles W. Carlson, Pastor, St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Oakland Maryland.)

This week as we consider further the words written by James, "brother of the Lord," we hear the kind of call that comes from the Word of God to those who have superior gifts:

"Who is wise and understanding among you? By his good life let him show his works in the meekness of wisdom . . . Where jealousy and selfish ambition exist, there will be disorder and every vile practice. But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, open to reason, full of mercy and good fruits, without uncertainty and insincerity. And the harvest of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace."

How rich and vital the words that we hear from this wonderful man, inspired by God to speak words that are unending in their value for men! If only those who are in positions of leadership would realize that their position is one mainly of responsibility and not of privilege.

How we have seen the bitter fruits of the selfish man in position of power! Whether he be a small town mayor, a county commissioner, a big city alderman, governor, or president of the United States, his position is one of despicable waste when he uses it to further his own selfish gains.

God's gift of superior leadership abilities is one of the most precious offered. And it should of necessity be employed for the purpose that God has outlined, and beautifully illustrated through James in his words: "the harvest of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace." Where men of great strength and ability use that ability for peaceful purposes, the world is blessed indeed because these men have lived.

Let all of us pray continually that those who are in leadership positions be guided by the Spirit of God, and let all of those who have been given superior intelligence pray that they may be able to use it to the advantage of the world, for the world needs great men in large places, doing big things "In the meekness of wisdom."

Senate Cloakroom

By J. GLENN BEALL
United States Senator from Maryland

This week—or, to be more specific, the last day of July—would normally be the official deadline for the adjournment of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

However, the same law which sets this final closing date also provides that it does not have to be observed "in time of war or during a national emergency proclaimed by the President." And this exception within the law applies today.

Officially our country is still in the state of "national emergency" proclaimed in 1950 by Mr. Truman, who was President at that time.

The current session of the Congress can continue indefinitely, therefore, without even a passing nod to its regular adjournment deadline.

Precautionary Measure

The condition of "national emergency" which I mentioned should not be confused in any way with a state of war.

Under an emergency proclamation such as the one which has been in effect since the Korean conflict, a great many extraordinary provisions of law are automatically kept in force to permit the Government to take necessary action promptly.

The condition has been maintained as a precautionary, stand-by measure.

Disagreement on Adjournment

Even under normal circumstances, the time limit which was imposed on Congressional sessions by the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 could be extended by the mere passage of a resolution by both Houses.

It is interesting to note, while considering this subject, that in case of disagreement between the two Houses as to a time, the Constitution authorizes the President to "adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper."

No President has ever exercised this power, and there is some question as to whether it might not apply solely to special sessions which he himself called.

Gallery Passes

One last word, now, about adjournment.

Many Marylanders have told me that they would like to hear a debate or discussion on the Senate Floor.

Since the 85th Congress is now beginning to wind up its first session, anyone who wishes to visit the Senate while it is in action should do so as soon as possible.

Passes permitting visitors to enter the Senate gallery are available in my office—Room 241, Senate Office Building. We will be glad to have you drop in to pick them up.

County Girl Places In State 4-H Dress Revue

Miss Judy Ruckel, member of the Bittinger 4-H club, placed second in the state in the 4-H style revue held last week at College Park.

First place went to Miss Ann Plummer, of Preston, Md., who displayed a shirt-waisted dress trimmed with lace and tucks. She received as her award a trip to Chicago to attend the National 4-H club congress.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Horrible To Contemplate

Perhaps, when this vital civil rights bill, with its deep emotional, sectional and political appeal is finally acted upon at this session of Congress the better-grade politicians in both parties, to say nothing of the great American people, will be able to give some real thought to the issue that even more seriously threatens the welfare of the nation as a whole and every individual in it—to wit, inflation.

* * *

This is not to say that the civil rights bill, in whatever form enacted, will completely solve the great racial question involved. Neither Supreme Court decrees, congressional acts nor Administration orders will do that. Time alone will effect the solution and every clear-headed and really informed man knows that fact. The point is that after this session ends, the men who officially run this country, and the people as a whole in whom the real power is vested, had better buckle down to the job of regaining control of the Federal finances and curbing what now threatens to become a run-away inflation, if consequences disastrous to all are to be averted.

* * *

Because inflation is no longer a threat; it is a fact. For years we have been warned and now we have it. In a series of extraordinary and indisputable statistics the U. S. News and World Report last week told the raw story of the rise in the cost of living in the last eighteen years. It canbe summarized in this way—if in 1939 your yearly income was $1,500 you must make $3,098 to be as well off today; if your 1939 income was $15,000 you need $10,091 in order to be as well off now; if your income was $1,000,000 you need $3,678,378. Figures of other income brackets are not here given for lack of space, but the proportion is exactly the same. No one escapes. In a period of great prosperity nobody is really any better off and of course those whose income is fixed and unchangeable, who live on pensions, or on trust funds or wages that have not risen are really up against it. The purchasing power of their dollar has decreased and the burden of undreamed of taxes—Federal, State and local—is heavy, indeed.

* * *

It is not news to say that this situation is getting worse every day. The tax burden grows, prices increase, the purchasing power of the dollar goes down, the general financial situation, so far as the individual is concerned, becomes tighter and less bearable. Actually, of course, high taxes, while a great factor in this situation, are not the fundamental cause. The real cause is the steady rise, month by month, in the cost of living. For this the chief responsibility rests with union labor and business management—no where else. This was recently pointed out by Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, certainly one of the most distinguished economists in the country and a vastly different person from Mr. Leon Keyserling, the Truman Administration and pro-AFL-CIO economist and the one so frequently quoted by the Americans for Democratic Action and other far-left so-called liberals. Says Dr. Nourse, "We should stop passing the buck to the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Congress and the Federal Reserve System. The real source of inflation in postwar United States has been in the market place—the institutions and practices of labor-union bargaining and in corporation price administration."

* * *

That this game of wage-price increases is the rock-bottom trouble with the country today is not disputed—except by the big labor bosses and the big business magnates who go along with them.

Not long ago when the labor bosses again forced up their wages, President Eisenhower appealed to big steel management not to advance prices—and appealed also to labor to refrain from another insistence on a wage increase. He pointed out what this meant to the country and no one disputed it. But neither union labor nor business management took his advice or acceded to his request—quite the contrary. The only alternative, of course, is for the Government to step in, which is a direct move toward national socialism and abhorrent to most Americans. Undoubtedly, this is the direction we have been going since the Roosevelt-Truman New-Fair Deal started. This is exactly what the President wants to avoid—but toward which he is being pressed all the time.

Listen Americans!

BY GEORGE S. BENSON
President of Harding College

In his book, The Socialist Tragedy, Ivor Thomas showed that in modern world history Socialism has been the transition stage through which Communism has come to power in nation after nation. In Russia itself the Communists helped Kerensky set up his Socialist Provisional Government before taking over a short time later. In Hungary the Reds came to power after they had lured the Socialist government into a coalition. In Czechoslovakia the Reds moved to power through the Socialist Party headed by Dr. Benes.

At the 20th World Congress of the Communist Party held in Moscow recently, the same old strategy was re-emphasized for the Red conspirators in all the countries outside the Iron Curtain: work for Socialism first; this was the order of the day. With the Reds pushing behind the scene, Socialism has risen to power in most of the nations of the world. All these extremely important facts of history are brought to the attention of high school students studying World History in the course developed by Harding Academy in Searcy.

Ivor Thomas' book is one of the reference texts used in the course. He was a Labor-Socialist member of Parliament in England. He withdrew from his party when he saw where Socialism was taking his nation. He wrote his book to warn the people of the world that Socialism is like a cancer of the blood stream—it spreads and attacks and destroys the body of a nation.

In Harding Academy course, these goals are set up for each student: (1) An understanding of the world by a study of men, places, events, and terms; (2) A knowledge of the main eras and movements in history; (3) An appreciation of freedom—how difficult it has been to preserve freedom and how easy it may be to lose it; (4) A knowledge of totalitarianism, and particularly of the present form of government in Russia; an awareness of the kinship between Communism and Socialism, and the irrestable movement toward totalitarianism;

(5) A knowledge of the principles embedded in the United States Constitution—division and separation of authority in Government, representative Republican form, sanctity of the individual, protection for minorities, and respect for minority views.

The Academy uses as its basic textbook for this course, World History, by Smith, Muzzey and Lloyd, Ginn and Company, Dallas.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear husband and father, Richard Bradford Riggleman, who passed away 22 years ago, August 19, 1935.
Gone, dear husband, gone forever;
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Sadly missed by his wife and children,
Daisie Ellen Riggleman
—Adv. 1t

Neither union labor nor big business management paid the least attention to his advice and request. Each continued to play its game regardless of the effect on the nation. Until and unless the Congress wakes up, there is no way to decrease taxes and no way to check the rising cost of living. In the end, this means a collapse horrible to contemplate.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my husband, Isaac Newton Bittinger, 82, who was hit by a car on August 14, two years ago; also in loving memory of my son, Simon R. Hoover, 48, and my grandson, Harold Hoover, 20, both killed in a car wreck five years ago, July 15.

Dear loved ones I miss you so as the years go by. I think of you often by day and night, and to think we could not bid you a goodbye. Our last farewell, but as God knows best, thanks to His holy name. Some go old and tired, some go young and gay, the baby at birth, the old and gray. But as we miss you so to God we will cling until this life is over and God calls us home.

Sadly missed by Mrs. Effie M. Bittinger.

Glades Country Folk Lore

By DENNIS T. RASCHE

Every land has had its folk lore, traditional beliefs, usages, and observances not consistent with accepted ideas of reality and possihility, and none of which could be proven true by demonstration. In hig countries there were regional localized variations. This mountain area had its own small and harmless superstitions and shared many that were more widely current, some of them throughout the length and breadth of the country. Not all the people of the long-ago really believed in them, but many who did not would practice some of the curious rituals anyway, just for the fun of it maybe and wearing a skeptical smile the while. And of course there were some who helieved in them implicitly.

The asthma cure

We can hazard some guesses:

It was helieved that a huckeye carried in one's left hip pocket would cure sore throat.

Someone with a sore throat happened to experience relief at a time when he chanced to have a huckeye in his pocket.—a coincidence. The person involved, living at a time when many similar ideas were commonly believed, might at once arrive at the conclusion that the buckeye had brought him relief. Others heard of this and soon there would be a tradition.

Even today, we hear of major league basehall players cherishing little superstitions. A player might go hitless during several games. Suddenly, he would get red hot and bang out four hits. After the game, it would be noticed that his shirt sleeve was slightly ripped. A club house attendant would offer to get the rip mended. The player would reject the offer emphatically and lock the shirt away to be worn as it was while his hitting streak lasted. That rip had brought him luck!

Maybe a pitcher has held the opposition hitless through seven innings. Then it is tahoo for another player to mention the idea of a possible no hitter. To do so would bring on a jinx. An opposing player would be sure to break up the dream game with a hit, and maybe start a rally that would lose the game for the no-hit aspirant.

"He loves me--he loves me not!"

Going back to the olden times:

In planting time if someone brought a gift of flower plants it was unlucky to thank the giver. To do so would hamper the growth of the plants. Often the giver would mention this hex before handing over the gift.

It was lucky to pick up a pin one saw anywhere, hut the point must not be toward the person picking it up. That was unlucky.

A nutmeg worn around the neck in a small bag prevented goitre; cramps in the leg could be averted by crossing one shoe over the other on the floor under the bed; a small live spider sealed up in a thimble with wax and worn suspended from the neck in a sack forefended respiratory ills; a sharp knife or ax under the bed would CUT pain; cohwebs applied to a cut were considered efficaclous, hut if cobwehs were not handy a quid of chewing tobacco was next best; a pain in the side could be cured or relieved by picking up a flat rock, spitting on the under side three times, and replacing the rock exactly as it was when picked up.

To cure asthma in a growing child the patient was stood up with the back against a tree and a hole bored in the tree trunk at a point the exact height of the child. A lock of the patient's hair was placed in the hole which was then plugged up. When the child grew higher than the plugged up hair the affliction was cured.

Young girls could rid themselves of freckles and otherwise improve their complexions by rising before sunrise on May Day and washing their faces in dew. This reporter's sisters when eight or ten years old ollowed this practice. Their complexions were quite good.

When a cow couldn't be tound in pasture or woods the country hoy or girl wiuld pick up a long-legged spider and recite an Incantation like

Grand-daddy Longlegs,
This tired boy begs,
Please to tell him how
He may find his cow.

The spider released would at once strike off in the direction where the missing cow would be tound.

Boys seeking a ball lost in weeds or tall grass used a similar method.

There were signs and omens in plenty, some were ominous portents of dire events to come.

A dog howling while facing a house meant death to someone dwelling therein; an owl hooting in the yard was an omen of doom; a sparrow or other wild bird getting into the house betokened death, as also did a picture falling from the wall.

In the old time tables were set with only one each of knife, fork and spoon at each plate. If two knives were mistakenly placed while the table was being set a fight was to be expected; two spoons a wedding; a spider hanging from the ceiling by a single thread called for orange blossoms and wedding cake too; if a fork was dropped on the floor a visitor would soon appear, a lady; a man if a knife was dropped; if the dishrag was dropped some old bag would soon show up.

Woe to the bride if rain fell on her wedding day! She would shed a a tear for every drop.

A measuring worm crawling on one's dress meant a new dress for the wearer. When the Ayrshire Plowman observed a louse crawling on a fine lady's bonnet in church he gave the impudent creature a fine tongue-lashing for its presumption. Then he reflected that it would be well if we all see ourselves as others see us.

In those old days people had many ways of peering into the future. Nowadays so many things are happening that few would even try to guess at what is coming next.

At midnight, on Hallowe'en when there was a full moon a maid might go alone into the yard and walk backward to the well—it had to be the old Oaken Bucket type, open and with a windlass to draw the bucket up. Looking down into the water she would see not her own reflection, but that of her future husband.

It was the hour when graveyards yawn and ghosts and goblins are are abroad. Few girls had the hardihood to complete the ritual, which to be effective must be performed alone.

A maid could break a bit of wedding cake into three small pieces, wrapping each in a slip of paper on which was written the name of a suitor—or maybe just someone she thought might suit her. Walking backward to her bed she would put the parcels under the pillow. Next morning she burned one, and on the second morning another. The last slip of paper bore the name of the lad fate had destined her for.

Fortunes could be told by plucking out daisy petals one by one—"He loves me, he loves me not . . . " the last petal told the tale.

There was a somewhat more detailed "Eeny, meeny, miney, moe" game with daisy petals. There probably was a tune to sing the words to.

One I love, two I love, three I love I say
Four I love with all my heart, five I cast away,
Six he loves, seven she loves,
Eight both love like cooing doves,
Nine he comes, ten he tarries,
Eleven he courts, twelve he marries.

Warts were a common affliction among children up to age of about fourteen. They came and went something like the common colds, of which people used to say that If a cold is properly treated it can be cured in a week, but if not treated at all it will last seven days. As to warts medical treatment would speedily remove them. But In those days the doctor was often at a distance, mayhe a half day's journey away hy horse and buggy. So for minor ills the country people often relied on home treatment that sometimes bordered on magic.

When a chicken was being dressed in the kitchen a cut off leg was rubbed over the wart and then burned. If the wart didn't go there were other things to try.

A used dishrag was applied to the wart, then buried under the drip from the eaves of the house in the dark of the moon. When the rag rotted away the wart would be gone. But this took some time. Also the dishrag had to be stolen from some neighbor's kitchen. The housewives of long ago all knew of this requirement. Usually when some child with warts came into the kitchen the mistress of the house would be cooperative. She would leave an old dishrag in plain sight and make an excuse to leave the room.

Many years ago the pack peddler was a familiar figure in rural neighhorhoods. He trudged about the countryside afoot with his pack full of needles, thread, thimbles, embroidery material, and other small articles to sell to farm women. He was usually a Jew, Armenian, or a man of one or the other of the Levantine peoples. He has long since disappeared from the scene, along with the intinerant umbrella mender and scissors grinder, and the Italian organ grinder with his monkey to collect coins in the tin cup. All faded out of the American scene soon after the coming of the motor car and the finely-paved roads.

The pack peddler was popularly believed to have the power to cure warts by huying them. At least the afflicted children so believed. When the peddler, always a friendly soul and aware of the current belief, came into the house the child with warts would be ready with a proposition. The genial peddler would solemnly hand the kid a penny or nickel and the deal was complete. When the peddler left the youngster was happy in the belief that he or she would in time be "shut" of the wart. Often one of the grown-ups of a farm family on seeing a peddler approaching would go outside to meet him and hand him a coin, advising him of what was expected.

This seems in some way to smack of the folk lore of Southern Europe. In Italy when passing a hunchhack it was supposed to bring good luck to pat his back. The hunchback didn't mind the familiarity; he seemed happy in his alleged powers and glad to accommodate people with the benefit of them. This helief was centuries old.

Another that endured a thousand years in Europe was the King's Touch. By touching a sufferer from scrofula the annointed king could cure the ailment. A certain day of each year was appointed for the ritual.

As an emblem of luck the horse-shoe was an idea of nearly world-wide currency, as was also the finding of a four-leaved clover. If these things brought no luck, at least, they brought none that was bad. Walking under a ladder, or seeing a black cat crossing one's path brought very bad luck. To break a mirror meant a run of ill tuck that would last seven years.

For the most part these ideas once cherished in the long-ago were harmless. But in other parts of the world folk lore sometimes took turns that were evil, malignant, monstrous! Happily for the people of this mountain country they were spared some abominations that afflicted those of other areas.

Only three quarters of a century before our early pioneers came, and not six hundred miles from here as the crow flies, twenty persons were accused, tried, and found guilty of the imaginary crime of witchcraft!

The penalty was death!

A hundred and fifty others were arrested, but of these none were tried and all were later released. This lunacy lasted only throughout one summer in Massachusetts. It was at a time when belief in witchcraft had hegan to come into wide disrepute and the rate of decline was rapid. Within about thirty years after the Salem outbreak all laws pertaining to witchcraft were repealed in England and Scotland. But the delusion had persisted several centuries, during which time at least 300,000 persons were executed, most of them women. Some historians estimate the number as much greater—into the millions! Such had been the power of the prevailing madness that the alleged witches, accused of impossible enormities sometimes confessed their guilt! Some admitted having caused storms at sea; others pled guilty to having transformed themselves into cats, wolves, or other animals. Fear of torture, often resorted to, no doubt induced such confessions.

All in all Garrett County fared well in that its homely folk lore and superstitions were no worse than mildly interesting and quaint.

Geologists Seek Gas In Northern Part Of County

Exploration for natural gas in the Negro mountain section of Garrett county is being conducted by Geophysical Service, of Dallas, Texas. The company is engaged in seismograph operations to secure information for an unnamed client. Work has been in progress since December.

Most of the land involved is owned by Snee and Eberly, a Uniontown partnership which has been actively engaged in gas exploration and production here for a number of years.

What the specialists are seeking is contrasts in rock layers which may indicate the position of natural gas.

Before the service begins operations, it was pointed out, it obtains permission from owners of land being surveyed. Such permission was granted several days ago by the State Department of Forests and Parks when the explorations carried the crew onto state forest land.

Permission was obtained from District Forester William H. Johnson.

REV. EDWARD JEROME ALEXIS

Rev. Raymond C. Myers, Rev. Charles L. Lady and Rev. Edward Jerome Alexis are the final three of the missioners who are to be in this Mt. Top area during the Lutheran Evangelism Mission week, August 25 to 30, to preach a series of sermons.

Rev. Myers will be missioned at St. John's church, Davis, W. Va. Rev. Lady will be missioner at St. Paul's church, Aurora, W. Va. Rev. Alexis will be missioner at St. John's church, Meadow Mountain.

Rev. Myers will be missioner at the Board of American Missions of the U. L. C. A., serving in Konarock, Va. Following graduation from Arendtsville Vocational High school he studied in Susquehanna university, followed by three years in Gettysburg seminary with intraining student pastor service.

Since that time he has served as pastor in York county, Pa., and as missioner in four different parishes. He will preach two services Sunday, August 25, and one each evening, August 26 through August 29, at Aurora.

Rev. Myers was graduated in 1945 from Gettysburg Seminary and has served three parishes since that time, as assistant pastor at a church in Frederick, at Woodboro, and is now serving the Epiphany church in Baltimore.

He serves as chairman of the Lutheran Reformation rally for Baltimore and vicinity and also serves as board member of the Lutheran hospital of Maryland.

Rev. Alexis is presently pastor of the Lutheran church at Zelienople, Pa. He was graduated from Pinxsutawney high school, Gettysburg college and Gettysburg seminary. Prior to serving at Zelienople he was an assistant pastor at a church in Frederick. He is married and has three children. His wife directs the youth choir in his present church.

Rev. Alexis is treasurer of West Conference, Pittsburgh synod, assistant chairman of press, radio television committee for the Pittsburgh synod, captain in the chaplain corps, U. S. Army reserve. He has already served as a missioner at Connellsville in the evangelism mission in that area in 1956.

Three Methods Will Urge Interest In Evangelism Mission

Letters are being mailed, telephones will begin to jingle and door bells will ring. All of these activities are an indication that the Lutheran Evangelism mission is prepared for its big effort—that of bringing renewed interest to church members and persuading the unchurched and inactive member to become regular in Christian activity.

These methods of action are designed to bring results but the real results will not be known until after the conclusion of the mission.

The Lutheran Evangelism Mission is scheduled for August 25 to 30, with a week of services in all the fourteen Lutheran churches of the Mountain Top area, concluding with an area rally in Southern High school on Friday evening, August 30. Special missioners from other Lutheran churches of a four-state area will be in the pulpits of the fourteen congregations to give two messages Sunday, August 25, and one message daily, Monday through Thursday.

Letters are being mailed to each member and many unchurched of the area during the three weeks prior to the mission, through activity of the publicity committee. A telephone committee was appointed months ago which has arranged a system of communication to every member each day, urging them to attend the services. A visitation committee will meet for supper prior to each service, Monday through Thursday, after which they will make personal visits to the non-active church goer and non-member in an effort to renew their faith. The telephoning and personal visitation will continue throughout the mission, in an effort to get people interested in Christ's ministry to the world.

Missioners who will be engaged in this series of sermons have been listed for the past several weeks with individual pictures and brief biographies of them.

Oakland Country Club News

By JOHN FOX

I suppose it was only a coincidence, but the first match that we won this year was the only one that I didn't play in. Nevertheless it feels awfully good to write that we won on Sunday. We defeated the Sunnycroft Club from Clarksburg, W. Va., 22-8. The match was played in Oakland and 40 players competed.

Don Smith shot a 3 under par 66 to post the season's lowest score, as well as his second fine competitive round in a row. The week before he shot a 70 against Maplehurst. The all-time low for the course is 65.

"Pepper" Inskeep kept on rolling along as he defeated Dave Hopkins to win the paper mill championship. This is Pepper's second trophy in a row this year.

The pairings have been made for the President's Cup Handicap Tournament. All players are asked to cooperate in completing this tournament on time.

A Staten Island recluse, 90, who recently starved to death, had $275,000 in her flat.

MY FRIEND

Folks used to wonder what Grandpa Brown and I had in common. He must have been close to eighty when I was just a kid. But I remember him as one of the best friends I ever had.

He was a wonderful old man, with a simple, native wisdom. We used to go fishing together, and he would talk to me about God and Faith and Love. I remember he used to say people shouldn't wait until they're in trouble before going to Church. "When you're happy," he told me, "take time out to offer a prayer of thanks for your good fortune."

The Church, he used to say, had acted as a balance wheel for him during good times, and a bulwark during bad times.

Down through the centuries the Church has made great Christians out of unassuming people, who in turn have transmitted the blessings of the Church to the oncoming generations. I hope I can impress Grandpa Brown's Faith and Wisdom upon others as I was impressed by him.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scriptures: I Samuel 14:1-15, 18-23, 31-45; 19:1-7; 20:1-42; II Samuel 1:17-27
Devotional Reading: John 15:9-17

Friend for Life

Lesson for August 18, 1957

WHEN Jonathan died, his friend David sang a song about him which has come down to us in the Bible (II Sam. 1:17-27) as a sample not only of David's genius as a man's poet, but as a gem in the literature of friendship. The curious feature of it is that at the time of Jonathan's death David was technically and actually a rebel against the government in which Jonathan was an officer. The army, in the defeat of which Jonathan was killed, would have been sent against David except that the Philistines were at the moment Public Enemy Number One. And in fact David was officially an ally of those same Philistines whose troops crushed Jonathan's.

Dr. Foreman

Strange background for friendship! No friendship has stood the final test unless it is a friendship "in spite of" what tries to break it up. Easy-going friendship may not be very strong when the test comes.

In Spite of Rivalry

One thing that breaks up friendships in a hurry is a situation in which both friends are rivals—for a job, for a promotion, for a girl, for money. Now Jonathan was David's rival for the most important (and glamorous, too) job in their country: nothing less than being King. Jonathan was the Crown Prince. David only a commoner; but David had the backing of the prophet Samuel. This meant that David had the approval of God, for that high place, as Jonathan did not. It was harder for Jonathan not to be jealous of David than for David not to be jealous of Jonathan. But Jonathan was David's good friend in spite of that. Sometimes a friendship, well started, will keep right on when a rivalry moves in. But is not so often that men already rivals will become friends. Jonathan knew from the start that David had his eye on the throne, for when first Jonathan heard of him, he was trying out for his sister's hand in marriage. Eastern courts being what they were, and still are, that ordinarily spelled trouble for the future; but not for Jonathan. Win or lose, he was still a friend.

In Spite of the Feud

Another thing has spoiled many a budding friendship: family interference. For years, all Jonathan could have heard at home about David was nothing good. Saul hated the very sight of David, and in fact tried over and over again to kill him or get him killed. It reached the point where once at dinner when David's name was mentioned, and Jonathan offered a perfectly sensible excuse for his not being there, King Saul broke out in a red rage, insulting Jonathan and his mother besides, all because Jonathan was acting decently about David.

What your family says about people—the preacher, the school teacher, the mayor, the President, or the next door neighbor—is hard to get away from. It's hard to see good in people when those closest to you see nothing but meanness. It takes a real friend to be able to listen to slander by the carfull, and not believe a word of it. It takes a pretty strong backbone to run the risk of breaking with your family in order to stand by somebody they don't like but who you know is worth two of you.

In spite of Inferiority

Jonathan was, as the stories about him show, a popular man, and an able one. He would have made a better king than Saul . . . but not better than David. He knew this. For all his popularity, he was less popular than David. The people loved Jonathan, but most of them could see that David would make a better leader of the nation. If Jonathan found this hard to take, he said not a word about it that any one remembered. He did not get himself all choked up in an "inferiority complex." It is easier to be a good friend to people less able than yourself, less good-looking, less popular, less anything good, than it is to be a good friend to some one who, on most counts, outrates you.

All friends wish their friends well. But the acid test of friendship is this: Can you wish your friend well when you know that his success means your eclipse?

Sen. John Marshall Butler

These comments are offered not in acrimony, but to illustrate the "trial balloon" method sometimes used by government officials to measure public opinion or to prepare the public for an ultimate eventuality. The President's recent off-the-cuff remark suggesting that a conferance between Marshal Zhukov of Russia and Secretary of Defense Wilson might have a constructive purpose has invoked a curious chain reaction ending with an Administration statement that such a meeting was not anticipated or expected.

Zhukov is head of the Soviet armed forces, but he is also an important leader in the Soviet Communist Party and thus in the international communist movement. Many observers now count him as the "No. 2 man in the Soviet Union." It ought not to be doubted, therefore, that Zhukov is a faithful communist, dedicated, as are his Kremlin associates, to the communization and domination of the entire world through foul or placid means. Typically, before becoming Defense Minister, Zhukov accused "the aggressive forces of the imperialist countries headed by the United States monopolists" of "openly preparing a new war against the Soviet Union."

of meeting with Zhukov on American soil, or elsewhere, be it with the President, the Secretary of Defense or lesser officials, fails the test of good logic on more than one score. Basic differences in idealogies aside, it cannot be denied that Zhukov put down the Hungarian revolution last October with ruthless abandon of human life. It cannot be denied that Zhukov places no credence in the principles of freedom for all mankind and the dignity of the individual. We are told that Zhukov once made this incredible assertion during World War II to General Eisenhower: "Human Life? What is it? 1,000 lives? 10,000 lives? 100,000 lives? What are they? Nothing." How then could we possibly find a common ground of understanding for conversation with the "butcher of Budapest."

On the basis of these cold facts, I am unable to contemplate any advantage which could be gained through a meeting with Zhukov. To the contrary, the ceaseless communist propaganda machine would once again pervert the truth to the extent that he would be presented as a "dove of peace" rather than as just another "red butcher" of devious rather than noble purpose. I predict that this latest "trial balloon" will be deflated by the same public reaction which cancelled, some months ago, an invitation for Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia to visit in this country.

For the first time advocates of ultimate Government ownership and control of the production of atomic power have used an Atomic Energy Commission money authorization bill as the means of obtaining their objectives. Rather than face the issue of private vs. public production of atomic power openly, a majority of the Joint Commission on Atomic Energy sought to force the AEC to accept public power philosophy as the price of obtaining the enactment of the balance of the bill which is essential to national defense and security.

The application of atomic energy to the production of power is the symbol of the new era of human history we are entering. And the question we must answer is: Shall the production of atomic power be a Government monopoly? We have learned through sad experience that monopolies of any kind are dangerous and repugnant. History teaches us that industrial and economic growth suffers under state monopolies. The tremendous strides made in the last hundred years are the result of the American system of private enterprise. Are we about to sacrifice the benefits of the atomic age to the public ownership and production theory?

The time for decision is now. I think that once the American people know the facts they will not permit the public power advocates to place a stranglehold on nuclear power. The Atomic Energy Commission itself states it would prefer to rely on cooperation with private industry to assure maintenance of this Nation's atomic leadership.

Within the limits imposed by Federal restrictions and the need for security, private enterprise has already done a splendid job in meeting the challenge of developing the energy of the atom for the benefit of mankind. We ought to be broadening its opportunities for aiding in putting the atom to work for us.

Discussion Group Meets

Farm Bureau Discussion Group 9 met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty, on August 3. Russell Teets, discussion leader, presented the state and local questions for discussion.

The group felt that Farm Bureau's stand on the sales tax to be lowered to .14 if more revenue is needed is the right one. The .03 sales tax causes a hardship when expensive items are purchased whereas the .14 tax would catch a lot of small luxury items, it was stated.

A local problem discussed was the condition of the Rock Lodge Road from Kermit Glotfelty's to Charles Fazenbakers. The road has numerous chuck holes that are extremely deep. The group felt the taxes people pay should entitle them to some of the county repair jobs.

It recommended to Farm Bureau that some kind of contest to encourage people over the county to have their farms marked with their names. A number of years ago Farm Bureau gave each of its farm families a sign for along the road.

It was also suggested that more roads be marked so that travelers can find their way to different places. Garrett County wants summer tourists so why not be more helpful and encourage this trade, the group concluded.

A reunion of people of Garrett county residing in the Baltimore area will be held at the Patapsco State Park, Theodore R. McKeldin area, off route 40 at St. John's lane, towards Marriottsville, on Sunday, August 25.

Was sold a new car before he could explain!

How he hated the styling—so high and square
And in new features it was really bare.

But how do I ever convince my own wife?"

Moral: You're paying for a new car...make sure you get one!

When you buy a new car, put your money on tomorrow—not yesterday. Swept-Wing Dodge actually obsoletes other cars in its field. Should you invest in high, boxy styling when Dodge offers the low, low look of tomorrow? Should you invest in outmoded coil springs when Dodge offers new Torsion-Aire Ride? Should you invest in an old-fashioned lever-type transmission when Dodge offers the ease of Push-Button Driving? In other things, too—engines, brakes, interiors—Dodge is years ahead. Each year, millions of families are hit by unexpected, ruinous expenses of major illness

Don't Let Medical Bills Bankrupt You!

In a feature article in this week's issue (August 10th) of the Saturday Evening Post, Mr. E. R. Leibert answers the questions "What would you do if a catastrophic illness hit you or a member of your family, with medical expenses totaling $35,000.00 within a few years? What sacrifices would you have to make? Would the costs bankrupt you?"

Mr. Leibert goes on to point out that this year 3,500,000 American families will have medical bills which will amount to more than 20 per cent of their income. A million of these families will find medical expenses totaling more than half their annual income, and in many cases they will even exceed their income.

What can You do to prevent this Catastrophe?

Mr. Leibert says:—"Your best hope for financial help in a catastrophic-illness crisis is protection in advance. This can be provided by new types of health insurance now available. . . "

Major-medical insurance picks up where basic protection stops—'Basic protection means benefits which cover a substantial portion of hospital, surgical and medical costs during an illness that may continue over several weeks or even months'."

Let us tell You about Our New Major Medical Expense Insurance

Never before has there been a plan with so many advantages! Protects you against medical expenses above $300—pays up to $5,000 for each member of your family, with plans also offered with maximum benefits of $7,500 and $10,000. Think of it—protection specifically designed to come to your rescue when the medical expenses of a serious illness or accidental injury threaten to get out of hand! THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

The Name Callers

If Mr. Eisenhower were a candidate for a third term (which, of course, he is not) he could hardly ask for a better break than he is getting from his present outstanding political and journalistic critics. The personality and the record of these is not such as to do him any harm—quite the contrary.

—o—

What they seem to have adopted is a strategy of "name calling" and what they seem trying to do is to make him an uninformed boob. What they hope to gain by this is a little vague. They cannot, of course, hurt Mr. Eisenhower who is not running for anything. They are not violently antagonistic to his legislative program. Nor do the more intelligent of the name callers, themselves, believe the things they say about him. The best guess is that they want to disparage Mr. Eisenhower personally in order to diminish his influence in the 1958 and 1960 campaigns. This is a natural performance for politicians with personal presidential aspirations, though it hardly excuses the bad manners and distortions which mark their dealing with the President. One expects this sort of thing from Senator Morse, of Oregon; his colleague, Senator Neuburger; Senator Hubert Humphrey, of Minnesota; Senator Kerr, of Oklahoma, and others of the so-called "liberals" who still cling to the "giveaway" and other policies of the New and Fair Deal.

—o—

Two things about this name-calling campaign designed to make President Eisenhower appear weak, uninformed and negligent of his duties particularly irritate those who participate in it. One is that Mr. Eisenhower keeps his temper. He not only does not abuse those who speak or write abusively of him but he does not, in underhanded and vicious ways, attempt to injure them as the late Mr. Roosevelt repeatedly did. Nor does he appear to cherish grudges. The second is that nothing they say or write appears to hurt Mr. Eisenhower with the people. He remains popular and respected.

—o—

The extraordinary thing is that so many professional politicians and writers seem to prefer the Presidents who offen ively patronized them and evaded direct answers to questions and who were often vindictive and wholly lacking in candor, to a reasonable, good-tempered man of generally admitted ability who neither lies nor equivocates. When he makes a mistake he admits it and his motives are not really questioned save by the lowest grade politicians who have always opposed him. As to his influence in the 1960 campaign few experienced politicians in either party have any real doubt that the President's wishes will be paramount in the Republican Convention, that his choice for the nomination will be chosen and that his support will mean a great many votes in the election.

—o—

As to his choice, no one at present has any indication. His intimates say that the last thing he wants is to assume the role of party dictator. Nevertheless there is no doubt that he will have a preference and at the right time, will make it known. At this time there are but two recognized Republican candidates for the Presidency, both from California, which now has 32 convention votes—Senator William Knowland, the Republican leader of the Senate, and Vice President Richard Nixon.

—o—

As announced some time ago Mr. Knowland is about to retire from the Senate. The almost unanimous presumption is that he will run for governor in 1958 and should he win over the present Governor "Goody" Knight he will be in position to control those 32 California votes in the National Convention. This would make it more difficult for Mr. Nixon, who would be greatly handicapped not to have support of his own state. What the Eisenhower position would be under those conditions no one knows. Both Mr. Nixon and Senator Knowland are strong, able clean men. Normally one would expect the President to throw weight to Mr. Nixon who twice has been his running mate, who has been a consistent and vigorous supporter of his policies and is personally close to him.

—o—

On the other hand, the President has both respect and liking for Senator Knowland, who except occasionally on foreign policy, has effectively supported his legislative program and has considerable strength in the country. Other than Knowland and Nixon there do not appear to be any recognized and available Republican presidential aspirants on the horizon. In the meantime the "name callers" are doing their best to damage the personal reputation of the man upon whom either must count for nomination and election. If they were a little less vicious and extreme they might get farther in their derogatory campaign—but not much.

August Is A Good Time To Establish Hay, Pasture Stands

Research and experience have shown that alfalfa, hay fields and orchard grass-ladino clover pastures can well be established in mid-August, says Charles P. Ellington, University of Maryland Extension agronomist.

With many pasture and hay stands damaged by drought this summer, farmers should give consideration to re-establishing them as soon as possible. By seeding this fall the fields will be productive next spring, whereas if seeding is delayed until spring the crops will not be productive until late next summer, he says.

A good seedbed is first requirement for successful establishment.

It is best to work the land and allow it to settle and then work it again. This will leave the soil firm underneath with one and one-half to two inches of loose soil on top.

Lime should be applied to raise the soil pH to 6.5 to 7.0. Fertilizer should be applied at the rate of 400 to 500 pounds of an 0-20-20 or similar analysis per acre. The lime and fertilizer should be disked in prior to seeding.

Best results are usually obtained by hand seeding the crops. By this method a band of fertilizer is placed about one and one half inches deep and the grass and legume seeds are placed directly over the bands but only one-fourth to one-half inch deep. A converted grain drill, if properly operated, can do an excellent job of band seeding. Fertilizer should be a 5-10-5 or similar analysis and about 300 pounds per acre should be used in band seeding.

Main advantage of band seeding is that the seedlings get off to a better start. The young seedlings are more vigorous and can withstand dry spells and weed competition better.

Seeding rates shoud be 15 to 18 pounds per acre of alfalfa. If a grass is seeded with it about four pounds per acre should be adequate.

Orchard grass at four to six pounds and ladino clover at one pound per acre should be adequate for pasture establishment.

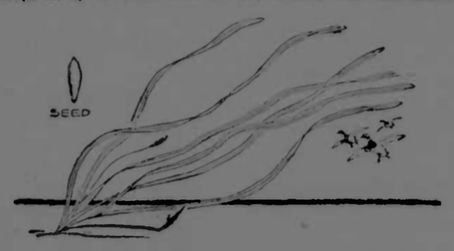
MARYLAND WILDLIFE PLANTS

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME & INLAND FISH COMMISSION



WILD CELERY

(Vallisneria spiralis)

RANGE: Most abundant in fresh-water sections of tidal streams along the Atlantic Coastal Plain and through the Great Lakes region. In Maryland greatest beds are found in the shallow waters about the head of the Chesapeake Bay and the fresh-water of the Potomac River.

DESCRIPTION: Stems buried in mud, sending up tufts of ribbon-like leaves over 5 feet long; stalks are slender and spirally coiled, thence the name spiralis.

PREFERRED HABITAT: Fresh-water (concentrations of sea water not greater than 12 per cent) at depths of 1 to 5 feet or more having a sluggish current; particularly partial to sandy or silty bottoms.

METHOD OF ESTABLISHMENT: By seeds, winter buds, or by transplanting sprouted portions of root-stock; plant seed from Sept. 15 to Nov. 15, rootstock from April to July. (On the feasibility of planting any waterfowl plants, it is advisable to check with your Game and Fish Commission.)

FLOWERS: Staminate (male) flowers in a spathe or sheath near roots which breaks and allows flowers to float; pistillate (female) flowers on long peduncle or stalk above surface.

FRUIT: Floating flowers fertilize flowers on stalk producing fruit or seeds; stalk becomes curved or wavy pulling fruit below surface.

WILDLIFE USE: All parts of plants are relished by waterfowl; diving ducks feed on growing tips of rootstock; other species consume seeds and leaves; important food for the canvasback (Aythya valisineria); eaten by redhead, scaup, mallard, ruddy, swan, and many other species of waterfowl.

OTHER VALUES: Furnishes excellent food and cover for many species of fish life.

Oakland, Maryland

Senate Cloakroom

By J. GLENN BEALL

United States Senator from Maryland

This week I would like to introduce Meredith R. Hoffmaster to any Marylanders who have not had the pleasure of meeting him.

In particular, I want to make sure he is known to those persons who are interested in the Free State's 58,100 small business concerns and also to our professional men and women.

Mr. Hoffmaster is the new manager of the Baltimore office of the Small Business Administration, and as such he is in charge of all SBA activities in our entire State.

As a result of new rulings, these operations now include the offering of special services to groups previously ineligible for SBA assistance, such as lawyers, doctors, engineers, and operators of nursing homes and trucking concerns.

Work Information

Exactly what can Mr. Hoffmaster and his staff do for persons with small businesses?

In the first place, they can supply up-to-the-minute reports on what the Government is buying and how bids for contracts should be submitted.

In addition, they can give information on jobs available through large private concerns which are looking for subcontractors.

Data on both the Government and the private work is kept on file under several dozen classifications at the SBA's Procurement Information Center, at the Baltimore office.

"Set-Aside" Contracts

For concerns which have filed reports with the SBA listing their facilities, Mr. Hoffmaster and his associate can occasionally act as business agents.

They can, for instance, contact various Government purchasing offices and, knowing the special capabilities of some particular firm, suggest a "set-aside" order for that business.

During last year, Maryland firms received $8,000,000 worth of such "set-aside" contracts.

Loans

Other services of the SBA includes its program for arranging business or disaster loans, and its sponsorship of Small Business Management Courses.

The loan program, which is conducted whenever possible through private banking institutions, has already supplied the Free State with $3,537,610 for business requirements and $300,000 for assistance to disaster victims.

Since the beginning of the management courses in 1954, eight have been conducted in our State.

Four more are planned for the coming school year, and details are now being arranged.

For information of these or other SBA matters, Marylanders should contact Mr. Hoffmaster at his Baltimore office in the Calvert Building, St. Paul and Fayette Streets.

The telephone number is Plaza 2-8460, extension 380 or 180.

Dutch Elm Disease Destroying Many Trees In Maryland

In a year when dry weather causes wilting, how can one examine an elm tree to determine Dutch elm disease? Dr. L. O. Weaver, professor of plant pathology, University of Maryland, says the leaves of infected elms wilt, become yellow and turn brown; they then fall. On a wilted branch cut one-half inch in diameter, peel the bark back to the wood. If diseased, the cambium or recent sapwood of the tree has a brown discoloration.

To prevent spread of the disease to nearby healthy elms, prompt eradication of diseased trees is necessary, he says. Since elm bark beetles, which spread the fungus, breed only in elm wood that has become infected and on which the rough bark is still tight, destruction of this wood holds down the local beetle population and reduces the amount of disease spread.

The first and important control measure is the removal of diseased elms. Sanitation also means the prompt destruction of entire elms that are dying or have died from any cause. It is suggested that all broken or dead branches large enough to have rough bark be removed. Do not pile cut elm wood or brush unless bark has been peeled and burned.

Candlelight Wedding, June 8

Miss Mary Virginia Bachtel, daughter of Mr. Paul Y Bachtel and the late Mrs. Virginia G. Bachtel, near Gormania, became the bride of A 2c W. Dale Schlosnagle, south of town, on June 8 at 8:00 p. m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. William A. Renn at St. John's Ev. Lutheran Church, Red House.

Mrs. Eugene Flinn, sister of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," "Because" and "The Lords Prayer."

Miss Elaine Gnegy, friend of the couple, of near Red House, at the organ played the traditional wedding music. The church was decorated with white gladiolus and white altar flowers. Only the chancel was lighted.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white waltz length acetate and nylon lace gown with a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves pointed at the wrist.

The full skirt featured layers of small lace ruffles. Her veil was held with a clip of tiny white flowers. She carried a white orchid on a white Bible with flower streamers. Her only jewelry, a gold cross necklace, was a gift from the groom.

Miss Jacqueline Calhoun, of 8th St., Oakland, was maid of honor. She was attired in a waltz length gown of soft pink, with matching bolero and white gloves. Her head piece was a band of pink flowers. She carried a bouquet of roses with ivy streamers.

Miss Joanne Wotring, of near Gormania, served as bridesmaid. She wore a soft blue waltz length gown with matching bolero and white gloves. Her head piece was a band of yellow flowers. She carried a bouquet of roses with ivy streamers.

Master W. David Schlosnagle, brother of the groom, was ring bearer. Miss Sharon E. Flinn, niece of the bride, as flower girl, carried a white basket of pink rose petals.

Mr. Jack Wayne Harvey was best man and Mr. Reuben Rodeheaver, usher. Both are formerly of Oakland and were high school friends of the groom.

The groom's mother was attired in a navy blue dress with white accessories. She wore a corsage of red rose buds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. The room was decorated in white and pink with white wedding bells.

The wedding table was centered with a four tiered wedding cake. Presiding at the punch bowls were aunts of the bride, Mrs. Carson Peters of Thomas, W. Va., and Miss Genevieve Grow, of Reisterstown, Md. Cake was served by Mrs. Alvin Arnold and Mrs. Roland Roth, sisters of the groom. Also assisting was Mrs. Bonnie Calhoun, of Oakland. Mrs. Glenn Frantz of Aberdeen and Mrs. Eugene Flinn, of Oakland, were hostesses.

Mr. Eugene Flinn, of Oakland, and Mr. Glenn Frantz, of Aberdeen, brother-in-law of the bride, were ushers.

The couple motored to Washington, D. C., Delaware, and to Aberdeen, Md., for their honeymoon.

School Fees Ruled Illegal by State's Attorney General

The attorney general of Maryland has ruled that a school board may not charge community groups for use of public school facilities.

The decision affects a practice of all the school boards in the state.

The opinion provides that school authorities "must permit the free use of the buildings and grounds" by community groups of 25 or more for the "discussion of public questions or for other civic, social or recreational activities."

In this county only a minimum charge had been made for extra custodial costs, heat and lights, but in some counties, particularly in Montgomery county the ruling will cut an estimated $20,000 to $30,000 from school board income next year, Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent of schools, said he estimated that the county collected some $200 at all schools during the last school year but that the additional cost probably would reach at least $1,000, which he pointed out, is charged up to the "cost of education."

Mr. Hawkins has received a copy of the opinion from Dr. David W. Zimmerman, Maryland assistant state school superintendent.

Hawkins said that the Board has the right to refuse to give the use of buildings to sectarian groups but this has not been done previously and probably would not be done in the future.

Open Season On Birds Announced This Week

The open hunting season on morning doves, rails and gallinules, sora and woodcock was announced by Ernest A. Smaltz, director of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish commission.

Mourning doves, from 12 noon to sunset, EST, September 16 to October 30 and Dec. 21 to Jan. 4, daily limit of 10, rails and Gallinules, September 1 to October 20, daily limit of 15, Sora, September 1 to October 20, daily limit of 25, woodcock, November 15 to December 21, daily limit of four.

The hours to hunt rail, gallinules and woodcock are from half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Vaughn said the dates were within the limits fixed by the Federal government and the Maryland legislature. He said the short season mourning doves in recent years had resulted in a gradual increase in these game birds, permitting a full 50 half days open season and an increased daily and possession limit from 8 to 10.

Regulations governing the taking of ducks, geese and brant are to be issued by the Fish and Wildlife service sometime this month.

Aid to Learning . . . .

If environment has anything to do with attitudes conducive to learning, and we certainly believe it does, Garrett County school children should be well fitted for a good year.

Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent of schools, reported a few days ago that the only permanent school buildings left in the county needing complete renovation were Grantsville and Swan Meadow, with Grantsville scheduled for renovation next summer and a new two-room school being planned for Swan Meadow.

Finzel, Johnson and the annex building in Oakland will be abandoned when the two new elementary schools are completed. So that, with the exception of the Grantsville and Swan Meadow schools every child in the county, whether in elementary or high, will be attending school this fall in either new or completely renovated classrooms.

This condition did not just happen. There has been a well defined plan operating over the past three years to have this come about. A few short years ago citizens would not have believed this possible, but by patience and a definite plan of action, this has been accomplished.

Certainly a pleasing and attractive classroom lends itself more readily to study, if the student has any inclination towards study. Many times, of course, the student is not so inclined and no amount of atmosphere or admonition by the teacher will change it. But this type is in the minority.

So there is no reason why all of us should not look forward to a satisfactory and progressive school year. We have an excellent corps of teachers and supervisors. There is good organization. The schools are in excellent repair. The unknown quantity, as always, is in the school population. But we can be optimistic and hope that their reaction to their environment will be favorable. With discipline, there is no good reason why the result will not be highly satisfactory. Competition following high school gets keener each year, and students will learn that they have to buckle down.

We believe it is much easier to buckle down in pleasant surroundings.

14 Lutheran Congregations Ready For Mission Program

Approximately 1,800 Lutheran laymen and pastors, representing fourteen congregations in the Mt. Top area will join forces next week for a week-long evangelism mission.

The area-wide mission is being held in cooperation with the Lutheran evangelism program being carried on in the United States and Canada which has been in progress since 1955. More than a year of preparation has preceded the approaching mission here.

To Follow Program

Each of the fourteen congregations will follow a prescribed program of activities during the week, August 25 to 30. Services will be held daily at 8 p. m., in individual churches and combine for a mass area rally on Friday evening, August 30, at Southern High school.

The mission is to have a threefold emphasis—preaching services, instruction sessions for lay workers and officials, and the planning of permanent local evangelism programs.

Rev. Francis Myers, of Silver Spring, leader of region 2 in the evangelism mission program, pointed out that the mission was not to be confused with a revival or a new membership drive. He said it was concentrated effort on the part of the Lutheran church to revitalize the interest of its members in the need and importance of evangelism. However he issued an invitation for public attendance at the various services.

Final plans are to be laid Sunday afternoon at a lay school at St. John's church at Red House. Final instructions on how to carry out the mission are to be given at that time.

The entire program is designed to deepen the spiritual life of the area Lutherans through a large scale evangelistic effort. In most areas a pre-mission visitation to Lutheran homes took part this week. In Oakland sixty or more members went out to explain to other members the purpose of the mission and urge attendance at the services. Each evening next week these visitors will go out to visit the lapsed member and the unchurched in an effort to persuade them that they need Christ in their every-day lives. Rev. Myers pointed out that there are still approximately 82 million persons completely outside the church.

Services are scheduled in the fourteen churches of the area Sunday morning and afternoon, and each evening, Monday through Thursday. Missioners and the churches where they will conduct services include the following:

Civil Defense Plans Training Exercise

An Alert Training exercise by the County Civil Defense will take place Sunday, August 25, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., it was announced by Fred Tichnell, Oakland, county director.

All posts in the Pittsburgh Air Defense Filter center area will participate.

Ground observation posts in this area are now operating on a "Ready Reserve" basis whereby the volunteer observers occupy the posts and report aircraft to the filter center only when alerted to do so.

The county posts formerly operated 21 hours a day but this was changed when increased warning facilities were completed.

Tichnell said the need for volunteer observers was still of paramount importance to the defense of the United States. The Air Force will continue to train volunteers for this work in cooperation with civil defense officials.

Final Plans Made For Polio Clinic

Final arrangements have been made for the special Polio Evaluation Clinic next Monday and Tuesday in Cumberland, Mrs. William Harmon, chairman of the Garrett County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis reported today. To be staffed by prominent polio specialists, the clinic is being financed entirely by the March of Dimes and is open to all county residents who have had polio at any time.

"This is a major opportunity for polio patients of Garrett County," said Mrs. Harmon. "With the help of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society an impressive assembly of polio-related medical skills will be on hand to examine each patient and to discuss with him his problems."

Letters have gone to every known polio case in the county during the past two weeks and as rapidly as these have been answered appointments for the clinic have been set. Anyone who may have been missed and feels himself eligible for this clinic should contact Mrs. Harmon at Accident, Md., telephone VAlley 6-8148, Charles Briner at Oakland, phone DEerfield 4-2183 or the Allegany March of Dimes office in Cumberland, PArkiew 2-1840, at once.

Present Petition

Twenty-five property owners who are objecting to the establishment of a public garbage dump in their vicinity of Round Glade, presented a petition to the County Commissioners on Monday.

The Commissioners have been considering the establishment of a public dump on property formerly owned by H. C. Stickel, about six miles from Oakland on the Oakland-Sang Run road.

The Commissioners said no action would be taken until they received a report from the State Health department, whether the request would be approved or disapproved.

Poorbaugh To Speak To Service Clubs

Earle R. Poorbaugh, director of the Maryland Department of Information, will be the speaker at two service club meetings within the next ten days.

He will address the Oakland-Mt. Lake Lions club on Monday evening, August 26, and will address the Oakland Rotary club on Friday evening, August 30. Both meetings will be held at the William-James hotel.

Mr. Poorbaugh was appointed director by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin in August, 1951, and since that time has given much time to promotions for Garrett county, in addition to state wide duties.

He is founder and director of Maryland Boys State, American Legion, and has served as training officer for the U. S. Veterans administration, in charge of rehabilitation of disabled World War II veterans.

He joined the editorial staff of the Baltimore News Post and Sunday American and was a war correspondent in Europe, later becoming foreign correspondent for the International News service, and receiving a presidential citation for "outstanding and distinguished service as a war correspondent."

He entered military service during the Mexican border campaign and sailed for France on the first American convoy in June, 1917, in the first world war. There he served 27 months, through seven major engagements and was twice wounded. His decorations include the silver star, purple heart and French croix de guerre, with palm.

The subject of his address was not announced..

Grows 'Em Big

H. B. Buckley, of Kitzmiller, is making a mark in agriculture for persons in future years to shoot at.

He grows cantaloupes and the ice box watermelons for a hobby and this year has produced some remarkable results in spite of the dry weather.

Last week he brought to the fair, too late to be officially entered but entered as a feature, nevertheless, one watermelon, weighing over five pounds and two cantaloupes weighing over 4½ pounds each. Today he brought in the champion up to the present time, a cantaloupe weighing six pounds and 3 ounces.

Mr. Buckley grows these in a sandy soil that has been tested by the Extension serve to determine what fertilizer should be used.

Lake Property Owners Plan Fall Meeting

T. G. Bennett, president of the Property Owners association of Deep Creek Lake, has called a meeting of the group for Saturday August 31, at the Arden Boat club on the Lake.

At that time new directors of the association will be elected and reports of committees will be heard. Members will see and hear a fifteen minute sound movie of the rotenoning project on the lake last year. Harold J. Elser, from the Maryland Department of Research, will show the film and make comments. Light refreshments will be served.

Mr. Bennett said his association was becoming increasingly conscious of the potential dangers in the boating and skiing on the lake and felt all members should set an example for safety in this respect.

Red Cross Obtains 102 Pints of Blood

With the help of 64 walk-ins Oakland and nearby residents contributed 102 pints of blood at the regular visit of the Johnstown bloodmobile unit to the fire hall here on Monday afternoon. Twenty of the 64 walk-ins were Amish citizens.

A breakdown of the figures given out by Mrs. Grover C. Stemple, blood recruitment chairman for the American Red Cross, showed that 97 persons were scheduled and 55 of that number kept their appointment. Forty-five gave for replacements. Forty persons gave blood for the first time. Seventeen volunteers were rejected.

Mrs. Stmple said the next visit of the bloodmobile to Oakland would be in February.

It had been only two months since the bloodmobile had been in Oakland and some regular donors made no commitment this time.

Senator Friend Asks Change in Highway Construction Plan

Senator Clifford Friend continued his endeavors this week in getting the State Roads Commission and the County Commissioners to agree to a proposal to substitute the construction of a section of State Route 135 for an unimproved county road which roughly parallels it.

He met with the Legislative Council's committee on State Roads in Cumberland on Monday and also appeared before the County Commissioners on Tuesday.

In reviewing the situation H. D. Swartzentruber, president of the county commissioners said that last November the Commissioners had requested transfer of $134,000 set up for route 135 from route 495 to route 38 under the 12-year program, to new road construction of about ten miles, extending from Swanton northeast to Savage River Dam. Swartzentruber said it would involve some five miles of new road construction and five miles of present road to be resurfaced and improved.

He said the request was made in writing after meeting with interested people of Swanton and Senator Friend and Delegate Harry Edwards.

A reply from Robert O. Bonnell, chairman of the Roads Commission shorty afterward showed that Mr. Bonnell felt that $434,000 would not go very far toward building a new road in the area, let alone new improvements or do any resurfacing to the present road, but he promised to study the question.

In April of this year a representative of the Roads Commission appeared before the Commissioners and informed them the commission felt the proposed road would cost $4 million dollars exclusive of engineering costs and said it probably would not fit into the state plans. Since that time nothing has been done, until Mr. Friend appeared before the Commissioners Tuesday to continue to urge the new road.

Swartzentruber said he told Mr. Friend he knew it was not possible to obtain funds to do the work either this year or next through county allocations, and that he felt he should not make any promises for any new board which would be elected two years from now.

Asked To Conserve City Water Supply

Citizens of Oakland were asked this morning to conserve the water supply until further notice, on account of the prolonged dry spell.

The Mayor and Town Council, through Mayor Russell L. Smith, issued an order this morning stating that there was still plenty of water for home consumption but that the sprinkling of lawns and the washing of automobiles, and any unnecessary use of water would have to be discontinued until further notice.

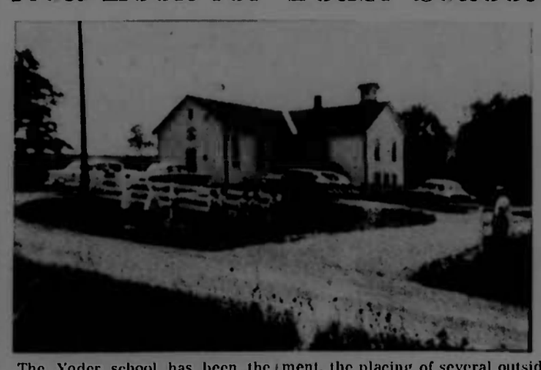
An advertisement to this effect appears in today's issue of The Republican.

To Be Given Hearing

Edwin Rogers Lynch, aged 25, of North Carolina, is being held in the county jail in Oakland on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The offense allegedly occurred at Bloomington.

He will be given a hearing in the juvenile court, Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley presiding, on Friday, according to S. R. Pagenhardt, state's attorney.

New Look for Yoder School



The Yoder school has been the scene of much activity during the recent summer vacation term, for during this time the school has been given an entirely new look, according to Willard L. Hawkins, county superintendent of schools. Part of the new look has been provided by the Garrett County Board of Education and part by the patrons, pupils and teachers of the school. This little school nestled among neat Amish and Mennonite farms is located about two miles north of Grantsville. It will open September 3 with an enrollment of 70 pupils from the Amish and Mennonite homes of the Yoder community. This will be an increase of some fifteen pupils over last year.

When the school board finished its part in the renovation and repair of the school, which included such major items as new roofing, paint and repairs both inside and out, new tile flooring, new acoustical ceilings, furniture repair, etc., the school patrons, teachers and pupils then took over the further improvements. These included the erection of a board fence around the school ground and the task of painting it white, the grading and seeding of a portion of the playground, construction of a driveway, construction of playground equipment, the placing of several outside lights, the painting of a "Yoder School" sign in typical Pennsylvania Dutch art, making window curtains of material in Dutch art design, as well as many other small projects.

Children in the school attend through grade nine. An increasing number are finishing their high school education at Northern. Hawkins pointed out that through the efforts of two very competent and versatile teachers, the pupils at Yoder maintain a high achievement level, and the educational program offered at the school is a varied and challenging one. In addition to basic subject skills children have an opportunity to participate in such learning experiences as music, art, typing, carpentry, pleasure reading and even Algebra and Latin where needed. The school is well supported by the parents and has represented for many years a focal point of interest of the community. It is not unusual to have 100 percent of the homes of the pupils represented at the regular meetings of the P.T.A. Unlike most of the other two-room schools in the county where the school population steadily declines, it is quite likely that Yoder will outgrow its present facilities within the near future.

FFA Judging Is Completed at Fair

The 14th annual regional Future Farmers of America Live Stock Judging competition was held yesterday at the Cumberland Fair, followed by the annual regional meeting of the organization.

Twenty-three boys from Garrett county participated compared to 16 from Allegany county. Five classes of animals were used in the judging, including Hampshire gilt hogs, Hampshire ewes, Hampshire lambs, Black Angus heifers and Hereford heifers.

Garrett county winners were David Beachy, $8, first; Dick Sisler and Floyd George tied for second place, $6.50 each; and for third place there was a four-way tie with James Savage, Ray Schlossnagle, Kenneth Durst and Joseph Durst receiving $2.25 each. All of the Garrett winners were from Northern High school.

Lawrence Faith and Marvin Callis, Northern High vo-ag instructors, and Richard Bishoff and George Lipscomh, of Southern High, were assistants in the competition.

The judging competition is a contest in which each boy pits his skill against that of the professional judges, to check ability in judging and grading livestock.

Following the competition the boys held their annual regional meeting with John Hummel, this county presiding. Officers elected included Sam Glotfelty, Southern High, president; John Hummel, Northern High, vice-president; Patrick Duckworth, Oldtown, secretary; Barry Hoopengardner, Flintstone, treasurer-reporter.

Lawrence Faith, Northern vocational agriculture teacher, was named regional chairman. The boys decided to hold their land judging at Southern High at 10 a. m., Saturday of Land Week. Each school will enter two teams of four members each, with two alternates allowed each school.

The next annual regional meeting will be held at Garrett County Fair with livestock judging at the Cumberland Fair again next year.

A spring regional meeting is planned at the annual public speaking competition scheduled at Northern High school next May.

WILD RICE

(Zizania aquatica)

RANGE: Fresh-water marshes along the Atlantic Coast, west to the eastern margin of the Prairies. In Maryland, found in most fresh marshes and fresh-water estuaries of the Chesapeake Bay.

DESCRIPTION: Grows from 8-10 feet in height; short roots; partitioned stem cavity; leaves about 1-3 inches wide; plant is separated into staminate (male) and pistillate (female) portions.

PREFERRED HABITAT: Thrives in shallow fresh-water (2-3.5 per cent of normal sea salinity) a few inches to 2 or 3 feet deep; bottom soil of fairly deep muck or fine soft silt; enough water circulated to prevent stagnation; does not do well in landlocked ponds.

METHOD OF ESTABLISHMENT: An annual; by seeds, broadcast in fall or early spring; scatter about one handful of seed to each 2 or 3 square yards; not necessary to mix seed with mud to sink to bottom if planted before seeds sprout (sprouted seed will float); twenty-five pounds will plant about one acre; reseeds itself from year to year. (On the feasibility of planting any waterfowl plants, it is advisable to check with your Game and Fish Commission.)

FLOWERS: Spikelets in a much-branched panicle (loosely branched flower cluster), upper pistillate (female) lower staminate (male).

Is Your Name HARMON

Harmon, an old and honored surname, is principally of English and Irish origins. In the former category, it was the equivalent of Harman and Herman and is obtained from the Old English "here and "man", the former meaning "soldier". Thus, it was bestowed, when surnames first came into vogue, upon soldiers or warriors.

In its Irish aspect, it is said that Harmon stems from the Gaelic "giolladeacher" signifying a hard or rugged youth". It is known that the name was in use in Ireland as far back as the 12th century and that it was particularly popular in Roscommon County in the 15th and 16th centuries.

Saffield, Connecticut is apparently the ancestral home of a substantial number of the present day Harmons in this country, for it is known that Benjamin Harmon (1711-1795), Elias Harmon (1741-1793), Israel Harmon (1753-1821) and John Harmon (1762-1851), all of whom were born in Saffield, served in the Connecticut troops during the Revolutionary War. The first two were sergeants and the latter two were privates.

The first census of the United States, taken in 1790, shows only one person by the name of Harmon who was a resident of Maryland and head of a family at that time. He was Caleb Harmon of Baltimore County.

"The Ancestry of Lydia Harmon" (1755-1836), who was born in Scarborough, Maine, was compiled by Walter Goodwin Davis of Portland, Maine and published in 1924.

Judson Harmon (1846-1927) served as attorney general of the United States in the cabinet of President Grover Cleveland and also as governor of Ohio.

Millard Fillmore Harmon (1888-1945) was major general, U. S. Army.

George Dewey Harmon is professor and head of the department of history at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.

Laban E. Harmon is secretary, Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Henry Gadd Harmon, an educator of note, is president of Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.

There Goes Our Gas Man!

Yes, son . . . he's a "line flyer."

Natural gas must travel hundreds of miles through huge pipelines laid underground before it can be delivered to your home. These long transmission lines climb mountains, dip into valleys, and plunge under rivers. Miles and miles of pipeline right-of-way are under continual observation . . . both on land by the "line walker" and from the air by the "line flyer."

Inspection of these pipelines is made easier by the use of helicopters and other light aircraft. The man "on the fly" can cover great distances, spot conditions which might interfere with gas transmission, and quickly bring them to the attention of service crews on the ground. The result: a dependable flow of economical natural gas to your home.

The natural gas you use is the modern, efficient fuel. And it serves you best when you use it with modern, automatic gas appliances.

Rainmaker Is Final Play of the Season

"The Rainmaker," the final play of the season for the Garrett County Summer theatre, is being presented this week. Performances tonight, tomorrow and Saturday will end the seven-weeks' session.

"The Rainmaker" is a romantic comedy in three acts and concerns a blunt but efficient and intelligent young lady who cannot seem to make herself attractive to the opposite sex, regardless of how hard she tries.

She faces the bleak prospect of unwilling spinsterhood when a flamboyant confidence man from the city comes to town, promising the drought stricken ranchers that he will make it rain for the small sum of $100.

He woos the love hungry girl and gives her confidence in herself. The play ends on a happy note when she finds her ideal mate and they live happily ever after as the final curtain drops.

Last week's attendance set a record for the three-year season with over a thousand in attendance for the five nights. Over three hundred were in attendance on Saturday evening.

The drought has cut the state's crops about one-half.

Savage River Dam of Value in Dry Spell

The value of the Savage River dam, a Garrett county impoundment, is being amply illustrated during the current dry spell.

Julian G. Patrick, chief chemist at the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company, and supervisory engineer for the dam, said 46 million gallons of water is being discharged from the Savage River dam each day to keep the river flow at Luke at a 60,000,000 gallon rate.

Patrick said the river flow at Kitzmiller recently has dropped 5 million gallons daily. The water impounded in the Stoney River dam is also available, he added.

There is no alarm by officials at the paper mill because there is still enough water in the Savage River dam to take care of all requirements of the mill. When the dam is full there is a total of six and one-half billion gallons of water. As of yesterday there is still five and one-fourth billion gallons of water in the dam. The water is only 12 feet below the spillway now whereas in winter it is some 70 feet below the spillway.

President Trujillo was sworn in as president of the Dominican Republic.

Errors Occur

Several errors appeared in The Republican last week.

The twin calves pictured on page 1 were not a part of the exhibit of the William DeWitt farm, but were exhibited by Emerson Bishoff, Hoyer farmer.

The runners-up in the farm queen contest were listed as Joanne Collier and Darlene Schlosnagle. Second place in the event went to Miss Schlosnagle.

The Bloodmobile visit was listed as occurring August 26, whereas it took place August 19.

There was a mistake in the date of the John Friend family reunion. It will occur on August 25, according to Wilbur Hinebaugh, of Friendsville.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 22, 1957

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Elra F. Garletts, president of the Garrett County Farm Bureau, representing all of the membership, extends heartiest congratulations to the Garrett County Fair Board for the excellent management and splendid success of this year's Fair. Although Farm Bureau was not officially a part of the Fair organization, many of its members worked hard, thereby setting a good example. However, the Farm Bureau did assume definite responsibility for the program on Farm Bureau day, including the Farm Queen contest; for a booth in the Commercial Exhibit of the Fair; and for a float in the parade.

The primary purpose of the booth was to help acquaint the people of our county with the patriotic and widely diversified purposes of Farm Bureau which are to foster religion, freedom, education, equality of opportunity, health, public life, talent and leadership. The booth also stressed the fact that Farm Bureau is the "Watch-Dog" of the freedom of the American farmer.

Eight hundred thirty-five visitors participated in the guessing game and five different persons amazed the committee by guessing the exact number of pea halves. The number of pieces was 1,957. This number was guessed by Miss Dottie Hetrick, Grantsville; Paul Weimer, Garmania, W. Va.; Mary Hazlett, Oakland; and Andrew Mance, Oakland; and Adle Milne, Export, Pa. An equal prize will be mailed to each of these contestants.

The float in the parade portrayed the idea that agriculture is progressing, and is preparing for a more wholesome future by providing proper education, training, and encouragement for its young people.

G. EMERSON BISHOFF

BY GEORGE S. BENSON
President of Harding College

Before the Communists went to work with their "brain-washing" of American POW's in North Korea they issued a communication to the Communist instructors, analyzing the Americans. "There is little knowledge or understanding, even among U. S. university graduates, of American political history and philosophy, the federal, state and community organizations...freedoms, safeguards, checks and balances..." Therefore the Communist instructors could easily undermine the Americans' respect for their system. The "brain-washing" was amazingly successful.
